SHOW DEATH TABLE IN COURT

BEGIN PICKING DEATH JURY TO TRY TOUHY GANG

Defendants Under Heavy Guard.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

In a martial atmosphere four Touhy gangsters went on trial for their lives yesterday, charged with the kidnaping for ransom of John Factor, wealthy speculator.

The extraordinary precautions taken to guard the defendants from possible rescue attempts lent a military air to the proceedings in Judge Michael Feinberg's court. Numerous heavily armed guards stood about the courtroom and all persons entering, including women, were searched for weapons.

The defendants in the case were brought into court under heavy guard after preliminary motions had been disposed of. They are Roger Touhy, chief of the northwest side Touhy gang of kidnapers and booze and gambling racketeers; Gustav [Gloomy Gus] Schaefer, alias Stevens; Albert [Polly Nose] Kator, and Edward [Father Tom] McFadden.

Most of Veniremen Excused.

The selection of a jury will be a long process, according to indications yesterday. Only two out of 25 veniremen examined during the day remained in the jury box when court adjourned. These two, tentatively accepted by both sides, were Herbert H. Brownell, 5950 Winthrop avenue, vice president of the Ritchie Bond and Mortgage company, 134 North La Salle street, and Joseph J. Kopp, 4934 Grace street, an employé of Crane & Co. A new venire of 100 men was summoned by Judge Feinberg for tomorrow.

Most of those excused professed scruples against imposing the death penalty on the four gangsters, as is being demanded by the state. Others announced prejudices formed from reading of the kidnaping in newspapers.

Another man summoned for jury service said his aversion for the crime of kidnaping was so great that he could not give the defendants a fair trial.

Battle Between Lawyers.

Even this ordinarily prosaic business of jury picking had its unusual features with Wilbert Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, pitting his wits against the chief of defense counsel, William Scott Stewart, who only a few weeks ago piloted three of the defendants through a kidnaping trial in the federal court at St. Paul, Minn., which resulted in their acquittal.

Crowley sought a jury which would not hesitate to condemn to the electric chair men convicted of kidnaping for ransom. And Stewart questioned the veniremen before him in an effort to find citizens who would not be prejudiced by the fact that his clients are known gangsters and probably will not take the stand in their own defense.

Each side exercised peremptory challenges freely. The number of such challenges permitted in this trial runs upwards of a hundred due to the number of defendants.

Questions by Defense.

"If it developed that these defendants were engaged in the beer business before prohibition would that prejudice you against them?" was one of the defense attorney's frequent queries. Another was: "The fact that they may not take the stand in their own defense would not influence you, would it?"

An affirmative answer to either question resulted in the prompt dismissal of that veniremen.

Stewart was the only defense attorney in court—a singular development. At the St. Paul trial, when the gangsters were acquitted of the abduction of William Hamm Jr., wealthy brewer, they had an array of counsel. Attorney Stewart did not have even a clerk to assist him.

Factor Guarded in Court.

Factor was in court for only a few moments at the morning session. He then departed under heavy guard for a secret hiding place known only to the state. He has received threats against his life and against his family because of his announced determination to identify the gangsters as the men who kidnaped him.

Forty state's witnesses were also in court in answer to subpoenas. They were told to go home and be ready to answer telephone calls to appear in court. Factor will not be among the first score of witnesses, the state announced.

Fay Webb Asks $7,450 Month from Vallee

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Fay Webb Vallee, estranged wife of Rudy Vallee, had on file in Superior court today an itemized list of things she believes the singer-orchestra leader should provide for her maintenance in the form of alimony. Her demands include:

Two thousand dollars a month for clothes.

One thousand dollars a month for maintenance of a home, medical expenses, recreation, groceries, and entertainment.

Two hundred dollars a month for secretary's salary.

Cosmetics, jewelry insurance, florist, laundry, gas, water, telephone, and automobile upkeep round out the $7,450 a month the actress is asking from her husband.

To Delay Case.

Meanwhile Miss Webb, daughter of Police Chief Webb of Santa Monica, Cal., is receiving $100 a week from Vallee, who has said he believes this amply provides for her.

Hearing of Mrs. Vallee's plea for the alimony, $50,000 on account of attorneys' fees, and $10,000 court costs during pendency of her divorce suit, will be continued a week when called tomorrow in Superior court, attorneys representing the couple announced today. Vallee now is on his way to New York.

VALLEE HERE GOING EAST.

Rudy Vallee, the radio crooner; his lawyer, Hyman Bushel, and a dog named "Windy" passed through Chicago yesterday. He said he was on his way to New York to resume his radio broadcasts.

Vallee denied rumors that he planned to marry the blues singer, Alice Faye. His lawyer hastened to explain that Miss Faye has a movie contract requiring her presence for four years in California.

Last week Vallee defeated his wife in her attempt to restrain him from securing a Mexican divorce. After Vallee's victory he announced he would not seek to divorce Miss Webb in the Mexican courts.

RCA TO START SHORT WAVE TRANSMISSION TO ALL IN U. S. SOON

New York, Jan. 16.—[Special.]—A radio facsimile intercity service is planned by the Radio Corporation of America, David Sarnoff, its president, announced at a luncheon meeting of the Advertising club today.

He said the federal radio commission had issued licenses for a group of micro-waves over which the RCA would start two way domestic facsimile transmission with New York and Philadelphia as two links in the circuit. Construction activities, he said, are to begin within a few days.

The plan calls for extension of the service, with Chicago, Washington, Boston, New Orleans, San Francisco, and other cities linked in a short wave system to transmit pictures as well as letters, as now accomplished by telephoto on wire lines. In using radio for this purpose waves in the static free band will be used.

"Facsimile transmission," said Mr. Sarnoff, "means the beginning of the end of the dot and dash system in the communication field. It means that not only words but pictures will be able to jump through space. It will advance the development of television immeasurably."

IT SOUNDED LIKE MACHINE GUN IN DOWNERS GROVE

The early morning stillness in Downers Grove was suddenly broken yesterday with the rat-a-tat-tat of rapid fire explosions. A taxicab driver in an office two doors from the First National bank threw down the newspaper in which he had been reading of John Dillinger's desperate bank robberies and quickly snapped out the light. He called the police and then crept under a table, clutching his revolver. A moment later policemen and awakened citizens, carrying rifles or any weapon that came to hand, arrived on the scene. They found that a half dozen cases of giant firecrackers had exploded in the basement of the Ross newspaper store, which is located between the bank and the taxicab office. A small fire from crossed electric light wires had ignited them.

Britain's Home Fleet Gets a New Flagship

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 16.—The British home fleet got a new flagship tonight. Tired of waiting for favorable weather conditions to permit the Nelson, "wonder ship" of the British navy, to leave Portsmouth harbor, where it has been weatherbound the last four days after running aground in the harbor entrance Friday, Admiral Sir William Boyle temporarily transferred his flag to the battleship Rodney.

G.O.P. Wins 2 Seats at Poll for Congress

Montpelier, Vt., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Republican candidates for two of Vermont's three seats in congress—one in the senate and one in the house of representatives—won an easy victory today in a special election that brought out a light vote marked by a slight gain, proportionately, over that recorded by the party's candidates in 1932.

Ernest W. Gibson of Brattleboro, who resigned after ten years in the national house to become a candidate for the seat in the senate made vacant by the death last fall of Senator Porter H. Dale, defeated Harry W. Witters, Democrat, of St. Johnsbury, by a margin of approximately 8,000 votes out of a total of less than 50,000.

Plumley Elected.

To the place in the house vacated by Gibson, Charles A. Plumley, former state official and legislator and later president of Norwich university, from which he resigned to enter the congressional contest, was elected over Robert W. Ready, Democrat, of St. Albans. Plumley's lead was about 200 less than that of Gibson.

The total vote cast for candidates for United States senator in the 1932 election when Franklin D. Roosevelt was swept into office was slightly more than 134,000, with a majority for the Republican candidate, Senator Dale, of slightly less than 14,000.

Returns from all but two small towns of the state's 248 in today's election gave Gibson 28,414 and Witters 20,348. The same towns gave Plumley 28,181 and Ready 20,315.

Voters Lack Interest.

The small vote reflected the lack of interest shown by the voters in the campaign that preceded the election. Democratic candidates appealed to voters to support President Roosevelt and his administration, while their Republican opponents asked the backing of the Republican voters and stressed the need of economy in government, which they promised to work for, along with recovery.

Senator Elect Gibson is 61 years old and, like Plumley, three years his junior, is a graduate of Norwich university, of which Plumley later attained the presidency. Both served in the state legislature and both were active in the Vermont National Guard. Plumley turned from politics to business and the affairs of Norwich university, while Gibson remained in politics and went to the national house.

DR. WYNEKOOP VIEWS CLOTHES OF DEAD RHETA

Murder Trial Moves to Climax.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

The operating table on which Rheta Wynekoop died, the clothing she stripped off for an alleged medical examination which ended with a bullet in her back, and the blood stained bed covers that the slayer tucked around her body after death, were exposed yesterday before the jury that is hearing the Wynekoop murder case in Criminal court. It was done over the strenuous protest of the woman on trial.

The defendant, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, who maintained a stoic calm throughout the morning session, began to wilt when at 2:30 p. m. the prosecutor, Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty, ordered a bailiff to wheel the operating table into court. A long shudder ran through her body as the bailiff shoved the solid, heavy table on its creaking casters before the jury box.

Jurors Stand Up to Look.

The creaking of those casters, the snapping of a window shade in a sudden gust of wind and the sighs of Dr. Wynekoop were the only audible sounds as the jurors stood up to look at the bed where Rheta died. Two square feet of leather fabric had been cut out of the center of the table's black, cushioned top, to be tested for blood, leaving the felt padding exposed.

Dr. Wynekoop's head began to droop, and fell at last upon her folded hands—the physician's hands with which the state contends she chloroformed her daughter-in-law, Rheta, then shot her in the back. It was an angry whisper of the defendant's daughter, Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, that broke the moment's quiet.

"Why don't you bring the corpse in too?" Catherine hissed at Police Capt. John Stege of the prosecution staff, who sat opposite mother and daughter at the counsel table before the judge's bench.

Daughter Revives Mother.

There was no time for further venom. Dr. Alice's shoulders sagged further forward on the counsel table and her strength seemed ebbing. Amid a flurry of spectators and reporters, Dr. Catherine applied a practiced hand to her mother's wrist to count the beats of her ailing heart.

"Her pulse is 106," Dr. Catherine whispered, then swiftly prepared a dose of digitalis in warm water for the defendant to sip. Dr. Alice revived.

Prosecutor Dougherty, who had originally considered producing an effigy of Rheta to place upon the operating table, decided on reflection not to go that far. He had changed his plan in fear lest such a sensational procedure might result in a mistrial.

But before the end of the testimony of his only afternoon witness, Policeman Arthur March of Fillmore station, the prosecutor had produced enough gruesome trappings from the gloomy Wynekoop home to surfeit the most morbid spectators.

State Introduces 27 Exhibits.

Among the 27 state exhibits introduced were the following: A blood splotched slip which, with her stockings, were the only garments on Rheta's body when it was found; sundry other garments, which she had taken off before her death; two bed sheets which the police found above and below the body, and a World's Fair souvenir blanket which lay over the body above the upper sheet.

"I object," was the shout of Defense Attorney Milton Smith as each item was produced. "It's inflammatory—it's prejudicial to my client—it's unnecessary. What's the reason for this gruesome show?"

The presiding judge, Joseph B. David, conceded that the display was gruesome. But he ruled that the state was entitled to offer a justification which, if found sufficient, would impel him to admit the exhibits, regardless of their prejudicial character. Prosecutor Dougherty was ready with his justification.

The State's Justification.

"There's a signed statement by the defendant in this case," he explained. "In that statement the defendant says she accidentally killed the girl with chloroform, then fired a bullet into the body to cover her mistake. It is necessary for us to show these bloody garments to refute that state-

Arbiters Cut Price Paid for Farmers' Milk

Dairy Leader Dead

Frank H. Kullman, vice president of the Bowman Dairy company, and long one of the leaders in negotiations in the milk industry here, leaped or fell to his death yesterday from a room in the Hotel La Salle. Story on page 18.

The Chicago milk price arbitration board, appointed last Wednesday when a truce in the city's five day milk strike was called through the intervention of Mayor Kelly, last night handed down a decision that reduces the compensation paid to farmers by distributors.

For that milk which is resold to consumers as whole fluid the farmers will, under the decision, receive $1.85 a hundred pounds (3.93 cents a quart). Since Nov. 1 the producers have been getting $2.10 a hundred (4.5 cents a quart) for this type milk.

Prices for Other Classes.

Milk sold for cream uses will bring the producers, according to the award, $1.07½ cents a hundred pounds (2.31 cents a quart), as against the old price of $1.45 a hundred (3.11 cents a quart). The basis for figuring the returns on surplus cream and milk is to remain the same, and is governed by wholesale butter prices.

The decision is effective today. The Pure Milk association and nearly all the city's milk distributors, as well as certain independent groups of farmers, had signed pledges through their representatives to accept the award made by the board, composed of W. D. Hunnicutt for the dealers, Clifford V. Gregory for the farmers, and Fred W. Sargent for Mayor Kelly and the public.

See Retail Price Cut.

It was the general opinion among farmers and milk dealers last night that, as a result of the arbitration, a reduction in the standard price of milk to consumers would be made soon. The delivered retail price is now 11 cents a quart, but whether the reduction will be to 10 cents or to 9 was uncertain. The decrease to the producers alone would not justify more than a 1 cent reduction, but the age old laws of supply and demand plus the highly competitive situation in the retail market, may compel the 9 cent price, it was said.

One of the most uncertain factors is the wage scale that union milk wagon drivers may have to take. The great bulk of the production of the 18,000 members of the Pure Milk association, which called the strike, is distributed through the companies which employ union men. At the time of the calling of the farmers' strike the union and the dealers were negotiating a settlement, but were far apart in their demands. Since then the union members have taken a strong stand against any pay cut.

Uncertainty of Enforcement.

Also among the uncertainties is the extent to which the award of the board can be enforced. The agricultural adjustment administration in Washington declined to step in as manager of Chicago's milk unless a price of not more than $1.70 a hundred for fluid milk were set. Mayor Kelly, however, promised the full powers of the city in enforcement.

The arbiters suggested their hope that the government would moderate its stand, acquiesce in the award and coöperate in the enforcement by licensing all dealers and seeing that

M'ADOO, GLASS QUESTION RIGHT TO CUT DOLLAR

Ex-Treasury Chiefs Voice Objections.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—The constitutionality of the President's monetary policy was questioned today by two Democratic United States senators, both of whom served as secretaries of the treasury during the administration of Woodrow Wilson.

This impressive opposition to the legislation offered by Mr. Roosevelt to carry out his program for devaluing the dollar and establishing a managed currency came from Sen. Carter Glass of Virginia and Sen. William Gibbs McAdoo of California.

Even while the new and young treasury minister, Henry Morgenthau Jr., sat under the questioning of the senate banking and currency committee, the two veterans, who had headed the treasury under the wartime President, presented their challenge of the constitutionality of the proposed bill.

Can't Take People's Money.

Senator Glass, it was learned, was openly of the opinion that the constitution did not give the President or congress right to "take people's money away from them without just compensation."

He referred to the provision of the Roosevelt bill under which the President intends to devalue the dollar by at least 40 per cent and then juggle or "manage" it between the limits of 50 to 60 per cent of the old dollar value.

Senator McAdoo insisted that the treasury must produce a written opinion, from its own counselor or from the attorney general, which will cite the legal reasoning relied upon by the administration to establish the constitutionality of its monetary policy proposals.

Other Senators Join.

Other senators, including the Democratic senator, Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma, joined in the querulous doubts expressed on the legality of the program.

There was no doubt tonight that the senators intend to inquire thoroughly into all phases of the Roosevelt program, and it was the opinion of some leaders that it will take several weeks to put the bill through, but there seems no doubt that the administration ultimately will have its way.

The senate committee on banking and currency began its consideration of the bill late this afternoon, and, except for the caustic comments of such senators as Glass, McAdoo, and Gore, the entire session was given over to a discussion of the President's program with Secretary Morgenthau.

Dollar Cut to Raise Prices.

Expounding the theory that devaluation of the dollar will raise commodity prices, Secretary Morgenthau defended the nationalization of gold, including the appropriation of "the profit" on reserve bank gold accruing from devaluation.

Earlier in the day, the Republican senators caucused and decided to defer taking a stand on the proposed legislation until the bill shall be reported by the committee to the senate. They, however, demanded that the committee conduct extended public hearings on the measure and call before it those who are "schooled in the wisdom of currency, banking, farming, and business without regard to party affiliation." Twenty-two of the thirty-five Republicans attended the conference.

The banking and currency committee, however, started off with secret hearings upon a motion by Senator John G. Townsend Jr. of Delaware, supported by Senator Phillips L. Goldsborough of Maryland.

Fletcher Meeting Discloses Plan.

The Glass-McAdoo attacks on the bill were disclosed after the meeting by Senator Duncan U. Fletcher [Dem., Fla.], chairman of the committee.

"The senators are questioning whether it is constitutional to force acceptance of gold certificates in exchange for gold, at an altered valuation," Senator Fletcher added.

Gov. Eugene R. Black of the federal reserve board sought to clarify the position of that body on the proposed legislation.

"The present security of reserve note issues comprises eligible paper, governments, gold and gold certificates," he said. "The proposed bill names the same security for note issues except that the gold proposed to be taken from the reserve banks by the treasury is to be replaced by gold certificates issued by the treasury and redeemable in gold by the treasury at such times and in such amounts as, in the judgment of the secretary of the treasury, are necessary to maintain the equal purchasing power of every kind of currency of the United States.

Gold Bullion for Security.

"The security for the gold certificates is maintained by the treasury in gold bullion.

"Federal reserve notes under the new bill, as under the old law, are the obligations both of the reserve bank issuing them and of the United States."

Gov. Black said that for several weeks there have been conferences between the President, the secretary of the treasury and representatives of the reserve system upon two questions: first, the allocation of the increases in value of the reserve system's gold consequent upon devaluation, and second, the transfer of the title to the reserve system's gold to the government prior to devaluation.

"We have felt that these two questions were not interdependent," said Mr. Black. "As to the first question, the reserve board, after advising with the governors of the reserve banks, has felt that the reserve banks should not be the beneficiaries of the enhanced value placed upon their gold holdings by a purely monetary policy of the government, but on the contrary that such enhanced value arising solely through such monetary policy of the government should inure to the government.

"This feeling has been based upon the conviction that such enhanced value will result solely from a governmental policy and not from any action or effort on the part of the reserve banks. This position has been expressed to the President.

Ask Congressional Action.

"The second question embracing the matter of title to the gold of the reserve banks has similarly been discussed with the President and the secretary of the treasury by representatives of the reserve system. The system has felt and has urged that this question was of such large import as to demand its determination by congressional legislation."

Gov. Black, it turned out, had been moved to make this explanation in order to counteract the arguments of Senators Glass, Daniel O. Hastings [Rep., Del.], and others that the preemption of the 3 billion 600 million dollars of reserve bank gold by the government amounted to "plain robbery."

Black Letter to President.

Although the President believed he possessed ample authority to take over the gold, Gov. Black counseled him in a letter Dec. 29, which he made public today, to defer to action by congress for the following reasons:

"1. It relieves what is to me a serious difficulty presented to the secretary in the question of his right to requisition gold of the reserve system under the statute authorizing requisition of gold in protection of the currency system of the country.

"2. It presents the opportunity to congress of granting by congressional action protection to the reserve system in event of future revaluation upward of the dollar.

"3. It gives to congress the right to allocate the profit upon gold in the event of devaluation.

"4. It leaves to congress the full question of legislation relative to the reserve system and its currency, both creations of congress.

"5. It will obviate all chances of criticism upon the reserve system and upon the administration in respect to the problem involved and all uneasiness and unrest as to reserve banks and their credit and currency functions.

"Straight and Legal Course."

"May I earnestly urge that this congressional course is the straight, simple, legal course to all the ends desired?

"In conclusion, Mr. President, may I assure you that this suggestion is not written in the selfish interest of the reserve banks, but in the interest of your administration and of the country, as an evidence of which I desire to repeat that the question of profit on our gold is not involved, as I have heard no other suggestion from any member of our board or any reserve bank than that any profit arising from a monetary policy of the government should go to the government."

URGES DAUGHTER FIGHT FOR GOLD AND DEFY PRISON

Denver, Colo., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Former United States Senator Charles S. Thomas, 84 years old, from a sick bed at his home here today expressed the hope his daughter, Edith Thomas, 45, recently indicted on a charge of hoarding $3,000 in gold, "accept life imprisonment rather than relinquish her fight to establish her property rights." Because of his illness, Thomas was not told of the indictment until yesterday.

"There is but one conclusion to draw—that congress is composed of white livered cowards and has made a complete surrender of its prerogative and shown a willingness to have a chain run through its nose and be led around by the chief executive," he told newsmen.

Mr. Thomas, a Democrat, said the President "has taken all the spirit out of the country by seizing all the power." He said the Democratic party "has become too venal, too contemptible to be entitled to any respect, and the Republican party is no better. Nowhere is there any constructive opposition."

COUPLE HELD IN THEFT.

Vincent Degrassi, 33 years old, a chef, and his wife, Margaret, 26 years old, a hairdresser, employed at the Drake hotel, were arrested yesterday and charged with the theft of an $80 dress from the rooms of Mrs. T. J. Levy, a resident of the hotel.

COUGHLIN TAKES STAND AT HOUSE MONEY HEARING

Drops Mike to Deliver a Sermon on Gold.

[Chicago Tribune Press service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Father Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest, forsook the microphone today to deliver a typical Sunday afternoon sermon in the vaulted caucus room of the house office building.

His text was money; his audience, the members of the house committee on coinage and some three hundred of his radio fans, who filled every available seat and stood lined two deep along the walls to hear him.

Seated in a swivel chair, the Detroit cleric spoke steadily and without interruption for more than two hours. Unlike most witnesses at congressional hearings, he punctuated his remarks with frequent gestures, banged the table for emphasis, and dramatized his words with careful regulation of his voice pitch.

Headed for Real Prosperity.

"The President," he told the committee, "will make no serious error in carrying out his money program. God Almighty is guiding Mr. Roosevelt; there's no question about that! And we're headed for a prosperity such as we've never even dreamed of."

The audience burst into applause, as it did a moment later when Father Coughlin criticized the "international bankers" for sending what he called the people's gold to foreign nations.

The President's move to revalue the dollar at 60 cents he heartily indorsed, declaring the national money policy heretofore has been unconstitutional. From the beginning, he told the committee, the constitution has given congress power to coin "and regulate the value of" money. He analyzed the verb "regulate," and in it found full constitutional authority for Mr. Roosevelt's dollar cutting program.

Man Master, Not Servant.

"The President," he said, "has caught the meaning of that verb, 'regulate,' and has caught the principle that man is the master of gold and not the servant of gold."

"If you in congress fail to carry through what President Roosevelt started yesterday," he cautioned the committee members in a dramatic voice, "I predict here and now a revolution in this country that will make the French revolution look like a tea party."

"It's either Roosevelt or ruin," he said. "I know the pulse of this nation. I say congress must do nothing but follow Mr. Roosevelt."

FIELD MUSEUM PARTY STARTS TO AFRICA TODAY

Sponsored by Mrs. Oscar Straus, 74 years old, widow of the secretary of commerce during the Theodore Roosevelt administration, a Field museum zoölogical expedition will leave Chicago for West Africa today.

Mrs. Straus, who is the aunt of Jesse Isidor Straus, ambassador to France, will take an active part in the expedition and join the party at Dakar, French Senegal, early in February. She will accompany the party during two months of preliminary work and travel.

She has been active in museum work during the last few years despite her age. In 1929 she financed and headed an expedition in Nyasaland and British East Africa for the American museum.

Members of the present expedition, headed by Rudyard Boulton, assistant curator of birds at Field museum, will depart today in an automobile accompanied by a supply truck for New York, where the vehicles will be loaded on a steamship. The expedition will be gone for six or seven months, and will cover a 4,000 mile area.

OVER TWO BILLION GOLD IS NOW HELD IN FEDERAL VAULTS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—(AP)—A large part of the treasury's gold, more than two billion dollars, is stored in federal mints and assay offices.

This gold is considered as "held in the treasury." Recent figures show the following distribution:

San Francisco mint, 1 billion 25 million dollars; New York assay office, 850 million dollars; Philadelphia mint, 330 million dollars; Denver mint, 175 million dollars; Seattle assay office, 1½ million dollars, and the New Orleans mint, one million twenty-five thousand dollars.

JAMES WARBURG MAKES ANSWER TO FR. COUGHLIN

New York, Jan. 16.—[Special.]—In an open letter of rebuttal, James P. Warburg, vice chairman of the Bank of Manhattan company, today renewed his criticism of the monetary proposals of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin and defended himself against the charge of being a "spokesman for Wall street."

Father Coughlin, speaking over the radio last Sunday in reply to Mr. Warburg's first open letter, published Jan. 12, had ruled out the banker's criticisms because "the blood of international bankers flows in his veins."

Refuting the contention that he had opposed the revaluation of gold, Mr. Warburg reveals that as early as last July, before he resigned as economic adviser to President Roosevelt, he had advocated in writing that upper and lower limits of revaluation, ten points apart, be fixed as soon as possible. That is what the President is now urging congress to do, he points out.

Returning to his attack upon Father Coughlin's proposal to pay off in currency the "bloody bonds" issued by the government to finance the war, Mr. Warburg points out that these bonds are held not merely by the commercial banks but by savings banks and life insurance companies representing solely the interests of some 44,000,000 savings accounts and some 67,000,000 insurance policies. In attacking the holders of war bonds, he says, Father Coughlin is not attacking the "racketeering banksters" but the whole American people.

BABSON DEEMS PLAN ON MONEY 'VERY CLEVER'

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Roger Babson, the economist, described President Roosevelt's money program as "a very clever thing" and predicted yesterday that the President would finish his present term with a smaller national debt than at the time of his inauguration.

"The move will help foreign trade," he asserted, "because when we trade abroad our money must be changed into gold before the other person can use it. That is not necessary when trading domestically.

"The gold equivalent of the dollar is really secondary to the stability of the dollar, and this move of the President will stabilize the dollar."

The President, he added, "with the same amount of gold, with it selling at double the price, can issue double the amount of currency and still have this theoretically measured by the price of gold as 'sound' as the currency of the past few years."

U. S. AND BRITAIN SEEN AS RULERS OF WORLD MONEY

Dollar and Gold Advance on London Market.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Repercussions of President Roosevelt's proposal for a 50 to 60 cent dollar were contrary to all expectations in London today. Instead of the expected fall in the dollar, there was a substantial rise. Gold prices also advanced in terms of sterling.

The dollar, which yesterday was $5.15 to the pound, was sold today at $5.11¾ and showed a tendency to rise still further. The gold price jumped 3 shillings 9 pence an ounce to 131 shillings 9 pence [about $33]. There were also excited dealings and sharp rises in African gold mining shares.

Adopt "Wait and See" Policy.

In diplomatic circles there was a disposition to wait and see what it all means. It is pointed out that the devaluation of the dollar so far seems to be only three cents, from 63 to 60 cents, and that this is not enough to provoke a currency or tariff war between Great Britain and America.

As far as Britain is concerned, it wants no such war and hopes it will be averted. What Britain wants most of all is stabilization of the dollar and pound regardless of what action is taken by nations which remain on gold, such as France.

It is believed here that the United States and Britain together can dictate currency policies to the rest of the world, particularly since Britain already has a large part of the world tied to its sterling standard.

One view held in diplomatic circles here is that President Roosevelt is most interested at the moment in making a good market for United States loans and at the same time preventing a too rapid repatriation of American capital now invested abroad. It is also believed that he desires to upset exchange rates as little as possible.

The Federation of British Industries, which is bursting with a feeling of importance because it induced the government to be rough with France in obtaining a restoration of trade quotas, is showing signs of trying to get rough with the United States, too, but it will have no encouragement from the government, which does not believe in the bogey of American dumping.

The British cabinet, which met today for the first time since the Christmas recess, postponed consideration of the American situation until the facts are clearer.

Italy Sees "Gold Victory."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 16.—Guido Jung, Premier Mussolini's finance minister, tonight linked President Roosevelt's new 60 cent dollar with the results of last summer's London economic conference. He told the Italian senate, which he addressed on budget estimates for next year, that the new American monetary policy is a triumph for those continental nations which remained on gold. The senate later approved Jung's estimates.

Jung was of the opinion that the new American monetary policy shows that the Roosevelt commodity dollar which he proposed to the London conference last summer was basically unsound and that the President in going back to gold proves it.

"The promised apocalypse has not been realized," Jung said. "Money which was anchored to gold last June still remains anchored there and the nations which remained faithful to gold at that time have rendered the world a precious service, for when all these monetary adventures have been concluded those currencies which remained on gold constitute the point of departure for the new work of reconstruction.

"Despite all the varying, and contrary to the modern economic theory which caused the dollar to fluctuate since last summer, it will be remarked that the pound sterling remained at a relative stability. It is in the light of this fact that Mr. Roosevelt's decision to stabilize the dollar in its de facto position must be examined."

Jung concluded that whatever may happen in the new monetary relationships to be established, Italy will not go off gold and the value of the lira will not be changed.

Baltic Hoards U. S. Money.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Jan. 16.—Baltic newspapers placed on their front pages dispatches from Washington on President Roosevelt's proposals for a devaluation of the dollar. Fluctuations of the dollar are closely followed by the press of these countries, especially Latvia, Lithuania, and Poland, whose populations continue to hoard American bills amounting to millions of dollars. Most of this money came from remittances from emigrants living in the United States.

Exchange speculators, who make large profits illegally dealing in foreign currencies, have failed in repeated attempts to create panic among dollar hoarders. The illegal quotation of dollars is now slightly higher than the rate quoted by Baltic state banks.

Wild Fluctuation in Tokio.

TOKIO, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Rapid fluctuations without any definite trends in the foreign exchange market today showed that Japanese bankers and traders still are unable to foresee the results of President Roosevelt's monetary policy. Both Tokio and Shanghai markets quoted the dollar an average of 25 cents per 100 yen stronger than New York's Monday closing.

High officials in the finance ministry discussed the President's message at length. Their decisions were not disclosed, but the belief was growing in financial circles that the government will ask parliament for revaluation and gold purchasing powers similar to President Roosevelt's.

CANADIAN GOVERNM'T PLANS TO REDUCE GOLD CONTENT OF DOLLAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 16.—The Canadian parliament will be asked at the coming session to approve a government bill reducing the gold content of the Canadian dollar. This became known in cabinet circles tonight.

The major portion of Canada's external trade and finacing is carried on with the United States and the United Kingdom, and there are widespread demands from exporters as well as importers for the early stabilization of fluctuating exchange with those countries. Canadian importers hesitate to make commitments for more than thirty days ahead and the uncertainty with respect to exchange has had a restricting effect on trade quite as serious as the high tariff walls which have been erected in all countries.

The value of the Canadian dollar of 100 cents has recently represented a value in the legal gold standard varying between 60 and 70 cents. The Canadian dollar, instead of representing 23.22 troy grains of pure gold, as provided by the statutes of Canada, now represents less than 15 grains of pure gold. There is now agitation in favor of parliament fixing a new gold standard of 14 or 15 grains of pure gold to the dollar.

CONFEREES ON LIQUOR CONTROL SPLIT FIRST DAY

Senate Members Line Up Against House.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—After a day and an evening of deliberations, the general assembly's joint conference committee on liquor control legislation quit work late tonight with its work less than half done, the work being to review the huge regulatory bill over which the two houses disagree.

As had been predicted, the conferees did not touch basic questions in controversy, such as the provision for a special control commission for Chicago separate from the general state commission, and the state retail license fees. When they knocked off, the bill was considered no nearer passage than when the house rejected it by refusing to concur in the senate revision.

Serious conflict developed at the first steps toward actual business and there were disputes all afternoon and all evening.

Divide on First Issue.

On the first question of amendment taken up there was a wide open split—the senate members on one side and the representatives on the other. There appeared to be no chance of agreement. Then the second question was tackled and it was apparent that five of the nine senators were against the proposed change. As an agreement requires the votes of a majority of five from each of the contingents of nine, it was reported there was no possibility of harmony on this question.

The first question taken up was the demand of distillers that exemption from the 50 cent gallonage tax be granted for alcohol denatured for other than beverage purposes. It was reported that the senators favored granting the request and that the representatives were solidly against it.

The second issue, and one of more far reaching importance, was the question of bars. This was said to have risen from a change of position by Gov. Horner who, to a large extent, had appeared to be in control of the conference until this subject arose.

As the bill, or code, left the senate it prohibited drinking bars with a provision that this prohibition did not affect "counters commonly known as lunch counters in restaurant establishments where the serving of meals is at all times the principal business of said establishment."

Horner Believed in Reverse.

The gossip was that when this language went into the bill it was with Gov. Horner's approval if not his request. Today he is said to have sent word that it should be stricken from the code. A substantial rebellion was said to have resulted. A report requires a majority vote from the contingent from each house—in other words, the vote of five senators and five representatives. But in this instance there were five senators opposed to the governor's proposal.

The latest word from the conference room was that the terminology remained in the bill.

From behind the closed door there also came word of other changes. By general consent this section was eliminated as meaningless:

"No person shall sell beer for consumption on the premises where sold in a glass or other receptacle containing eight ounces or less for more than 5 cents."

The provision that landlord shall be jointly responsible with tenant was stricken out. It applied to judgments.

Wrestle With Details.

At the evening session, after some delay, reporters were admitted to listen chiefly to prolonged discussion of scores of minor details. Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg moved to strike out the "junket" section to permit the state liquor commission to conduct investigations both in this country and "any foreign countries." A majority of the house contingent voted with him but he lost with the senators.

Representative Leroy M. Green [Rep., Rockford] moved to strike out the action setting up the head of each local government as a one man commission, proposing that the commission consist of the city council, board of trustees, or county board. His motion was tabled.

Schnackenberg succeeded in having stricken a section permitting a local commissioner full power in determining the location of local licenses, saying it gave the local commissioner too much power.

Fee Attack Fails.

Green's next attack was on the state license fee section which as a whole he demanded be reduced, but his specific demand was elimination of the state license fee of $50 for retailers. He was beaten overwhelmingly.

The committee devoted its morning session to listening to complaints and counsel on many minor points from various special interests.

Edward R. Litsinger of Chicago addressed the group as chairman of the legislative committee of the Illinois Brewers' association, pleading for protection for the state's infant breweries. He pointed out that the laws of other states, particularly Indiana, imposed penalties on Illinois beer which practically prohibited the sale of the product beyond state boundaries.

NEW YORK CITY ASKS STATE LIQUOR BOARD TO LEGALIZE BARS

New York, Jan. 16.—[Special.]—The New York City alcoholic beverage control board suggested today to Chairman Edward P. Mulrooney of the state alcoholic beverage control board that he discard the rule that prohibits drinking liquor at bars.

In a set of recommendations submitted by the city board to be used by Mr. Mulrooney for guidance of Gov. Lehman and the legislators at Albany, who will draft a permanent liquor statute to become effective on April 1, the city board also declared that the 1,500 foot rule governing the location of retail package liquor stores should be voided.

FLYERS REPORT 1,000 QUAKE DEAD IN INDIAN TOWN

LONDON, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The London Daily Mail's Calcutta correspondent reported today that Capt. Dalton and T. Palmer flew over Muzaffarpur, India, and returned with reports that deaths in that stricken town would exceed 1,000. The previously reported death toll was 112.

Scarcely a single house was left standing, the flyers reported. Water spouted from fissures in the ground, flooding a vast area of northwest Muzaffarpur to a depth of five feet. Many houses were submerged, the railway was washed away, and many bridges were down, they reported.

The neighboring villages of Katcheri, Riga, Motihari, and Barrah were razed, and another one, Kataka, was burned.

FIND FIVE JAPS PHOTOGRAPHING JERSEY SKYWAY

Kearny, N. J., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Five Japanese, who had been photographing the Pulaski skyway and other points from Jersey to the Newark airport, were questioned by police here today for more than nine hours and released in the custody of Takeo Nimiys, vice consul of Japan in New York City.

The vice consul vouched for their appearance in Kearny court tomorrow, when all will be obliged to present their passports for examination by immigration officials who will be present. One of the men who was driving the automobile in which they were arrested will face a charge of driving without a license.

GROCERS WANT RIGHT TO SELL HARD LIQUORS

Resolutions urging that wholesale and retail grocers be granted the right to distribute liquors, proprietary medicines, and flavoring extracts that contain alcohol were passed yesterday at the closing session of the National American Wholesale Grocers' association convention, held in the Congress hotel.

The grocers suggested that the federal government amend and revise the existing food and drug acts if abuses are found impossible to correct under the present regulations, instead of repealing the present law and replacing it with an entirely new one.

12 CHICAGOANS GET LICENSES TO BLEND LIQUORS

3 Others in State Are Among First 100.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Twelve Chicago liquor dealers and three others in Illinois were among the first 100 granted federal licenses for the rectification of whisky, the federal alcohol control administration announced today.

Making public a list of those granted licenses to blend whisky, the administration explained that the list included all plants given permits through Jan. 13.

Pay 30 Cents a Gallon.

When repeal was completed Dec. 5, temporary blanket permits were granted all distillers and rectifiers previously in operation or passed upon. Gradually, individual permits have been issued. Rectifiers are required to pay an initial fee to the government and a tax of 30 cents a gallon on all liquors they process.

The list of 12 Chicago firms granted federal permits is: Bon Ton Beverage, Inc., 1527 Flournoy street; A. J. Canfield, Inc., 6788 South Chicago avenue; Chateaux Cordial company, 1100 West Washington boulevard; College Inn Food Products company, Randolph at Clark street; Hamburger company, 160 North La Salle street; Kings International Inc., 11 East Austin avenue; Lionel Distilled Products, Inc., 3931 South Winchester avenue.

Three Illinois Plants.

American Distilling company, Pekin; the Penn-Maryland company's plant at Peoria, and the Brown-Forman Distillery company plant in Peoria.

Committee Hits Louisiana Election Situation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—A report disclosing and denouncing the "deplorable and distressing political conditions" in Louisiana was submitted in today's session of the senate by Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.], chairman of the senate committee which has spent many months investigating the election in 1932 of Senator John H. Overton, candidate of the Huey Long machine.

Though no personal fraud was proved against Senator Overton, Senator Connally explained in discussing the report that the election situation in Louisiana cannot be defended. The senate report absolved Mr. Overton personally of any connection with fraud.

When, following the chairman's speech, Senator Overton sought to congratulate himself on the fact that the report had not questioned the propriety of his nomination and election, Senator Connally brought him up short.

Not "Clean Bill."

"The senator should not think that the committee has given him a clean bill of health concerning his nomination and election," said the Texan, and explained that the committee was not authorized to inquire into the Louisiana primaries, nor—since no formal contest was filed by former Senator E. S. Broussard, whom Overton defeated—could it pass upon Senator Overton's right to his senate seat.

"All that the committee says is that Senator Overton did not participate personally in or instigate the frauds," said Senator Connally, then added, "unless it be said that he accepted the support of the Long organization, which stuffed ballot boxes, employed dummy candidates, and shook down state employes."

Coincidentally with the introduction of the report, Vice President Garner received the latest complaint by Louisiana citizens against the domination of Huey Long and his machine. The women's committee of Louisiana, through Mrs. Hilda Phelps Hammond, demanded that Senator Overton be unseated on the ground that his election was accomplished by "fraud, coercion, intimidation, and corruption." The women declared the senator must certainly have had knowledge of the methods used to procure him his seat in the senate.

Dummy Candidates Assailed.

It was explained by Senator Connally that the report did not go into the numerous complaints made against Senator Long himself, since Long was elected in 1930, two years prior to the period the committee was empowered to investigate.

The committee report condemned as "vicious," "abhorrent," and a "fraud upon the rights of the citizens," the practice of "dummy candidates" by which organizations gain control over local election commissions.

It charged that state and city employes were regularly coerced into making campaign contributions. Witnesses sometimes refused to testify because of fear of reprisals.

"The situation in Louisiana as it relates to elections cannot be defended," the report concluded. "The political organizations there play the political game according to the standard that the result is the important thing and the means of obtaining it are secondary considerations.

Long Directed Campaign.

"Our investigation discloses that the state organization sometimes called the Democratic association, but more generally known as the Long organization in Louisiana, in 1932 absolutely dominated the politics of the state. It further appears that Senator Huey P. Long and his lieutenants completely controlled the affairs and policies of that organization and that he directed the Overton campaign.

"Through the use of dummy candidates, through the support of all state officers and employes, through a widespread and closely knit organization and through an alliance with the Walmsley-New Orleans organization and through the enforced collection of campaign funds from state employes, the Long organization or machine controlled not only the primary election in which the governor was nominated, but the primary in September, 1932.

"It further appears that this organization dominates and controls not only the governor of Louisiana and his policies, but also directs and controls all, or practically all, of the state departments and their employés."

Court Acts to Bar Frauds.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Sheriff M. J. Hartson of New Orleans parish, backed up by squads of police, deputies, and detectives, was in charge of the New Orleans registration office today following the forcible ouster of C. S. Barnes, registrar of voters, appointee of Senator Huey P. Long.

Barnes and ten deputies were arrested just after midnight last night and kept imprisoned for ten hours on charges of tampering with registration rolls in defiance of a court's injunction. It is charged that Barnes and his deputies, at the behest of Senator Long, entered their office at midnight intent upon scratching from the rolls the names of 20,000 voters. This would disfranchise that number of anti-Long voters in the city mayoralty election set for Tuesday, Jan. 23.

Rolls in Custody of Court.

While the registrar and deputies were busy scratching names a police force directed by Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley swooped down on the registration office, arresting the eleven men and seizing the rolls, which were placed in the custody of a court.

The court then ordered Barnes and his entire staff ousted, the civil sheriff being placed in charge. The state Supreme court late today upheld the action of Judge Walter L. Gleason in ousting Barnes.

Ten hours later Barnes and his deputies gained liberty on writs, but all face a charge of contempt of the court order, issued last week, which directed that no more voters be stricken from the rolls.

Late this afternoon criminal charges were filed against Banes and his deputies. The charges specify altering, defacing, mutilating, and destroying public records. Jail terms of three to twelve months are the penalty upon conviction.

Also, Gov. O. K. Allen and Senator Long were in conference here, which increased speculation about the calling out of the National Guard. Afterward Gov. Allen flew back to the capital.

BULLET RIDDLED CAR USED BY DILLINGER IN HOLDUP FOUND

A bullet riddled, blood stained automobile identified as that used by John Dillinger and John Hamilton, desperate Indiana criminals, in getting away after they had held up the First National bank of East Chicago and slain a policeman on Monday, was found abandoned yesterday at Byron street and California avenue.

The identification of the car was made by East Chicago policemen, who battled with Dillinger, Hamilton, and a third member of the gang as they left the bank with their $20,000 loot. Hamilton, it is believed, was struck by police bullets in the fight. His pistol was dropped at the scene and was recovered.

Chicago police squads last night were touring the city seeking further trace of the Indiana gangsters. The East Chicago police, eager to avenge the killing of their slain comrade, William P. O'Malley, were coöperating in the search.

U. S. CONTROLLER BARS FUNDS FOR FEDERAL HOUSING

Ruling Effects Several Emergency Plans.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Questioning the constitutionality of all the new deal spending corporations which President Roosevelt has set up without specific authorization of congress, Controller General John R. McCarl today held up more than half a billion dollars intended for federal housing, relief, farm loans and other activities.

The President's housing corporation, surplus relief corporation, electric home and farm corporation, commodity credit corporation, and perhaps other similar bodies will be swept into the discard if Controller McCarl, watchdog of federal spending, persists in the attitude he took today.

Somewhere between half a billion and 800 million dollars of the President's huge 10 billion dollar budget had been entrusted to these corporations for spending during the next six months. Construction of a federal low-cost housing project in Chicago is involved in the life of the housing corporation.

Ickes to Appeal to President.

Fuming over the controller's body blow to the new deal spending program Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, a director in many of the threatened corporations, declared his intention of appealing to the President against the controller's ruling and of asking congress to pass laws invalidating the controller's objections.

Today's blow at the emergency corporations was the second move Controller McCarl has made to block new deal plans. When NRA Administrator Hugh Johnson tried to prevent the awarding of government contracts to Henry Ford because Ford had not signed the motor code, McCarl held that Ford must be given the contract if he was low bidder and if he was complying with code requirements.

Secretary Ickes also was appearing for the second time in a rôle opposing expenditure control. He recently persuaded the President to rescind an order giving the budget bureau supervision over pending commitments by the new deal bureaus.

Ruling on Housing Corporation.

Controller McCarl's position was set forth in a six page letter addressed to Secretary Ickes in regard to the 100 million dollar housing corporation which Secretary Ickes set up under his public works fund.

Casting doubt on the constitutionality of the corporation since congress had never directly authorized it, Controller McCarl said he would have to hold up the transfer of funds to the corporation unless questions he raised were cleared up.

Although the letter dealt only with the housing corporation, the accounting office indicates that the same attitude is held toward all similar corporations. Ickes expressed the same view after reading the opinion.

Quoting the controller's letter as saying that a housing corporation was never contemplated in the framework of the constitution, Secretary Ickes insisted that the corporation was properly formed since the public works law gave the President the right to use whatever agencies he saw fit to spend the money.

ROOSEVELT MAY PRINT 3 BILLION IN GREENBACKS

Would Pay Off Part of Liberty Loan.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt is leaning toward the printing and issuance of 3 billion dollars of treasury noninterest bearing circulating notes as a part of the government's huge financing program for the next six months, it was learned today.

The notes would be used to pay off maturing issues of treasury certificates, notes, and bonds, particularly a billion dollars' worth of fourth Liberty loan called for redemption April 15. The move, therefore, would be made not later than April.

President Roosevelt has declared publicly that he does not believe such a move would be greenback inflation. He points out that his authority to issue such currency under the Thomas amendment is limited to three billion dollars, and this limit, the President feels, would prevent inflation.

To take such a move would exhaust the last of the President's powers under the Thomas amendment. It also would ease the strain on the treasury which must refund four billion dollars in maturing securities as well as borrow six billions of new money before June 30.

Whether or not the President finally decides to take the step will depend, it is believed, largely on the trend of commodity prices and his desire to effect the savings on government interest payments which would accrue from replacing interest bearing securities with the noninterest bearing circulating treasury notes.

Ninety million dollars or more a year in government interest payments could be saved by the move. Conservative members of the treasury's secretariat have told the President the move is unnecessary, however. They profess the government's ability to raise the ten billions in the next six months through regular borrowing, albeit at advancing interest charges.

Standing on the belief that as long as money manipulations are kept within announced and strict limitations there is no need to fear an inflation panic, The President, however, is still willing to order the debt repayment issue of currency if he decides it fits into his monetary plans.

RUM RUNNERS TO GET LIQUOR INTO U. S. BY SAFE LEGAL ROUTE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Word reached the government this afternoon that 161 rum running boats, concentrated off the northeast coast, had left for Belize, British Honduras, with 2,000,000 gallons of American type whisky ultimately to reach the United States through legal channels.

Officials here tacitly approved the efforts of the erstwhile liquor runners to get their cargoes into the United States through legal methods. There are expectations that some of the vessels would stop at the Bahamas islands and other points in the Caribbean and have the liquor consulated from there.

On Jan. 13 the government lifted import restrictions on American type whiskies—rye and bourbon. It was explained that this meant importers would have to have their merchandise cleared through consuls in foreign ports by Feb. 12, but the consignments did not have to reach the United States by that date.

BEGIN PICKING DEATH JURY TO TRY TOUHY GANG

Defendants Are in Court Under Heavy Guard.

statute on kidnaping for ransom to the prospective jurors and stressed the fact that the law provides for the death penalty. All those who expressed the slightest objection to capital punishment were immediately excused for cause.

Attorney Stewart made the usual technical motions intended to supply a record for an appeal from a guilty verdict.

Defendants Enter Court.

When finally at 11 a. m. there was an end to all red tape of motions to quash and motions to suppress without which no criminal trial can get under way to the satisfaction of the legal mind, in trooped the four defendants, sheepishly glancing to left and right. They were herded to their seats by a small army of deputies.

Tough Roger and Polly Nose Albert, Father Tom and Gloomy Gus, as surely a quartet of swashbucklers as ever kidnaped a defenseless victim and boldly, fearlessly, demanded ransom from a safe hiding place—though the proof of their guilt is a matter yet to be determined.

Let's take a look at these terrible Touhys—so-called. First, meet Roger Touhy, pictured as a desperate and menacing figure. He is so bold and so bad that his followers lose their identifying surnames and become known as Touhys.

Touhy's Gaze Is Furtive.

Roger has wavy hair and a habit of blinking his eyes and arching his eyebrows. He is small, not more than five feet six inches in height, and slight in figure. It may be cruel to say it of this lurid gangster, but his gaze is nothing if not furtive as he sits hunched up in his chair and rubs his chin nervously.

Behind him lurks the full-faced, melancholy Touhy gangster known as Gloomy Gus Schaefer, alias Stevens. This sad one has nothing of heroic proportions about him as he cowers from the glint of camera lenses.

Next in line is the polly-nosed one who is said not to have an affection for his nickname. It is well earned, however. He also is small and appears frightened when he hears Prosecutor Crowley mention the death penalty. He strokes his long nose and rubs the cheeks which are black even after a close shave.

Fourth of this crew is McFadden, known as Father Tom. Previous observers have affected to see a certain benignity in him which justifies his clerical nickname. It is true that Father Tom is gray haired and bespectacled, but there is a sneaking air about him which is not pleasant.

Under Vigilant Guard.

The deputies assigned to see that these men remain in custody until a jury decides whether they die in the electric chair, serve prison terms, or walk free, eye them vigilantly. But even many of the policemen in the courtroom, knowing the notoriety which has been attached to the defendants, look upon them with something like contempt. Despite their reputations they are a shabby crew.

There is something grim about this trial. The crime of kidnaping seems to arouse the ire of the citizen as no other offense. There is no humor in the prosecution or defense. There apparently will be none of the light touches which so often relieve the tedium of court hearings.

It is the crime itself which causes men's lips to set in thin lines and their eyes to grow cold.

A Prospective Juror's View.

One of the prospective jurors questioned put all this into words. He was William Jarva, 725 South Oak Park avenue, a quiet voiced man of 37 years. He was asked if he thought he could be an impartial juror in the case.

"I think I could," he said hesitantly, "except for one thing. I have a particular aversion to the crime of kidnaping."

Defense Attorney Stewart and the four defendants did not like the tone of voice in which Jarva said that.

"These men are presumed innocent," the lawyer reminded Jarva.

"I realize that," was Jarva's answer, "but some feeling might creep in against them merely because they were charged with the crime."

"You aren't just trying to get out of serving as a juror, are you?" queried the judge.

"I am not," said Jarva firmly. He was excused for cause while a sigh of relief went up from the terrible Touhys.

GUNMEN SHOOT 2 GUARDS, FREE 5 FROM PRISON

Barrow Rescues His Pal in Texas.

Houston, Tex., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—In a reckless raid on Eastham prison farm in east Texas, two gunmen, one believed to be Clyde Barrow, notorious bandit of the southwest, ambushed and shot two guards this morning and freed five convicts.

The guards were Olen Bozeman, shot in the hip, and M. H. Crowson, critically wounded in the stomach.

The convicts were Raymond Hamilton, pal of Barrow, who bragged that "Barrow won't let me stay in jail," and who was serving 263 years for various crimes ranging from automobile theft to murder; Joe Palmer, serving 25 years for robbery with firearms; Henry Methvin, ten years for assault to murder; J. B. French, 12 years for robbery; W. H. Bybee, life for murder.

Recounts Careful Sortie.

Authorities were of the opinion that Bonnie Parker, gunwoman and known as a companion of Barrow, aided in the raid.

Bozeman led 17 convicts into the woods to work in a gully on a ditch.

"I was on my horse and I had my shotgun," he said. "The first I knew of trouble brewing was when Joe Palmer began shooting at me with a .45 automatic pistol.

"I raised my gun to fire and a bullet knocked me off my horse.

"Two other convicts by that time began firing at me and at Crowson, who swung into action his 30-30 rifle.

"Those pistols must have been hidden in the ditch during the night. The men got into the thicket, found them, and as soon as they did they began firing.

Escape in Auto.

"Then two men arose from the ditch and opened fire on us. One had a machine gun, the other a .45 caliber automatic. That made five men shooting at us.

"When the first shots were fired I yelled for the convicts to lie down. Twelve of them did, promptly. The other five broke away."

A parked sedan awaited them. Away they dashed in it, while Barrow departed in a coupe. Later chance observers reported Bonnie Parker and Hamilton were in Barrow's car, while the other fugitives trailed in the sedan.

BILL PROVIDES LIFE FOR EX-CONVICTS IN U. S. KIDNAP CASES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Seeking to tighten up the federal anti-kidnaping laws, Rep. John J. Cochran [Dem., Mo.] today introduced a bill imposing maximum penalties automatically on ex-convicts found guilty of kidnaping.

Introduction of the measure represented the first effort in the new congress to stem the series of abductions which swept the country during the summer and fall.

The bill amends the present law making kidnaping a federal offense by imposing an arbitrary life sentence on any convicted kidnaper who has been previously convicted of any other crime. It likewise would impose a maximum twenty year sentence on any ex-convict found guilty of violating the federal law against sending extortion notes or threats through the mail.

Mr. Cochran was co-author of the so-called "Lindbergh" kidnaping bill passed shortly after the body of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. was found dead in a New Jersey ravine.

168,457 POLICE CALLS SENT OUT OVER THE RADIO

A report issued last night by the office of Police Commissioner Allman showed that in 1933 a total of 520,812 calls for assistance were made to the police.

Of these calls 168,457 were broadcast on the police radio system and arrests due to this broadcasting were 12,688. The city's radio broadcasters also sent out 30,636 calls that originated in the police stations of the suburbs.

The number of robberies reported during the year was 15,146 and the number of burglaries was 22,010. This was a slight decrease from 1932, when 15,933 robberies and 22,744 burglaries were reported.

NAME OF FACTOR IS BROUGHT INTO INSURANCE CASE

Benjamin Testifies on "Looting Plot."

In a session marked by heated arguments between opposing lawyers, James H. Benjamin, star witness for the state against seven men charged with conspiracy to loot the cash assets of the Security Life Insurance company, gave his testimony yesterday before a jury in Judge Benjamin Epstein's Criminal court. Attorney John H. S. Lee, partner in the firm of former Senator Charles S. Deneen, and Machir Dorsey, formerly a wealthy insurance promoter, are the main defendants.

Attorney John E. Northup in behalf of Defendant Lee brought the name of John [Jake the Barber] Factor, now appearing in the Criminal court as a witness against the Touhy gang for kidnaping him for ransom, into the evidence. The attorney said Factor and Benjamin were in a conspiracy to discredit Attorney Lee, who had assisted the British government in prosecuting Factor. The latter is now awaiting extradition to England for swindling British investors.

Conversation with Factor.

"Didn't you tell Factor that you had the goods on Lee in the Waukegan matter?" asked the defense attorney of Benjamin.

"I did not," replied the witness.

Q.—Didn't you tell Factor if he would buy $150,000 of your stock in the Panama Holding company you would give him information which would help him to discredit Lee? A.—I did not.

Q.—What did you tell Factor? A.—I told him I thought Lee should be in jail for the way he forced me to lose my land in the Waukegan deal.

Q.—Did Factor make you an offer if you would get the goods on Lee for him? A.—He did not. A broker brought Factor to my office. I had never met him before. I made no offer, nor did he.

Industrial Tract Involved.

The Waukegan property to which Benjamin referred is an industrial tract of 30 acres near Waukegan known as the Manufacturers' terminal, which was originally sold for a $140,000 mortgage by the owner, the Corn Products company. It is charged that the defendants plastered this property with $1,700,000 worth of mortgages and dumped them into the security portfolios of the Dorsey insurance companies.

Benjamin on direct examination said he had acquired title to the terminal property by a deal with a junk man named Finklestein, who had bought it from the Corn Products company. Attorney Lee acquired an interest through representing Benjamin in some litigation.

Harry Huttig, also a defendant, acquired an interest through putting up the money to clear the title of the property. Benjamin testified that he objected to a deal in January, 1929, whereby the property was sold to Charles R. Surface, who turned state's evidence and has already testified for the prosecution. When he objected to the deal Benjamin said Lee told him that he had nothing to say about the matter because his 45 per cent of the stock had been sold at an auction "on the courthouse steps in Muscatine, Ia." The price for the stock was only $1,000, Benjamin said.

E. HALDEMAN-JULIUS FILES REPLY TO WIFE'S SUIT FOR A DIVORCE

Pittsburg, Kas., Jan. 16.—(AP)—E. Haldeman-Julius, Girard, Kas., publisher and champion of companionate marriage, filed an answer today to his wife's suit for separate maintenance and judgment of $125,000.

The lengthy answer admits that Mrs. Haldeman-Julius at the time of their marriage in 1916 at Cedarville, Ill., possessed property worth $125,000 and that he possessed $2,000, but denies her charge that he paid nothing to support of the family from May 26, 1931, to March 4, 1933.

Haldeman-Julius declares he has been contributing $50 weekly to the support of Mrs. Haldeman-Julius and he denies charges of extreme cruelty.

Mrs. Haldeman-Julius is given five days to file a reply.

SEIZED AS POLICE RAID SUSPECTED AUTO RING FENCE

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Stolen, 51; recovered, 50; stripped, 4 [from police records for 24 hours ending at midnight Monday].

Joseph Marszalek, 24 years old, 4606 South California avenue, was arrested yesterday as a suspected "fence" to whom automobile strippers sold accessories when police caught him in a raid of a garage at the rear of 4340 South Fairfield avenue.

In the garage the police found $3,000 worth of stolen parts and accessories. They had been watching the place for several days after a truck had been followed to the place. When another truck drove up yesterday they closed in on the garage.

Marszalek was seized as he went out to the truck. The two men riding in it drove away. Police fired several shots at them, and broke a window in the rear of the car.

DRESSMAKERS' SUIT AGAINST SINGER DROPPED

Two allegedly snug fitting gowns made for Edith Mason, the opera singer, by her dressmakers, Jacques, Inc., 545 North Michigan avenue, ceased to be an issue at law yesterday. Attorneys for the singer and the dressmakers appeared before Municipal Judge Howard W. Hayes and announced that they had reached a settlement out of court. The suit, brought by the dressmakers, who charged that Miss Mason owed $375 for the gowns, made four years ago, was dismissed by stipulation.

Neither E. S. Hartman, attorney for Jacques, Inc., nor Elliodor Libonati, Miss Mason's attorney, would divulge the amount of the settlement, but it was understood that the amount was for considerably less than $200. Miss Mason did not appear in court yesterday.

CWA WORKER'S PAY STOLEN, HE ACCUSES FRIEND

Two CWA workers who went into a saloon at 1051 East 65th street as friends last night were taken out by the police several hours later as enemies. They are Cornelius McGinley, 40 years old, 6304 South Fairfield avenue, and Benjamin Parker, 45 years old, 1020 West 61st street. Woodlawn police were told that after they had been drinking for some time Parker went to sleep and McGinley took his pay from his pockets. A woman customer directed the bartender's attention to the theft and he pursued McGinley and recovered the money. McGinley then called the police and reported he had been robbed. When the policemen arrived they took both the CWA workers to the station and locked them up.

NEW YORK CITY DEMOCRATS END CURRY'S REIGN

Crush Tiger in Electing Alderman.

New York, Jan. 16.—[Special.]—John F. Curry lost his control over the city Democratic organization today when three insurgent political leaders combined to defeat his candidate for a Bronx seat in the board of aldermen.

Edward J. Flynn, Bronx McKee recovery leader; Kenneth F. Sutherland of Brooklyn and Edward J. Ahearn of Manhattan joined to overthrow the Tammany bloc in the board, giving Tammany one of the worst setbacks in years, and diminishing further the fading influence of Mr. Curry.

Foes Surprised at Own Power.

The three leaders brought about the election of John S. McGinley of Riverdale as alderman from the Thirty-second Bronx district. He succeeds the late Ald. Alford J. Williams. On the final roll call forty-nine aldermen voted for Mr. McGinley, while thirteen Tammany diehards refrained from voting.

Through their achievement, the three leaders demonstrated that the board of aldermen might have been organized with recovery-fusion leaders at the first of the year. Tammany men, however, were permitted to occupy the key positions, believing that they controlled a sizable majority of the votes. The sudden upset showed Tammany in a distinct minority, subject to control almost at will by the Recovery-Fusion bloc.

Member Dies on Floor.

While the struggle for control of the board was at its height, Augustus F. Pierce, who was interested in Mr. Curry's candidate, suddenly collapsed, falling into the arms of Mr. Sutherland. Apparently stricken with a heart attack, he was dead before medical aid could reach him. Mr. Pierce was assistant superintendent of final disposition in the sanitation department. He was one of the regular Bronx Democrats who stuck to Mayor John P. O'Brien in the last campaign.

The new Republican-Fusion mayor, Fiorello H. La Guardia, now stands to exercise complete control over municipal affairs. It had been feared that actions of the board of estimate, under La Guardia control, might be overthrown in the board of aldermen.

The Bronx leader, Flynn, and Postmaster General James A. Farley seek to oust Curry as Tammany leader.

DIES SUDDENLY IN STREET.

Mrs. Lura Stratford, 60 years old, 7132 Cornell avenue died suddenly of a heart attack yesterday at 71st and Halsted streets

SELLERS OF FAKE PERFUME FINED AND THEN JAILED

Two men who confessed they had duped a number of north side working girls by selling them small bottles of water as expensive perfume were each fined $150 yesterday by Judge Alfred O. Erickson in Town Hall court.

The men are Harry Simons, 52 years old, and Clyde Lovelace, 35 years old, both of 1841 South Wabash avenue. They were charged with peddling without a license and were sent to the Bridewell when they were unable to pay their fines.

Attorney Henry Ayers, representing Bourjois, Inc., perfume concern at 14 East Jackson boulevard, which was the complainant in the case, told the court that he two men filled fancy perfume bottles with water, dipped the stoppers in perfume made by the Bourjois company and sold them at $1 a bottle to unsuspecting waitresses, hairdressers, and office girls.

HACKETT POINTS OUT KIDNAPERS IN COURT DRAMA

Victim and His Associate Tell Story.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Robert Hutto, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; Beatrice Adkins, receiving stolen property, sentenced to the reformatory at Dwight, Ill., for 1 to 10 years; Earl Reach, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Grover C. Neimeyer.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

James Hackett, Blue Island gambler, stood up yesterday in the heavily guarded courtroom of Judge Thomas J. Lynch in the Criminal court and pointed out Frank Souder, Benton, Ill., gambler and sporting goods salesman, and Gail Swolley, Peoria saloonkeeper, as the men who twice kidnaped him and extorted ransoms for his freedom.

It was the first time that one of the score of members of the underworld who have been kidnaped for ransom in Chicago has gone to court and named his captors. Hackett was followed on the witness stand by his friend, Frank Carney, also a Blue Island gambler, who was with him when he was kidnaped for the second time on May 27 last year and who likewise identified Souder and Swolley.

Gang Member to Testify.

Today Julius Augustus [Babe] Jones, who was a member of the kidnaping gang and who has turned state's evidence, will give the evidence which prosecutors expect to clinch their demand that the jury sentence Souder and Swolley to death in the electric chair. Jones was involved only in the second kidnaping of Hackett in which a ransom of $1,500 was paid, and it was for this reason that the prosecutors are trying Souder and Swolley on that charge instead of for kidnaping Hackett in 1931, when he paid $75,000.

Souder, Swolley and Theodore [Handsome Jack] Klutas, the former University of Illinois student who was killed in Bellwood ten days ago by state's attorney's detectives, were alleged members of the original kidnaping gang which preyed on gamblers and other underworld characters about Chicago.

Carney testified yesterday that when Swolley suggested after they had captured Hackett last May that they blindfold their prisoner, Souder retorted: "Let the ——— look at me. I don't give a damn. I'll be knocked off in a week or so, anyhow."

Threatened by Gang.

Although it will not be so testified in the present trial, prosecutors said that Souder's expressed fear of impending death was due to the fact that Capone gangsters had announced that they intended to kill him and other members of the gang for the kidnaping of Jack Lynch, owner of a racing news service.

Hackett is a chunky, gray haired man of moderate height. He wore gold rimmed glasses and an oxford gray suit yesterday, and as he testified, frequently inserted a thumb in the armpit of his vest. Frequently he blushed when Judge Lynch spoke sharply to him for failure to answer questions directly, and he was obviously nervous.

His identification of the two defendants was very definite, however, and he made it more so on cross-examination. Attorney James M. Burke, defense counsel, objected frequently during Hackett's direct testimony, and this appeared to rattle the gambler and cause him to forget details of conversation with his captors. But when Attorney Burke climaxed a series of questions regarding his identification with the query, "are you sure these are the fellows," Hackett retorted in a firm voice, "absolutely sure."

Hackett, in a hoarse, low voice, related the details of his kidnaping under the questioning of Assistant State's Attorney Emmet Moynihan. He chewed constantly as he sat in the witness chair. The examination follows:

Q.—Do you see the men in court who on May 27, 1933, kidnaped you? A.—Yes, that is Frank Souder sitting in front and Gail Swolley in the rear. [Hackett stood up to point his finger at each of the men.]

Q.—What was said to you when the men came to your machine? A.—Souder said, "This is going to cost you fifty grand. [$50,000.] This is a snatch [kidnaping]."

Souder Drives Car.

Q.—After that, what happened? A.—Souder drove my car. We drove to a spot at 123d street and there they took me out of my car and put me in their car. They then said that they would let Frank Carney, my companion, go, but that I had to come along.

Q.—What happened after that? A.—That fellow on the outside [pointing to Swolley] said to Carney, "If I were you, I would keep my hands out of this." After that we got into their car and I was told "get down on the floor, you so-and-so. After a while the car slowed up and another man got in the car, but I could not see him, because by this time they had put a bag over my head.

Hackett obviously was leaving out many details of conversation and Prosecutor Moynihan showed he was exasperated with him. The questioning continued as follows:

Q.—Was there any conversation at that time, and what was said, and by whom? A.—Yes, a lot of conversation. I was lying on the floor of the car all the time.

Q.—Well, tell us what was said, or what occurred next. A.—They stayed in a garage until 8:30 that night. Then I was driven to Wolf road and 22d street and let out. A fellow in a uniform gave me a ride into one of the suburbs and then I took a taxi home.

Q.—While you were in the garage was anything said, and if so, what and by whom? A.—There was an enormous amount of questions asked of me.

Q.—Did the driver of the automobile talk to you on the way back to where they let you go at Wolf road? A.—Yes, the man said he was trying to raise enough money to start a brewery, and that was why he was in the kidnaping racket.

$10,000 Ransom Discussed.

Q.—What did they say to you in the garage? A.—They talked about me giving them $10,000.

Q.—I asked what was said. A.—They asked me if I would dig up $10,000 and meet them on the road. I told them I didn't believe I could dig up that much money, but if they would let me go I would try. They then took a vote—and agreed to let me go. I was given instruction to leave my home on Thursday and to pick up route 64 and drive until I was stopped. I drove to Sycamore.

Hackett at this point stopped and the prosecutor had to prod him to go on with his story. He then continued:

"Another car drove up and a man [Jones, who has turned state's evidence] said, 'I'm the fellow you are to meet.' I told him he would be disappointed in the money, because all I could give was $1,500. I said my wife sold a $1,000 bond and I borrowed $500 from a priest in order to make the payment. I said my wife was trying to pawn the piano to get more money.

"This fellow Jones then asked me if I wanted some of the money back, and I told him I did not—all I wanted was to be let alone."

Q.—When was the next time you saw the men? A.—In a hotel, south side. I saw both of them, Souder and Swolley. Souder was sitting in a corner and I said: "That is one of the men who kidnaped me." [This was after the two were captured by the police].

Q.—Tell us what Souder said, and what you said. A.—I asked him why they took me and he did not answer. I told him to stand up so I could get a good look at him, and I wanted to hear his voice. I said, "Yes, you're the fellow who grabbed me twice." He said, "I don't know what you're talking about." I said, "Why in hell didn't you leave me alone? Why did you grab me a second time?"

At this point James M. Burke, defense attorney, made an objection and the jury was sent out of the room. The defense attorney contended that the state could not bring in anything about the first kidnaping, nor could it relate conversations between Hackett and Souder.

Part of Story Omitted.

Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan, however, contended that Souder's reply was in the form of a constructive admission, and therefore could be told to the jury. The judge ruled with the state. During the argument Coghlan charged that Hackett was leaving out many of the details.

"He has just left out about three-fifths of his story," said Coghlan. "I know two or three attempts were made by representatives of the kidnapers to contact him."

On cross-examination Attorney Burke went at length into Hackett's gambling activities, quizzing him as to the names of his partners and bringing forth the admission that Hackett had operated gambling houses until recently for the last seven or eight years and had operated slot machines at intervals for twenty years. Attorney Burke also brought out the fact that Hackett had reported his kidnaping to no public officials. The kidnapers were caught by Pat Roche, private detective and former chief investigator for the state's attorney.

Motorist Flees, Leaving Woman Unconscious.

Edward McIntyre, 11 years old, 349 Park avenue, Glencoe, son of John McIntyre, a janitor at a Glencoe school, was killed yesterday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile while he was riding his bicycle in Temple court near Vernon avenue in Glencoe. The driver of the automobile, James A. McClory, 21 years old, 245 North Second street, Highland Park, was held by Glencoe police pending the inquest today. He said the setting sun was in his eyes and he did not see the boy until his car had run him down.

An unidentified woman, about 30 years old, and a 4 year old boy believed to be her son were struck and seriously injured last night by the automobile of a hit and run driver which ran them down while they were crossing the street at Logan and Sacramento boulevards. They were taken unconscious to the St. Elizabeth hospital. The boy regained consciousness long enough at the hospital to say his name is Edward Wall and his father is a newspaper pressmen.

Three Other Fatalities.

Three other victims yesterday brought to 67, the number of automobile deaths in Cook county since Jan. 1. They were:

Samuel Stewart, 54 years old, 4453 Vincennes avenue. Died at Provident hospital of injuries incurred when he was struck by an automobile at 61st street and Indiana avenue.

Mrs. Jean Edwards, 22 years old, 2151 Jackson boulevard. Died at the County hospital after being struck at Jackson boulevard and South Oakley avenue by an automobile driven by William Brady, 45 years old, 1628 North Central Park avenue.

Edward Marel, 52 years old, colored, 5223 South State street. Struck at South State and 57th streets by a truck driven by Robert Jochetz, 43 years old, 731 23d street, Detroit.

Jail sentences and fines were imposed yesterday by Judge Nuncio J. Bonelli in the Traffic court on two motorists whose cars figured in collisions with other automobiles.

Gets 60 Days and Fine.

Benjamin Wenetzky, 44 years old, 6309 Dempster street, Morton Grove, a junk dealer, was sentenced to 60 days in the House of Correction and fined $200 and costs. He was arrested Dec. 7, 1933, after a collision between his car and that of Paul W. Sherman, 4526 North Spaulding avenue, near the latter's home. Wenetzky left the scene of the accident and was arrested in his home.

Leonard Grieger, 28 years old, 2406 McLean avenue, a mechanic, was sentenced to serve 30 days in the House of Correction and pay a fine of $100 and costs. He was arrested Dec. 22, 1933, after his car had collided with one driven by Frank Sustek, 4148 West 26th street, at Milwaukee and Crawford avenues.

FIND ELGIN MAN MURDER VICTIM IN MISSISSIPPI

Gulfport, Miss., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—C. M. Roefer, 42 years old, former student at the University of Illinois and resident of Elgin, Ill., was beaten into insensibility by blows on the head and then strangled to death, a coroner's jury decided today. His body was found in a rooming house here Sunday.

Roefer had lived in Mississippi for the last three years on land he owned near Gulfport. He was formerly employed as a lecturer by the Portland Cement association and lectured in many colleges on the science of pottery. His brother, Henry A. Roefer, 273 South Kenilworth avenue, Elmhurst, Ill., asserted he knew of no reason why any one should have killed him and announced that members of his family had retained Attorney Perry D. Wells of Elgin, Ill., to investigate the case.

DRUG STORE ROBBED.

Two armed bandits yesterday visited the drug store owned by Robert Nitzberg at 5200 West Harrison street for the second time in a month and escaped with $65, ten cartons of cigarets and a book of money order blanks from the sub-postal station in the store.

DAY'S TESTIMONY IN MURDER TRIAL OF DR. WYNEKOOP

Witness by Witness Story of the Evidence.

Miss Enid Hennessey, the prim, middle aged high school teacher, who for ten years was a boarder in the Wynekoop home, 3406 Monroe street, resumed the witness stand as the morning session of the trial of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop opened yesterday. She wore the same clothing in which she appeared on Monday. After handing her coat to a bailiff, she settled herself in the witness chair, straightened her flower banded hat and the crocheted collar of her tan dress, and awaited the questions of Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty.

Recalling Nov. 21, the night of the murder, the prosecutor asked the witness what telephone calls Dr. Wynekoop had made after notifying her that Rheta lay dead on the operating table in the doctor's basement office suite. Miss Hennessey, compressing her lips in an effort of remembrance, said that Dr. Wynekoop telephoned for Thomas Ahern, the undertaker, and a Dr. Berger. The questions and answers follow:

Q.—When the undertaker arrived what did you do? A.—Went downstairs with the others.

Q.—Were the lights on in the basement? A.—I think so. Anyway, they could be turned on from the first floor.

Describes Rheta's Position.

Q.—What did you first notice when you went down? A.—The body of Rheta.

Q.—Tell what you saw. A.—Rheta's body was lying on the operating table. [The witness, sitting very straight, inclined her head to the left and put her chin on her chest.] She was lying like this.

Miss Hennessey's voice was calm. She gave her testimony in the manner of a surgeon describing an operation.

Q.—What else did you see? A.—There was a blanket, folded once the long way. It was not wrapped tightly about the body.

Q.—Could you see anything else? A.—Not at that time but while I was standing there Dr. Wynekoop walked up and raised the blanket so that we could see the bullet wound in the back.

Q.—Where was the wound? A.—It was about here. [The witness rose to her feet and turned so that her back faced the jury. She used her right hand to point out a spot a few inches to the left of the center of her back].

A Few Drops of Blood.

Q.—Did you observe any blood? A.—I saw a few drops on the floor.

Q.—See any other blood? A.—I saw no other blood.

At this point Dr. Wynekoop, who had been sitting relaxed in her chair beside the counsel table in front of the bench, pulled herself to an erect position. She leaned toward Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, her daughter, and they exchanged a few words.

In swift questions Prosecutor Dougherty drew from Miss Hennessey the story of the arrival of police squads in response to Undertaker Ahern's call and of the confusion in the Wynekoop household as the detectives searched the premises.

Finally she identified a number of photographs of Dr. Wynekoop's basement office and operating room which had been taken by the police on the evening of the slaying. She said they were substantially correct.

THE CROSS-EXAMINATION

The cross-examination was then taken up by the defense attorneys, Milton Smith and W. W. Smith. As they began Judge Joseph B. David interrupted to question a photographer who had leveled a huge camera at Dr. Wynekoop and her daughter.

"What's that?" asked the judge.

"Big Bertha," responded the photographer. "It brings them up close."

"It's not a movie camera?" asked the judge. The photographer shook his head and was allowed to complete his picture taking.

In questioning Miss Hennessey the defense carefully brought out that the drawers in the medicine cabinet in the operating room were found open and apparently had been rifled when the murder was discovered. Miss Hennessey also asserted that she never heard Dr. Wynekoop or Rheta quarrel.

Tells of Phone Conversation.

Miss Hennessey said she sat at the supper table while Dr. Wynekoop telephoned to Mrs. Veronica Duncan, a next door neighbor, to ask about Rheta, whose absence from the meal had "concerned" the physician. While sitting at the table, Miss Hennessey testified, she had heard Mrs. Duncan's replies to Dr. Wynekoop's questions during the telephone conversation.

"She (Mrs. Duncan) said that she had met Rheta and that Rheta had told her she was going downtown to buy sheet music," the witness said.

Later, on rebuttal examination by Prosecutor Dougherty, Miss Hennessey stubbornly insisted that she had heard Mrs. Duncan's voice and that the conversation as she reported it had actually taken place.

MRS. DUNCAN ON STAND

Miss Hennessey was excused and Mrs. Duncan was summoned to the witness stand. A pretty brunette with slim figure, she was modishly dressed in a tweed skirt and a brown wool jacket. She wore a dark brown felt hat, wide brimmed and shallow-crowned.

Under questioning by Prosecutor Dougherty, Mrs. Duncan testified that she had known both Dr. Wynekoop and Rheta for 18 months while she lived in the house at 3408 Monroe street which adjoins the Wynekoop home at 3406 Monroe street. She said Dr. Wynekoop telephoned her shortly before noon the day of the murder asking her to step out on the porch.

Dr. Wynekoop, she testified, asked her what she was doing that afternoon. Mrs. Duncan replied that she wanted to take a walk because the day was pleasant and she suggested that Rheta should accompany her. Dr. Wynekoop objected to the plan, saying Rheta would be busy at home because Dr. Wynekoop planned to go down town.

Meets Rheta on Market Trip.

Later that afternoon, Mrs. Duncan continued, she went to market, leaving her home about 3 p. m. She met Rheta returning from the market, she said, and had a conversation with her.

"What did you say to her?" asked Prosecutor Dougherty.

Judge David halted the witness before she could answer to allow the defense to make an objection, but none was forthcoming. Dr. Wynekoop leaned forward to speak with her attorneys, but they waved the witness to answer.

Mrs. Duncan then replied: "I told her I'd asked Dr. Wynekoop to let her go for a walk. Rheta said the doctor was going downtown and that she'd have to stay home. I told her to call me if the doctor got back home soon enough and we still would go walking."

Q.—Did Dr. Wynekoop call you later in the day? A.—Yes. At about 6:45 or 7 o'clock in the evening. She asked me if Rheta was at my home and I said no. I told the doctor of my meeting with Rheta. The doctor then told me that Rheta had preferred to go to the loop to buy sheet music instead of going for a walk.

Q.—Who said that last remark? Was it you or Dr. Wynekoop? A.—It was the doctor who told me that over the telephone.

QUESTIONED BY DEFENSE

Mrs. Duncan was then cross examined by Attorney W. W. Smith. She said that she had been in the Wynekoop home on only a few occasions.

Q.—Did you see how Mrs. Wynekoop treated Rheta?

Before there could be an answer Prosecutor Dougherty objected and Judge David exploded into words, shouting:

"Gentlemen, gentlemen, you know that this is improper cross examination. You must know that. What would be competent on direct examination is not at all proper on cross."

W. W. SMITH—I object to the remarks of the court.

JUDGE DAVID—It will be noted, but the state's objection will be sustained.

W. W. SMITH—I move that the court's remarks be withdrawn from the record.

JUDGE DAVID [shouting]—No. The remarks will stay. Proceed.

Produce Inquest Testimony.

The defense lawyers then produced a transcript of testimony given at the inquest into Rheta's death. They read Mrs. Duncan's testimony in which she failed to say that in talking with Rheta she had mentioned her previous conversation with Dr. Wynekoop on the porch.

There was an objection by Prosecutor Dougherty. All the lawyers jumped to their feet. From the defense there were cries of: "The witness has impeached herself." Mr. Dougherty argued that the omission of certain facts from testimony does not constitute impeachment.

Mrs. Duncan sat quietly watching the scene. She frowned slightly as if uncertain of the meaning of the affair.

Judge David finally ruled that Mrs. Duncan might say whether she had testified at the inquest as the transcript showed she had. Mrs. Duncan said she had so testified. There was no further talk of impeachment.

Appears a Willing Witness.

Mrs. Duncan answered the questions of the defense as readily and apparently as willingly as those of the state. She was questioned about the telephone conversation with Dr. Wynekoop and related again and again the story she had told to Prosecutor Dougherty.

She was excused after Judge David informed her that the defense might want her to testify again. She agreed to hold herself in readiness to return to court.

THE AFTERNOON SESSION

Policeman Arthur R. March was the first witness as the afternoon session began at 1:30 o'clock. Clad in the conventional "off duty" blue, March was a typical police witness, dogged in his persistence at details and speaking in the deliberate manner of those accustomed to the witness stand.

Prosecutor Dougherty questioned the witness who said he was on duty in a squad car and received a radio command to proceed to the Wynekoop home on the night of Nov. 21.

Q.—Whom did you first see there? A.—Miss Hennessey let me in.

Q.—Who was with you? A.—Policemen Kelly and Carroll.

Q.—Where did you go? A.—To the first floor where we saw Dr. Wynekoop, Dr. Berger, and Mr. Ahern.

Q.—Then where did you go? A.—Downstairs to the basement and to an operating room.

Q.—What did you first see there? A.—The body of a young lady lying on an operating table.

Position of Rheta's Body.

Then followed in meticulous detail the familiar story of the position of Rheta's slight body upon the table, the pillow beneath her head and beside it the .32 caliber Smith & Wesson revolver, covered by a cloth.

Q.—Did you examine the body? A.—Yes, I found a wound in the back.

Q.—You saw Rheta Wynekoop's face and mouth. Did you notice anything unusual about them? A.—The mouth was open and blood was flowing from it. There was a towel underneath her mouth. I smelled it, but could detect no odor.

Q.—Did you notice any clothing about? Yes, adjacent to the table there were several pieces of clothing and the shoes were about two feet away. A brown skirt and sweater lay near the table.

Q.—Before the body was removed to the undertaking establishment, did you touch it? A.—Yes, when I came in.

Q.—What did your sense of touch reveal? A.—That rigor mortis had set in.

Defense Makes Objections.

Objections exploded from the defense attorneys, but Judge David outshouted them.

"You're not a physician," the judge told the witness. March corrected his answer; he had noticed a "stiffening" of the limbs, he said.

Prosecutor Dougherty had the policeman step from the stand and point to the location of the operating room on the large chart of the Wynekoop house, which stood in court. Then Dougherty took up a chloroform bottle.

Q.—Did you see a bottle in the operating room? A.—I paid no attention to that until Dr. Wynekoop called my attention to it. Then I saw one on the wash stand.

Q.—Is this the same bottle? A.—Yes.

THE OPERATING TABLE

"Now, your honor," said Mr. Dougherty, turning to Judge David, "I would like to have the operating table brought in." Again a chorus of protests came from defense counsel. The judge overruled them.

A moment later the long, black table was wheeled into court and placed directly in front of the jury box. The audience arose en masse, striving to see better.

"Keep your seats or get out!" roared the judge. The spectators sank back.

Mr. Dougherty retreated to the end of the jury box, some distance from the witness stand. From this point of vantage came his next question to Policeman March.

Q.—Is this the table on which the body of Rheta Wynekoop was found?

ATTORNEY MILTON SMITH—Object, your honor. This has all been gone over before. Furthermore, the table is not in the same condition as it was.

JUDGE DAVID—What is the difference in the table now?

MR. SMITH—A piece of leather has been removed.

This was the piece which was stained with blood. It dangled in Mr. Dougherty's hand. The defense objection was overruled and Mr. Dougherty dictated a lengthy description of the table to the court stenographer.

Questioned About Pillow.

Then from a bulky, brown paper covered bundle resting on the counsel table Prosecutor Dougherty drew a leather pillow and turned again to Policeman March.

Q.—Did you see this pillow? A.—Yes, on the table.

Q.—Where? A.—At the head, it was underneath another pillow.

Q.—Did you see this piece of leather, too? [Mr. Dougherty displayed the leather he held in his hand.] A.—Yes, it was a part of the operating table.

The witness explained that a stain was upon it which had been identified as blood by Dr. Clarence Muehlberger, chemist at the Northwestern university crime detection laboratory.

Q.—Was there any blood on the body? A.—Yes, underneath the wound.

March explained that one of Rheta's undergarments had been pushed down below the wound. Then Mr. Dougherty picked up the dark skirt and sweater which Rheta wore the day of her death.

March left the stand and put the garments at the foot of the table. The defense objected and was overruled. The jurors arose in their chairs to look over the rail of the jury box at the garments. Policeman March put the shoes near the clothing. "They were there," he explained.

BATTLE OVER THE SLIP

Then Prosecutor Dougherty picked up a stained slip that had been worn by Rheta and the jury was excused while he sought to get it into evidence. This was a long legal battle and all the lawyers spoke freely because the jury was beyond hearing. Dougherty said he wanted to show that Rheta came to her death from shock and hemorrhage, so that the amount of blood which flowed from her body was important. He mentioned Dr. Wynekoop's "confession," in which she claimed that Rheta died during a physical examination and that she [Dr. Wynekoop] then fired a bullet into the body to simulate a robbery.

"We propose to refute that," said Attorney Milton Smith. He asserted that showing the bloodstained slip to the jury might inflame the jurors. "There isn't a thing to be gained by it," he declared.

"If there was anything inflammatory, the court would promptly stop it," Judge David promised. He ordered the garment admitted into evidence.

Jury Is Called Back.

The jury was recalled. Prosecutor Dougherty once more took up the slip. Dangling it from the shoulder straps, he advanced from the counsel table and handed it to Policeman March.

Q.—I show you this slip and ask you if you have ever seen it before? A.—Yes, I've seen it. It was on the body of Rheta Wynekoop the night of Nov. 21, in the basement of the home.

The witness said that the slip had been pulled down from the shoulders of the dead girl and folded around her waist. March stood up to indicate its position by holding his hands against his own body.

Quickly then the prosecutor took two bed sheets from the brown bundle on the counsel table. One of these, March said, was lying on the operating table beneath Rheta and one of them was over her and beneath the blanket that covered the body.

The sheets were left folded.

Then a pillow, a pillow case, and a brown figured blanket were identified by March as those found beneath Rheta's head and over her body. The audience buzzed, and although its members did not rise, they craned their necks trying to see.

Cloth That Covered Gun.

Next Prosecutor Dougherty produced a small square of white cloth. This cloth, Policeman March said, was over the revolver which lay against the pillow. The policeman stolidly stepped from the witness stand and arranged the pillow, the cloth, and the revolver which the prosecutor handed him, so that the jury could see just how they were found.

The jurors once more arose and blinked solemnly at the exhibit. As they did so Dr. Wynekoop, who had been sitting straight in her chair, relaxed weakly and looked away from the operating table.

PROSECUTOR'S STRATEGY

Prosecutor Dougherty then asked March if he had seen all these articles in the state's attorney's office in company with the defense attorneys. Instantly the defense raised objections.

"O, well, if that's the case I'll go over each one separately," said Mr. Dougherty. "I only want to show that they were in the same condition then that they were when the policeman first saw them."

He grasped one of the sheets and threw it open in front of the jury. The jurors shrank back. The audience gasped. Exposed in the center of the sheet was a four foot circle of dried stains.

The defense lawyers who had jumped to their feet sank slowly back in their chairs. They withdrew their objections and the questioning continued. Dr. Wynekoop appeared unmoved by the sight.

Gun Offered in Evidence.

The nickel plated revolver with which Rheta was killed and its cartridges were then offered in evidence. Policeman March said there were three exploded shells and three "good" cartridges in the gun when he first saw it. He said that he got other cartridges from the drawer of the desk in Dr. Wynekoop's office adjoining the operating room.

"She pointed them out to me," he said. "They were behind a bigger box in which she said she kept currency and stamps."

Dr. Wynekoop tapped her daughter, Dr. Catherine, on the shoulder and said a few words. Then she raised her veil and leaned back in her chair. Her daughter rummaged in a leather case and handed over a small white capsule. Dr. Wynekoop swallowed it and took a sip of water. The prosecutor continued with the questioning of Policeman March.

Ownership of the Gun.

Q.—Did you have a conversation with Dr. Wynekoop in regard to the ownership of the gun? A.—Yes. Down in her office. I asked her who the revolver belonged to and she said it belonged in the home. She said she got it from her son Earle.

Q.—Did she say when? A.—Yes. She said she got it a short time before he went away. [Earle left Nov. 1 on a trip to Colorado to take photographs of the Grand cañon, but got only as far as Kansas City and returned to Chicago a week after his departure.]

Q.—Where did she keep the gun?

Notes of the Wynekoop Trial

Walker Wynekoop, elder son of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, who sat in court throughout Monday's session of his mother's trial, was excluded yesterday with other witnesses. Walker appeared pallid, his eyes bloodshot, in contrast to his sister, Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, who appeared freshly coiffed and groomed. She took off her hat, revealing her naturally curly red hair.

Judge David halted the morning session promptly at 12:15 and announced that court would have to adjourn for noon recess. "Otherwise," he remarked with a glance of solicitude at the jury, "the jurors may not get first pickings." The jury eats in the dining rooms reserved for juries; the state's attorney and judges in the jail building. The food is not the same as that given to jail prisoners.

Bailiffs, who during the noon recess were keeping rear doors to the courtroom closed against a crowd of women, for a time refused to let in Bailiff Dave Eichner, who had the jury in tow. After pounding on the door in vain, Eichner shouted in stentorian tones: "Let me in; I've got the jury out here." Meanwhile the pushing crewd of women scrutinized the jurors closely.

Defense Attorney W. W. Smith also had difficulty getting in the courtroom after lunch. Denied entrance at one door, he went around to another, where he had better luck.

Judge David rivaled Dr. Alice Wynekoop in the wide variety of expressions which played over his face. From scowling and saying crossly to defense attorneys: "Now, you gentlemen know that's not proper cross-examination," he turned smilingly to the pretty witness, Mrs. Veronica Duncan. He listened with an indulgent smile when she spoke of "the murder," then said in dulcet tones: "Strike out the word 'murder.'" Mrs. Duncan hung her head and said, "I'm sorry," and the judge beamed at her even more tenderly.

Dr. Alice Wynekoop's newly acquired elegance was somewhat marred when strands of the large knot of hair showing beneath her hat brim at the nape of her neck escaped from hairpins and scraggled over her collar.

Mrs. J. C. Dasso, 6401 West 18th street, Barwyn, one of the occupants of the front row, said it was difficult for her to believe Dr. Wynekoop could have killed Rheta. "She's not the type," Mrs. Dasso said. She added with pride that she herself is the niece of Deputy Sheriff Paul Dasso. It was her second day at the trial.

Among the 18 women seated in the first row of the courtroom spectators were two men, Nicholas Thibeau of 6728 South Peoria street, and Thomas J. Grady of 1054 West 55th street.

Mrs. Lillian Slaski, 3004 Cullerton street, declared with such vigor that the white plume on her black hat trembled: "I think Dr. Wynekoop's guilty and the chair's too good for her. She should spend the rest of her life in prison."

Another woman in the front row was Mrs. Stella Ginter, wife of a deputy sheriff on guard at one of the courtroom doors.

"Well, judge," is Defense Attorney W. W. Smith's most customary way of addressing Judge David. The words, "Your honor," are infrequently heard. Judge David, scrupulous about legal points, appears not to concern himself about such informality, however.

During a recess Dr. Catherine Wynekoop leaned over the counsel table and peered at some photographs on the prosecution side of the table. Assistant State's Attorney Martin Ward asked her to refrain. "I'll look at them if they're face up, I'll tell you that," snapped the red haired Catherine. Mr. Ward turned the photographs face downward and Dr. Catherine glanced away.

ENDS TESTIMONY

MISS ENID HENNESSEY.

A.—She said she kept it in the top drawer of her roll top desk. [The witness stepped down from the stand and pointed out the position of the desk on the chart of the basement rooms.]

Prosecutor Dougherty produced the photograph of the desk which had been introduced earlier in the day. The policeman said that Dr. Wynekoop had told him she kept the gun in the drawer which was shown as open in the picture.

Q.—How far must the drawer be open before a person could get access to where she says the gun was kept? A.—It would have to be open at least another six or seven inches.

Q.—What time was this conversation? A.—About fifteen minutes after we arrived.

Q.—In what condition was the drawer? A.—It didn't seem to be disarranged.

Q.—Was there any conversation about the bullets? A.—Yes, she said that Earle had bought the bullets for her.

Mr. Dougherty then offered the state exhibits—all the clothing, sheets, blanket, towels, gun, and cartridges—in evidence. The defense attorneys raised objections.

"Is there anything further than you have already indicated to the court to support your objection?" asked Judge David.

There was no answer to his question and he announced that the exhibits were accepted.

DEFENSE QUIZZES MARCH

Attorney Milton Smith began the cross-examination of Policeman March, asking the witness what he meant when he said that there was "something" on a chair near the doorway to the operating room when he first entered. March pondered, then said he thought the green smock was on the chair. The defense attorney turned on him triumphantly.

Q.—But you already testified that all the clothing was on the floor or on the operating table. Now where was the smock, on the chair or on the floor? A.—[After a moment] I believe the smock was on the chair.

Q.—Well, aren't you sure?

JUDGE DAVID—Here, here, we'll have no arguing with the witness. He says he made a mistake.

ATTORNEY SMITH—He said no such thing—

JUDGE DAVID—[shouting again] Well, he says it now—

ATTORNEY SMITH [also shouting]—I'd like the record to show that it was your honor who said the mistake had been made.

Attorney Smith turned again to the witness and put the same question. The policeman replied that he believed the smock was on the operating table and there was nothing that he could recall on the chair.

Defense Continues Attack.

There was a long pause while the defense lawyers whispered together and rustled their notes. Then Attorney Smith returned to the attack.

A.—What did you mean when you said there were no signs of disorder in that room [emphasizing the word "that"] when you were talking of Dr. Wynekoop's office? A.—Well, I meant that I didn't see any sign of disorder except the drawer in her desk being pulled out.

Q.—Don't you call that disorder? A.—Well, I didn't think it disorder till Dr. Wynekoop called my attention to it. I didn't think it disordered then.

Q.—Did you see the choloroform bottle when you first walked in the room? A.—No I didn't.

Q.—When did you see it? A.—Not till Dr. Wynekoop picked it up.

Q.—Could you tell if there was chloroform in it? A.—I smelled something.

JUDGE DAVID—How could you know? Are you a chemist?

Policeman March grinned, saying that he had smelled some fumes, but he didn't know whether they were chloroform or not.

Q.—Did the towel at Rheta's mouth have any odor? A.—No, I didn't smell any.

Q.—You're quite sure about that? A.—Very sure.

ment—for no corpse could bleed as this girl did."

The jury was excluded from the courtroom during the argument over this evidence. Dr. Alice Wynekoop, her fluttering heart stimulated by the administrations of digitalis and spirits of ammonia, was following the argument closely.

"It's horrible," she muttered to a bailiff. "They have no right to drag in such things. I've heard enough of the rules of evidence to know they can't bring in evidence about a body which I, the defendant, did not see."

Deaf to Catherine's Plea.

Dr. Catherine urged her mother to hush, but the indomitable doctor was determined to state her position to the interested bailiff and to reporters, who were now crowding around. The judge was occupied with arguments over the admissibility of the evidence, and the jury was still out.

"You know, I never saw Rheta's body after death," Dr. Wynekoop confided. "I don't care what they say—I only went to the door, saw the blanketed form, and went out. You know, we doctors are instructed never to touch a body under such circumstances. I might have been impelled by sympathy, I suppose, but I remembered the rules."

Dr. Catherine, following her mother's story, which rambled on to the point of contradiction, again urged her to be still. The argument before the judge was growing warm, the admissibility of Dr. Wynekoop's "confession" was at issue, and the judge was showing a disposition to admit it when the time came.

Clash Over Statement.

Attorney Milton Smith had brought up the question.

"So you think you can get away with introducing that statement," Smith scoffed at Prosecutor Dougherty. "You'll uphold the part that says our client fired a gun and use this evidence [the stained clothing] to refute the part that says the girl was dead. You can't do it."

"And why not?" broke in Judge David. "Why can't he introduce the statement as a whole, tell the circumstances under which it was obtained, and then leave you to show its inadmissibility if you will? I can see no objection to that."

Mr. Smith returned to his objections against the operating room exhibits. Dougherty stood by passively, while Smith argued with the judge. The defense was overruled on every point.

Jury Is Called Back.

The jury was recalled. Policeman March, almost forgotten in the flurry, was still on the witness stand. Mr. Dougherty, by a smart piece of strategy, provoked the defense to an objection, then turned the tables, to the discomfiture of his adversaries.

The prosecutor had picked up a bed sheet, carefully folded eight times. He handed it to the witness and asked him what had been its disposition after removal from Dr. Wynekoop's operating room. The policeman said he had taken it to Clarence Muehlberger, coroner's chemist.

"And did you see it afterwards?" Dougherty asked.

"Object," shouted Attorney Smith, scenting a trap, but not perceiving where the trap lay.

Prosecutor Springs Trap.

"All right," said Dougherty with alacrity. "I was only trying to have the witness tell whether the sheet was in the same condition the second time he saw it as it was when he took it from Dr. Wynekoop's operating room. But as long as you object, may the witness look at this?"

With these words Dougherty dramatically unfolded the sheet, disclosing a huge brownish stain which, the prosecutor proposes later to show, was Rheta's blood. Milton Smith and his associate, W. W. Smith, leaped to their feet, almost shrieking their objections. Dougherty refolded the sheet, and the introduction of exhibits went on.

It was the prosecutor's intention, he explained, to have the policeman show just where Rheta's garments lay when, in response to a radio alarm, March went to the Wynekoop home at 3406 Monroe street on the evening of last Nov. 21, the day of Rheta's death.

Policeman Places Garments.

Policeman March stepped down from the witness box. Again there were ineffectual objections by the defense as, one by one, the policeman picked up Rheta's skirt, sweater, girdle, and bloomers, and laid them in a heap at the foot of the operating table, with her shoes placed neatly on either side of the pile.

In the minds of the craning spectators the effect left nothing to be desired. There was no effigy in court, and the body of Rheta Wynekoop lay far away in a grave at Indianapolis, but it was easy to imagine the owner of those dainty garments and empty shoes lying dead on the operating table as March had described her.

The policeman was still on the stand when court adjourned for the day. He will resume the stand this morning for cross-examination.

Miss Enid Hennessey, the zoölogy teacher who lodged at the Wynekoop home, and Mrs. Veronica Duncan, next door neighbor of the Wynekoops, were the morning witnesses. Mrs. Duncan was the last person except the actual slayer to see Rheta alive.

CLASH OF BAILIFFS CAUSES COMMOTION AT WYNEKOOP TRIAL

A feud between Chief Bailiff James Z. Gabriel of the Criminal court and Judge Joseph B. David's personal bailiff, David Eichner, came to a head during noon recess of the Wynekoop trial yesterday and enlivened the opening of the afternoon session. Gabriel and Eichner had been at odds over which should have precedence in admitting their respective women friends to court to view the trial.

Apparently defeated in the contest, Chief Bailiff Gabriel in a pique during luncheon ordered Capt. Patrick Kelliher of the Criminal court police detail to withdraw the dozen men he had stationed around Judge David's court to exclude the clamorous crowd. As a result of his order, 500 persons jammed the corridors when the recess ended, blocking every door to the exclusion of attorneys, friends of the Wynekoops, and even witnesses.

Court resumed nearly fifteen minutes late and Judge David fumed. Pacing up and down the platform behind the bench, he roared for his bailiff, Eichner, to produce in court any one sharing responsibility for the crush. Sheriff William Meyering, Capt. Kelliher, and the sergeant in charge of the withdrawn detail came in, crestfallen.

"I'm running this court, not Mr. Gabriel," the judge shouted. "I want that police detail restored. Mr. Eichner is my sergeant in this matter, and you police can take your orders from him."

The sheriff, Capt. Kelliher and the police sergeant withdrew, and there was no further disturbance through the afternoon.

WYNEKOOP CASE DEFENSE PLANS SUICIDE THEORY

Defense attorneys in the Wynekoop murder case will contend that Rheta Wynekoop could have shot herself in the back and then lain down on the operating table where her body was found. This was revealed yesterday by Attorney Milton Smith.

The defense attorney said that this theory was one of many that the defense intends to take before the jury to cast doubt on the state case, which is supported by circumstantial evidence.

"I'm not saying that Rheta came to her death in this manner, but it was quite possible," Attorney Smith said. "We have reënacted the scene and find that she could have shot herself and then could have lain down on the operating table with a chloroform saturated cloth over her mouth."

Porters Refused Writ Against Pullman 'Union'

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday dismissed for want of equity a suit filed more than a year ago on behalf of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters seeking to restrain the Pullman company from forcing members of the union to join a company union. Judge Woodward ruled that the arrangements between the company and its employés does not constitute a company union and is not in violation of the railway labor act.

Vandals Wreck Church; Blame Mine Troubles.

Benton, Ill., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Vandals wrecked the interior of the Church of God at Pershing last night. Windows were broken out, a piano destroyed, the stove broken, and seats were torn up. Song books and a Bible were burned. Officers attributed the acts to dissension between rival mine unions.

GUARD MAE WEST AS SHE TESTIFIES AT ROBBERY TRIAL

Tells Fear of Broken Nose and Loss of Teeth.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Mae West, movie siren, was more concerned with the horrors of a broken nose and a possible loss of a screen contract than with the $3,400 in cash and the $12,000 in jewelry she gave up when a robber held her up Sept. 28, 1932.

Testifying today in the trial of Edward Friedman, who is charged with the robbery, the actress said she could earn back the money, but a "new face" was something else again.

Fortunately, the holdup man did not injure her, although she said he was nervous and, "I don't know whether he was going to hit me in the face and break my nose and knock a couple of teeth out, or not."

Miss West was robbed while sitting in the automobile of Harry Voller, now fighting extradition from Illinois as a defendant in the case.

A squad of detectives closely guarded the actress in court because of threats of an unidentified man over the telephone that there would be trouble if she testified in Friedman's trial.

She told the jury that the robber pointed a revolver at her and forced her to hand over her purse and then a diamond bracelet. Next he demanded her diamond necklace.

"Give me that thing around your neck," she said the man demanded. "I started to take it off. I took my time. I thought my manager [Joseph Timony] might come down any minute. He noticed the delay and he said: 'Come on, don't stall me. Get that off.' So I took it off and gave it to him."

After taking her jewels and money, Miss West said, the bandit ordered Voiler to start the car and get going. He warned them to not look back.

But Mae looked back. She said she saw two automobiles pulling away.

"You've seen the defendant in this action, Miss West?" the prosecutor asked.

"Yes," she said as she looked at Friedman.

"How does he compare in height and build with the man who robbed you?"

"Very much the same," the actress replied.

It took Mae some time to decide the approximate length of the holdup man's nose.

"What kind of a nose was it?" asked the prosecutor.

Mae stroked her own nose with her white-gloved hand, and thought for a moment.

"Well, it was a medium-sized nose," she answered.

Thief Seizes Girl's Purse Containing $2,300 Checks

SEX WILL WIN FREEDOM NEXT, PROFESSOR SAYS

Tells Women Old Taboos Vanish.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Prof. Howard M. Parshley, who teaches zoölogy to the girls at Smith college, today told the 500 women attending the birth control conference that an increasing number of their sisters—their most respectably regarded sisters—were no longer making sex experiences dependent upon a wedding ring.

Another Means of Expression.

"There is a widespread disposition on the part of intelligent, serious, and ethical persons to reject," he said, "theoretically and in practice, what I have called the moralistic view of sex; and to regard sex expression as a physiological, romantic and esthetic aspect of life, rather than a peculiarly and specifically moral matter."

That wasn't all the professor told the women. He pointed to the three chief supports of "moralistic sex restrictions," the old idea that women were the property of men; the prevalence of social diseases, and the lack of birth control knowledge were less effective than in former decades.

Doctors Attend Session.

The afternoon session was attended only by doctors—some 200 of them from Washington, and admittance was by card and credential.

The only news of that session which came from behind the tightly closed door was the resolution which pointed out that much of the birth control advice was given by charlatans and quacks, and which endorsed pending birth control legislation in congress by which contraceptive advice would be placed under the control of the medical profession.

SCIENTISTS CALL NEUTRON RAYS KEENEST KNOWN

Invisible; Pass Through Flesh Easily.

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

Berkeley, Cal., Jan. 16.—A new ray, made of neutrons, the most disruptive substance known to science, has been developed at the University of California. It is more penetrating than X-ray or radium.

The ray is a flow of 10,000,000 neutrons a second, coming from a lead window. It is invisible and potentially the most dangerous ever produced. It has possibilities both for experiments in medicine and for building up the heavy chemical elements out of lighter ones, such as lithium and aluminum.

Neutrons Nonelectrical.

Neutrons are ultimate particles of matter discovered in England less than three years ago. They differ from the other fundamental particles, electrons, the negative, and protons, the positive, because they have no electrical charge. This "zero charge" is held to explain their penetration.

Neutrons find no obstacle in the heavy "wall" of electricity guarding the nuclei of the atoms of all elements. They shoot through undeflected, unless they make a direct hit on a material particle in an atom.

Pierce Deep Into Body.

Neutrons can pierce the human body easier than can X-rays. They also penetrate shields which ordinarily screen X-rays from doing indiscriminate harm. The body, being largely water, is full of hydrogen. While hydrogen is the best stopper for neutrons, it is also the stuff in which neutrons produce very frequent atomic explosions.

Experiments at Columbia university upon neutron penetration into water have indicated that such a ray as the new one at California will go more effectively than X-rays into the deep portions of the human body.

Use of X-rays on deep buried cancer is limited, for one thing, by the amount of burning the skin will stand. For the X-rays burn the surface more than the parts deep below.

May Act Differently.

It has been suggested that neutrons will not have this extra surface burning effect, but will scour equally at all depths. On the other side of this prospectus, are experiments in Germany by Nora Feighlinger, and elsewhere by other scientists, indicating that neutrons may not be more effective on human diseased tissues than X-rays.

X-rays function by setting off a flow of electrons in the flesh. The electrons do the burning. Neutrons, instead of starting the electrons, burst the atomic nuclei and set off particles much heavier than electrons.

Method of Production.

If neutrons hit such a particle their weight, 1,800 times the mass of an electron, causes more spectacular results than other types of rays. Neutrons have been available only in small quantities, their action confined to interiors of vacuum tubes. The California apparatus yields them in great numbers, and for the first time, so far as reported, brings them outside the tube.

This neutron ray was developed by Prof. E. O. Lawrence and Dr. M. Stanley Livingston. It is made in the magnetic field of a magnet as high and wide as a barn door, weighing 85 tons. The south pole of this magnet rises, flat topped, as high as a stove from the floor. Inverted directly above is its twin, the magnet's north pole.

50,000 Miles a Second.

Into the open space between these two poles the scientists slide a metal disc resembling a covered frying pan, its interior a vacuum. Inside the vacuum pan lies what looks like a large, flat, round, brass pill box, called the "merry go round."

The pill box really stands still. But charged particles inside circle around at fabulous speeds—50,000 miles or more a second during incubation of this newest ray.

The rotation is due to opposite sides of the pill box acting as alternating poles. They alternately pull the particles toward them, while the immense magnetic field keeps the motion going in rings. Timing of alternations causes a complete merry go round of particles.

Isolating the Neutrons.

As ammunition, a stream of deutons is fed by tube into the vacuum pill box. Deutons are nuclei of the recently discovered heavy hydrogen atoms. They are the richest source yet found for neutrons, being almost entirely a mixture of neutrons and protons.

Passing through a spray of electrons, these deutons acquire electrical charges and begin circling. With only 12,000 to 20,000 volts of current to the pill box alternating poles, the deutons reach speeds having the energies of 3,000,000 volts.

They emerge from the rim of the box and smash themselves utterly against a metal target. From the impact come clouds of neutrons and protons. But protons cannot penetrate much lead. So a lead window filters out the protons, leaving a pure spray of neutrons to emerge from the "frying pan" tube.

Proving They Exist.

As neutrons are invisible, the first job was to prove their presence. Paraffin did this. By a strange quality, neutrons penetrate heavy elements, like lead, much easier than light ones. Least of all do they pierce hydrogen, the lightest element. Paraffin contains much hydrogen.

The neutrons striking the paraffin in a chamber outside the lead window hit hydrogen nuclei, smash them, and with the recoil set free hydrogen protons.

10 WOMEN AND 2 MEN START HEARING OIL CASE OF TWO MDIVANIS

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 16.—(AP)—An attempt to convict the former Princes David and Serge Mdivani of looting the Pacific Shore Oil company of $30,747 began here today. The jury is composed of ten middle aged married women and two married men.

The recently divorced husbands, respectively, of Mae Murray, screen actress, and Mary McCormic, opera singer, sat in court as the jury was sworn.

Prosecutor David L'Esperance made an opening statement, saying he would show misappropriation of oil company cash covering two and one-half years.

Attorneys for the accused brothers planning a general denial, said they would contend the case was a civil rather than a criminal matter and would ask transfer to a civil court. They contend the charges grew out of civil litigation.

Meanwhile in mid-Pacific Prince Alexis Mdivani, brother of the accused pair, and his bride, the former Barbara Hutton, were heading for the Orient on separate ships. The prospect of Alexis being served with a subpoena in the oil trial, had caused that form of travel.

"We intend to prove that this case grew out of a series of involved business transactions, and that under the circumstances the defendants did everything in their power for the present holders," said W. I. Gilbert, one of the Mdivani attorneys. "In fact, we hope to prove that they did more than any other oil operators in the country."

CHARGES FRAUD IN ASSESSMENTS FOR UTILITIES

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $214,433, making a total of $101,368,095 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28, 1933. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
January 16.....	$ 24,050	$ 70,170
Uncollected	15,578,040	41,626,776
	1930.	1931.
January 16.....	$ 52,525	$ 67,688
Uncollected	65,924,471	65,031,408

The day's collections of 1931 personal property taxes totaled $13,657.

Assistant State's Attorney Hayden N. Bell charged yesterday that intangible personal property assessments made against the Commonwealth Edison company and People's Gas Light and Coke company by the former state tax commission, headed by William H. Malone, were legally fraudulent. Malone is now under an indictment charging income tax evasion, and part of the evidence against him, it has been disclosed, is the charge that he received splits in fees from attorneys representing corporations before the tax commission.

Attorney Bell made his accusation before County Judge Jarecki, where the county is suing the Edison company for $783,003 and the gas company for $287,739, portions of their 1931 personal property tax bills which the companies refused to pay on the grounds that their assessments were excessive. Attorney Bell charged that the intangible personal property assessment of the Edison company, fixed for 1931 by the tax commission at $18,570,000, should properly have been $29,291,140.

He charged that over a period of years, through failure of the tax commission to make proper intangible personal property assessments, the governments of Cook county have lost $50,000,000 in revenue. Attorney Francis X. Busch will reply today for the two utility companies.

HEYWOOD BROUN DIVORCED; WIFE SPINSTER AGAIN

She's Glad to Return to Old Friends.

New York, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Heywood Broun, columnist, today disclosed that he and his wife, Ruth Hale, head of the Lucy Stone league, were divorced Nov. 14 at Nogales, Mex.

"She got a Mexican divorce last November," he said, and when asked about grounds, added, "I don't think you need them in Mexico. We weren't mad at each other."

Miss Hale said the divorce was granted on the ground she and Broun had been continuously separated for five years.

She's Spinster Again.

"I have lived in the married state for years," she added. "I have devoted that much time to my husband and more to our boy, who now is growing up. I can go back to my friends as Ruth Hale, spinster—that appeals to me."

At present she and the columnist are occupying apartments on different floors of the Hotel Des Artistes.

"Broun and I will continue to be friends," she said. They are still collaborating on two books and one play which they plan to finish before she goes to "our Connecticut estate."

Does Many Writing Jobs.

Broun has written several books, among them "The Boy Grew Older" and "Pieces of Hate," and many magazine articles. Miss Hale and he were married in New York in 1917. His wife managed his campaign when Broun ran in vain for congress on the Socialist ticket in 1930.

CALL ON JUDGES TO WAR ON TAX DELINQUENCIES

A call for judges to volunteer for duty in a drive against delinquent personal property taxpayers as they did in the drive on crime last fall was issued yesterday by county commissioners. The action was taken as the county board finance committee began preparation of the 1934 budget confronted by demands for appropriations more than $2,000,000 in excess of anticipated revenues.

Commissioner Peter M. Kelly moved to issue the call for judges. He reported that since Circuit Judge Joseph M. Burke had been assigned to the chancery division early in December all collection of delinquent personal property taxes had ceased. In October Judge Burke collected $445,000, in November $345,000, and in a portion of December $100,000, he said.

Commissioner George A. Miller said he had heard that the failure to assign judges to the tax call was part of a plan of the judges to force the county board to appropriate in the 1934 budget for country town judges to aid judges here. It was moved to call Chief Justice Denis Normoyle of the Circuit court before the committee to discuss the rumor.

County departments have asked $19,257,569 in the 1934 budget, while the anticipated revenue is only 17 million dollars. In 1933 the county appropriation bill totaled $18,806,867. Most of the difference between estimated expenditures and revenue for this year results from the 25 per cent reduction in real estate valuations ordered by Assessor J. L. Jacobs. The elections of 1934 will add more than $1,000,000 to costs the county must meet.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 16. — The Bolivian government was compelled recently to send a war plane squadron to the department of Guaqui, by Lake Titicaca, to disperse 5,000 Indians who rebelled and seized railroad and port settlements by the lake shore, according to word received here today.

Lake Titicaca is the highest body of inland water in the world. It links with the International railroad uniting Peru and Bolivia. The railroad is operated by the Peruvian Corporation, Ltd., London, England.

The Indians rushed down from the Andes mountains, seized and sacked the principal Guaqui rail station and the lake port, and then cut the telegraph lines to prevent communication with the capital city, La Paz.

Planes Open Fire on Indians.

News of the aboriginal rising was first contained in unofficial dispatches, which were supported by information via the Peruvian inland city of Arequipa. The Bolivian authorities first denied the uprising, but afterwards admitted that a "small military expedition" had been sent by plane to Guaqui to put down an "insignificant Indian revolt."

Private dispatches to Chile said the Bolivian planes, which were of a bombing type, flew low over the Indians' heads and opened machine gun fire. The terror-stricken Indians fled to their mountain retreats.

A report from Lima, Peru, said the main rebel force captured the local garrison and secured ammunition from the arsenal. A train standing at the lake junction was destroyed. The local inhabitants battled with the Indians. The report said there were some casualties, but the number could not be ascertained.

Lay Discontent to Chaco War.

The rebellion was attributed to discontent because of the revival of the war between Bolivia and Paraguay in the Gran Chaco and the desperate plight of the agricultural industry. The aborigines have long been complaining of the war's adverse effect on their farming trade. They have also bitterly resisted the enforced military conscription of their tribal manhood.

That the Bolivians wish to hide home facts and are sensitive of outside criticism is proved by a tightening of the censorship. Control of civil communications has now been extended to private correspondence.

Hangs Self When Wife Leaves to Call Police

Bernard Klarwicz, 27 years old, 1236 North Paulina street, was placed on a peace bond yesterday by Judge Leon Edelman in the Racine avenue court upon the complaint of his wife, Mary, that he had mistreated her during a domestic quarrel. Last night they quarreled again. She left their home on the pretext of notifying the police he had broken his bond. Returning a short time later she found her husband dead. He had hanged himself to a wall hook.

N. Y. POLICE HUNT DUTCH SCHULTZ ON TAX CHARGE

New York, Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Chief Inspector Louis J. Valentine ordered his 18,953 policemen today to hunt down Dutch Schultz, bootlegger and racketeer, and bring him to headquarters. Schultz has been hard to find ever since he was indicted almost a year ago by a federal grand jury here on a charge of income tax evasion.

"It is an insult to New York City to have such a man as Schultz at large," Inspector Valentine said in commenting on his order. "I want him, and I intend that the department shall find him."

To emphasize his order Inspector Valentine today also transferred back to the West Forty-seventh street station two detectives who were transferred from there three days before Police Commissioner Bolan went out of office.

The two detectives were transferred originally, according to police rumors, because they had worked on a couple of Schultz's pals in an effort to locate the big racketeer. In police parlance to "work on" a man is to handle him roughly in an effort to elicit information.

CHURCHILL WINS FIRST CHANCE TO SPEAK ON RADIO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 16. — Winston Churchill, who has been conducting a lively war with the government controlled British Broadcasting corporation over censorship of radio speakers, tonight delivered his first speech through one of the corporation's microphones. His address contained nothing to which any government could have objected or censored.

The main theme of his speech was that Britain must be strong or die. Churchill cited "the tremendous thrust for conquest and empire the Japanese are making and are going to make." Not for hundreds of years has Britain been so defenseless as now, he said. The navy is no longer sufficient to guard the country, Churchill asserted.

"The hideous curse of war from the air has fallen on the world," he said. "We used to say we'd have a navy stronger than any two powers. But surely the least we ought to do now is to have an air force as strong as that of the nearest power than can get at us."

He summed up his arguments. "We must be a strong and successful scientific and commercial empire or starve. There is no half way house for Britain between greatness and ruin."

MORE TROUBLE LOOMS AS CUBAN CHIEF TAKES OATH

Fight Launched to Depose Batista as Army Head.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 16.—Carlos Hevia, former secretary of agriculture, was sworn in as the new Cuban president today in a brief ceremony before the Supreme court.

A small crowd gathered at the palace, but evinced no enthusiasm for their new 33 year old ruler, who was chosen to succeed Ramon Grau San Martin yesterday by the revolutionary junta which has been dominating Cuban politics since last September.

Reports that Alejandro Vergara, mayor of Havana, had been selected by the junta to replace Hevia at the insistence of Col. Fulgencio Batista, army chief of staff, proved false.

Supreme Court Judge Quits.

Considerable evidence was at hand, however, which indicated that the path of the new executive would not be too easy. First, Judge Domingo Tamargo resigned from the Supreme court rather than aid in administering the oath of office to Hevia. Next Col. Batista ordered the 21 gun salute ordinarily fired upon the inauguration of a new president cut to seven guns, demonstrating the hostility of the army.

Trouble also loomed for Batista as Antonio Guiteras, secretary of war and interior under Grau San Martin, launched a campaign to oust him as head of the army. He asserted he will not serve in the Hevia cabinet unless Batista is deposed. He planned to go to Oriente province tomorrow, and, it is reported, intends to foment a rebellion there against the former sergeant.

Opposition to Batista also developed among employes of government departments, who demanded that Hevia end Batista's "military dictatorship."

Ends Press Censorship.

Thus far Hevia has obtained a promise of support from Col. Carlos Mendieta, leader of the Nationalist organization, but other members of that group as well as leaders of other revolutionary factions have not fallen in line.

The Cuban executive, who is an Annapolis graduate, tonight ended police surveillance of residences of political opponents and lifted press and radio censorships.

He also announced his intention of convoking as soon as possible a constitutional assembly. He named Manuel Despaigne to continue as secretary of the treasury, with Manuel Marquez Sterling as secretary of state, Aurelio Alvarez as secretary of labor, and Luis Almagro as secretary of justice. Other cabinet members will be named tomorrow.

PU-YI TELLS HOW HE WILL GOVERN HIS NEW EMPIRE

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

HSINKING [Changchun], Jan. 17.—[Wednesday.]—In his first interview since his designation as exalted ruler of Manchukuo, Henry Pu-Yi today said he hopes so to rule the new Manchurian empire that it will automatically win recognition from America and the other powers.

"My policy will be peace and security, international amity, and the observance of all foreign obligations," said the young emperor-designate, who is to be crowned March 1. "I will keep open the door of commerce to all nations. Whether Washington recognizes Manchukuo or not, Americans will be always welcome in Manchuria. I have not forgotten that the American people and the government always have shown a deep interest in the welfare of the Chinese people.

"During my reign I hope, with heavenly guidance, to emulate the great Chinese emperors of the Golden Chow dynasty. I shall strive wholeheartedly to answer worthily the divine will and the voice of the people which are calling me to the throne."

POLICE ARREST 3 SUSPECTS IN MAIL ROBBERY

Ted Virgilio, 30 years old, 901 South Loomis street, a business agent of the Check Room Workers' union, was arrested last night and held as a suspect in the $500,000 robbery of a mail carrier on Dec. 6, 1933, and for questioning in connection with the murder of Gus Winkler, north side gang chief.

Arrested with him were Sam Battaglia, 1153 West Grand avenue, reputed "42" gang leader and notorious police character, and John Wolek, 2424 North Ashland avenue. They told Sergt. Thomas Curtin and his detective bureau squad who seized them at Milwaukee and Ogden avenues, that they were on their way to Hot Springs for a vacation.

Police said that Virgilio will be turned over to federal authorities today for questioning in the mail robbery which was executed as a mail bag filled with stocks and bonds was being taken from the postoffice to the First National bank. The state's attorney's office also has been seeking Virgilio and Battaglia to interrogate them concerning a number of shootings.

"IN ONE WORD I'LL TELL YOU WHAT WE THINK OF GAS HEAT—PERFECT!"

To prove that every home can afford to heat with gas . . . we will install it at our expense and remove it at our expense, if you don't like it.

"I'LL NEVER FORGET those icy mornings when I used to get up at six and fire the furnace," says Mr. Fuller. "But that's all over now."

"IT'S SUCH A TREAT FOR THE CHILDREN," says Mrs. Fuller, "to run around in their bare feet in the morning, with warm floors and a warm house. It's a fact, we haven't had one cold since gas heat was installed. We set the little thermostat and it keeps the temperature just where we want it, night and day. And to get rid of that soot, dust, and dirt, makes gas heat a blessing in itself. The house is so much easier to keep clean."

The true-life story of how gas heat brought undreamed of comfort and happiness to the home and family of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Fuller, 9600 Seeley Avenue.

YOU . . . who still get up at six o'clock to fire the furnace! You . . . who put up with back-breaking coal shoveling, with dirty hours of shaking and hauling ashes! . . . Read these facts about a typical gas heated home, where soot, dust, dirt, and furnace tending, have been banished forever!

The Fuller household is only one of more than 20,000 families in the Chicago area who now enjoy the unequaled comforts and conveniences of low cost gas heat. Their furnace and boiler worries are gone. Their walls and drapes stay clean. No basement dirt is tracked upstairs. And every hour, day and night, their house is kept at the correct temperature—automatically. Because gas heat is regulated by a little thermostat on the wall.

ALL HOMES CAN NOW AFFORD IT

The cost of gas heat is now so low that even the most modest homes can afford it. Rates have been reduced to one-half of what they were during the 1930-31 heating season. And —you can have gas heat without one cent of investment! We will install a burner in your present furnace or boiler at our own expense. You pay only the rental on the equipment, which amounts to $3 a month in the average home. You try it for a month, two months, a year. And if within the year you find that you are not completely satisfied with gas, we will take it out and replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order. But, if you decide to keep gas heat —as we think you will—the rental you have paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment.

MAIL THE COUPON

Don't delay! It is pure folly not to investigate this liberal offer on gas heat, when it brings so many comforts and conveniences. Mail the coupon, and we will send a representative to make a free estimate on the cost of heating your home with gas.

It Takes 32,000 Hours of Work a Day to Supply Gas

The responsibility of providing adequate and reliable gas service to Chicago 24 hours each day rests upon the efforts of approximately 4,000 persons—employes of The Peoples Gas Light and Coke Company.

Working eight hours a day, each business day, it requires a total of 32,000 hours of daily toil in gas manufacturing plants, pressure stations, laboratories, offices and under the city streets to assure the householders of Chicago a constant supply of gas at a reasonable cost.

An individual, working eight hours a day, would require 13 years to amass this total of 32,000 hours of labor, but this vast amount of time and energy is expended daily to provide a service which costs you only a few cents a day.

HITLER DECREES SELF DICTATOR OVER INDUSTRY

All Factories to Be Run by Nazi Boards.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—Through a "law to regulate national labor," Chancellor Hitler today assumed absolute dictatorship over German industry and labor.

National labor trustees will be appointed by Hitler. They will be supervised by the ministers of economics and labor and are to be masters of German industry. Final decisions are to be left to them and to special "labor courts of honor," which will decide whether or not an owner or director is fit to run his plants, whether he may dismiss workers and whether the workers are doing their "duty."

The new law is applicable to all plants employing more than 20 men and will become effective May 1.

Explains Aims of Law.

"The soldierly qualities of comradeship, honor, and decency will become the foundation and pillars of Germany's economic structure, thanks to this new law," Franz Seldte, minister of labor, said in explaining it to the press.

Even before the law was made known German workers were called upon to demonstrate and express their gratitude for the "restoration of social honor by Hitler." Dutifully 200,000 men marched in Berlin last Sunday to cheer for the law, of which they knew nothing.

The press praises it as "the foundation of the German cathedral of labor, a model for all other nations in the world."

Curtails Rights of All.

Workers and employers alike will find their former rights strongly curtailed under the decree.

In the plant or factory run according to Hitler's principles, according to the decree, "the owner of the works, as leader, and the employés, as his followers, will coöperate for the progress of their enterprise and for the welfare of the people and the state."

In all concerns a special confidential board will see to it that "mutual confidence is deep ned between workers and employers." This board, according to the decree, must improve the working efficiency of the plant and take over work previously done by the workers' council for wage and tariff arbitration, which is abolished. Members of the confidential boards must "stand up without restrictions for the national state."

How Boards Are to Be Picked.

The employer and the chairman of the factory's "Nazi labor cell," must submit to the workers a list of men they want on the confidential boards. If the workers fail to elect the men picked for them, the labor trustee will appoint the confidential board. Members of the board will get no extra pay for the time they devote to their activities, but their expenses must be paid by the employer.

If a majority of the workers disapprove of the working methods at a plant or have other complaints, they may submit them in writing to the labor trustee. Until the latter replies the orders of the employers mus be respected.

The labor trustees are to be appointed by Hitler for each important economic region. Besides watching over the harmonious relations between workers and employers they will dictate wages and rule on dismissals. Disobedience of orders of the trustees is punishable by fines and imprisonment. The trustees may call for the aid of "council experts or committee experts," whom they themselves will appoint.

Minimum Wage Scale.

Factory rules must be presented to the workers in writing by the employer. A minimum wage scale is recommended, providing special compensation for extra work.

Those who violate their "duties in the factory community" may be brought before a court of honor composed of a judge, the employer and a member of the confidential board. This court may issue a warning, impose a fine up to $4,000, order the offender's dismissal or rule that the "employer is unfit to direct the plant."

"An employer, supervisor or foreman who on the strength of his position exploits the workers or insults their honor" can be punished by the court of honor, the decree says.

Worker Has Right of Appeal.

A dismissed worker may appeal to a labor court if he feels his dismissal was unjustified. If the court rules in favor of the worker, the employer may be forced to pay up to four months' wages as damages.

A special law will take care of public servants.

This new legislation will enable Hitler to run industry according to his own desires, thus reinforcing the influence of his totalitarian rule over every home and factory in Germany. The only ones still outside of this influence are the reichswehr [regular army], which is still under President von Hindenburg, and rebelling Protestant and Catholic clergymen who refuse to give up their freedom of conscience for the Hitlerite dictatorship.

MELVIN A. TRAYLOR.

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, who has been ill at his home at 426 Barry avenue with a severe cold for the last several days, has contracted pneumonia, it was announced yesterday by attending physicians, Drs. N. C. Gilbert and William R. Gubbins. Dr. Gilbert said that Mr. Traylor's condition is not considered serious. The physicians reported late last night that his condition was somewhat improved. Dr. Gilbert expressed the opinion that the banker would have no difficulty in resisting the disease.

POLICE STILL HOPE TO FIND PASTOR'S AUTO

The police last night were continuing their efforts to keep the Rev. John O. Crawford's automobile at home, but they were having little success. The Rev. Mr. Crawford, who lives at 3843 North Hamilton avenue and is pastor of the Joyce Episcopal church, Seeley avenue and Byron street, first lost his car on Sunday, when thieves took it in front of 2547 Blaine place.

A few hours later the police recovered the car, after firing a number of shots and running into the chill waters of a canal near Spaulding and Foster avenues in pursuit of three youths who had the car. They seized one youth, Frank Ochal, 17 years old, 1426 Superior street, and returned the car to the pastor.

But the next morning, when the Rev. Mr. Crawford went out to the garage, the car was gone again. So the police took up the trail again, and last night they arrested three youths riding in a stolen automobile. The car, however, was not the minister's, but belonged to Walter Zarzycki, 1227 West Erie street. Two of the youths arrested, Bruno Szczurek, 1471 West Huron street, and Thomas Muskol, 834 North Ashland avenue, are believed to have been companions of Ochal. The third youth seized was Stanley Mecik, 1323 North Irving avenue.

U. S. PROTESTS AS NAZI BEATS AMERICAN JEW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—Max Schussler, an American Jew, formerly of Brooklyn, N. Y., who is now living in Berlin, is in a hospital tonight after an assault by a Nazi storm trooper. Doctors said he will be in bed a week.

United States Consul Raymond H. Geist filed a vigorous protest with the Prussian secret police and was assured that the storm trooper would suffer exemplary punishment.

Schussler was in his office yesterday when a tenant named Friedl, wearing a storm trooper's uniform, marched in and anounced that he would not pay his rent, for which Schussler had sent a second demand. When Schussler told him he would go to the courts, Friedl screamed: "I will be my own judge—you'll be dead before I go to court." He then attacked Schussler, according to Schussler's secretary and five other witnesses. Friedl was arrested and is held on an unannounced charge. Schussler was taken to the hospital in an ambulance.

Uniformed Nazis invaded Schussler's bedroom last March and compelled him to sign a document to prevent an eviction. They also refused to leave the room while Mrs. Schussler dressed.

Slugged in Street and Hauled Away in Auto

Mrs. Hannah Oran, 1927 South Avers avenue, reported to the Lawndale police that she saw two men drag a third from an automobile in front of her home early today and beat him severely. When she opened a window and screamed a protest one of the assailants of the third man cursed her and told her to mind her own business. Mrs. Oran called the police, but the trio had gone when they arrived. Bloodstains were found on the street.

LEAGUE OFFICIAL CHARGES NAZIS TERRORIZE SAAR

Says Jews and Political Foes Are Persecuted.

GENEVA, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Protests against "insidious boycotting and persecution of Jews and political opponents of the Nazis" in the Saar Basin territory were made public today by the league of nations council.

The charges were contained in a report by G. G. Knox, chairman of the league's Saar governing commission, who said they "have reached such proportions that the governing commission has been receiving almost every day complaints from the most diverse sections of the community."

Nazis Also Protest.

Simultaneously a Hitlerite spokesman, a member of a German delegation here to observe the league's preparations for a Saar plebiscite set for next year, maintained that legitimate Nazi activities in the district were being hampered.

Saar residents will vote on whether the territory should return to Germany, be annexed to France, which since the war has operated the rich Saar mines, or continue under the aegis of the league.

The future of the basin has been a source of differences between France and Germany. The former has charged Germany with exerting pressure to influence the vote.

Knox forwarded to the league council petitions from the "German front," a union of the bourgeois parties in the Saar under Nazi direction, and from the Saarbrucken chamber of commerce, attacking the commission's administration of the area.

Tells of Nazi Terrorism.

In an accompanying letter he minced no words in decrying "acts of terrorism" and "informing" of Nazis, which, he said, have increased since the commission's last quarterly report. The body, he said, "has even been obliged at the request of the Jewish community to found a special school for Jewish children."

He said a clandestine administration was established by the Nazis side by side with the legal government and that the door of the Nazi party leader has the plate, "The Prussian State Council Administration."

A search of Nazi premises in Neunkirchen revealed, he went on, the continued existence in a disguised form of Nazi military organizations, although they are prohibited in the Saar, which have systematic drill.

He quoter a letter from Nazi officials of Neunkirchen to the party's district head which, Knox said, declared that in case of danger they could supply in a few hours 1,500 men with motorcars and motorcycles.

NAZIS PREPARE TO STOP RETURN OF GERMAN EXILES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—Thousands of the 60,000 Germans who fled from Germany in fear of the Hitler regime are now allegedly eager to return and, according to the Angriff, "the Nazi victory is so complete that the state can afford to forgive the lesser of its former opponents."

Only a few of the exiles may return, though, under orders issued by Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Prussian premier, today. The exiles are divided into four groups. The first is composed of "common criminals whose number outranks that of political refugees." They will be arrested as soon as they set foot in Germany.

The second group consists of 16,000 "non-Germans," mostly from eastern countries, who are to be interned in concentration camps if they try to return and later will be expelled. The third group are Marxists. They will "suffer all possible reprisals concerning their persons and belongings" if they attempt to reënter. Leniency is promised only to "intimidated victims of propaganda" if they can prove they "actively opposed the atrocity campaign abroad."

U. S. WILL RUSH TRADE TREATIES WITH S. AMERICA

Hull to Hurry Home from Tour.

S. S. SANTA BARBARA AT SEA, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull prepared today to cut short his good will tour of Latin America and hurry to Washington. On his return there Sunday, he plans to begin negotiating trade agreements with all American republics.

Mr. Hull, who is returning from the Pan-American conference in Montevideo, and Hugh S. Cummings Jr., a member of the American delegation to the parley, will change at Cristobal to the Cruiser Richmond tomorrow.

They will proceed to Key West and entrain for the American capital, where the secretary will plunge at once into a host of departmental and congressional matters. The Santa Barbara, meanwhile, will call at Havana.

Reveals Formula For Haiti.

Secretary Hull said he plans to seek a series of commercial pacts with other American nations to supplement the steps for such pacts already taken with Colombia, Brazil and Argentina. Conversations with Chile, he disclosed, have already started satisfactorily.

A formula for the disturbing situation in Haiti, Hull added, includes the withdrawal of United States treaty officials now stationed in that republic as soon as Haiti pays the eleven or twelve million dollars it owes the United States.

"A simple method of solution is this," he said. "Haiti will account for its debts perhaps by borrowing elsewhere the amount necessary. When the debts are eliminated, we will immediately pull out of that republic all our treaty officials. We are just as anxious to withdraw as Haitians are in wanting us to withdraw."

Omits Stop at Havana.

Although the state department announced the plan of transferring from the Santa Barbara, Mr. Hull said, he did not decide until this morning to omit the stop at Havana.

Mrs. Hull and members of the delegation will continue aboard this ship to New York. Mr. Hull will call on the governor of the Canal Zone and the president of Panama Wednesday and then will go to Cristobal.

The secretary explained that the treaty with Haiti places on the United States heavy obligations that require further study of the legal aspects, but that they can be solved providing the debts are paid.

HEIMWEHR FIGHT TO STOP BOLT TO AUSTRIAN NAZIS

VIENNA, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, leader of the Fascist heimwehr, tonight made desperate efforts to prevent large sections of his home guard following from going over to the Nazis.

He ordered the leader of the lower Austrian Heimwehr, recently appointed to replace Count Johann Alberti, who was arrested for negotiating secretly with Nazi leaders, to surrender his command. Then he issued a proclamation that he himself was taking over the lower Austrian as well as federal leadership of the heimwehr.

At the same time he appealed to the lower Austrian rank and file to turn away from their pro-Nazi leaders and rally around him in his efforts to "purge the heimwehr ranks of traitors." The prince's move was part of the recently renewed national "house cleaning." The heimwehr has been Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss' chief bulwark of support.

QUEBEC PREMIER CALLS SEAWAY PLAN 'NEFARIOUS'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

QUEBEC, Que., Jan. 16.—Continued opposition to the St. Lawrence waterway plan on the grounds that it is "nefarious for the province and very damaging to the port of Montreal" will be voiced by Premier Taschereau, representing the province of Quebec, if the matter is discussed at the interprovincial conference in Ottawa tomorrow.

Taschereau expressed his opinion on the St. Lawrence project in the legislature this afternoon in answer to a question by J. A. Francoeur, member for Montreal Dorion.

Holds Plan Is Menace.

The premier said that while he did not expect the matter to be raised at the conference in view of the fact that it was still being discussed by the United States senate, if it should come up Quebec would be unalterably opposed to it.

"As far as I am concerned, I have not changed my attitude," he continued. "I do not believe that the plan is in the interests of Canada or in the interests of the province of Quebec, but if the majority of the other premiers and the federal government are in favor of it we will have to bow to their will.

"I repeat that I have not changed my opinion. I think that it would be a bad thing for Canada and nefarious for the province of Quebec, while it would be very damaging for the port of Montreal. With Canada overcharged with an enormous debt I cannot see why we should think of spending more millions on this project."

MASONIC LODGES IN PRUSSIA WIPED OUT BY GOERING

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—(AP)—On the grounds that there is "no further need for their existence," Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Prussian premier, summarily wiped out the three principal Prussian Masonic lodges and their affiliates today.

They are the Grand National Mother Lodge of the Three Terrestial Globes, the Grand Lodge of German Freemasons of the German Christian Order, and the Grand Lodge of Prussia.

Goering explicitly stated that while he did not wish to go into the question of whether the organizations constituted a danger to the state, he simply saw no further use for them and then left it to the lodges themselves to vanish from the picture voluntarily.

COLDS

—and They're Far Easier Relieved in the First than in the Second or Third!
A cold ordinarily goes through 3 stages: the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. The first stage is the time to "nail" a cold.
Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment for colds. It is expressly a cold remedy and not a preparation good for half a dozen other things as well. It is direct and internal, which is what a cold, an internal infection, requires. It is also complete—it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is inviting trouble. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 60c. Ask for it by the full name and refuse a substitute.

LESSON TO TRADE IN GROWING USE OF STEEL ALLOYS

Fresh Markets Opened by New Products.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Stainless and heat resisting alloy steels afford an object lesson in some of the economics of business and industrial recovery. Iron and steel, a basic industry, is traditionally looked to by the business world as one of the barometers of how America is getting along. During the depression the steel companies have been developing new and improved products and opening fresh markets.

In the last ten years in the mills rustless and heat resisting steels have been the great development. They are regarded as offering great opportunities for stimulating business revival in many industries. The new type high speed automobile, for one thing, was made possible by new alloys, in both steel and aluminum, and by improvements in the oil refining industry, which in turn required new heat resisting alloys. Modernization of the railroads through new style, high speed, light weight, streamlined trains is one utilization of the new alloys in both steel and aluminum.

Effect on Architecture.

In building, the steel men have left a new imprint on architecture. The new mirror polish, silver luster, corrosion resisting, stainless steel is being used in building decoration. One development now under way is in the field of art. Enameled panels in brilliant colors to rival the finest cloisonne are being improved for interior wall decoration in lobbies and elevators. The latest products of the mills go into hospital equipment, into dairies, kitchens, hotels, restaurants, furniture.

During the depression, applications of stainless steel grew at a great rate. Ways of utilizing it doubled in the last two years, according to the engineers, although slack building construction kept tonnage down. Research laboratories have been going full pace and in times when soft steel was traveling in the red, the applications of the alloys, the ways of using them, were on an upward curve.

The theory that competition is dead and that individualism and private initiative have become obsolete, seems to find no echoes in the stainless steel trade.

Many Names for New Metal.

Approximately 20 leading concerns are now making stainless steel or are converting stainless billets into other forms. There are many types of rust and heat resisting steel alloys, at least eight basic types, according to the engineers, but interest has centered most particularly in the "18-8" alloy. This contains 18 per cent chromium and 8 per cent nickel, hence its name. It is the term used in the industry to denote a type of steel that has a range of composition embracing 16 to 20 per cent of chromium and 8 to 1[illegible] per cent of nickel, and various firms have their own trade names for it. For example the United States Steel corporation calls it "U. S. S. 18-8," while the Allegheny Steel company, which pioneered in the production of this alloy in 1925, calls it "Allegheny Metal." Other establishments have other names.

The fabricator picks out of a wide group the alloy best fitted to the job at hand. Chromium is the one alloying metal which has been found to produce in iron alloys a condition approximately full resistance to atmospheric corrosion. To provide this rustless characteristic the presence of more than 11 per cent of chromium is necessary. The addition of nickel increases the resistance to corrosive attack and at the same time introduces advantages with respect to the physical or mechanical properties of the metal.

Stronger Than Steel.

The "18-8" can be forged, pierced, rolled, drawn into finest wire, spun, machined, welded, and finally polished to a mirror surface which remains permanent and untarnishable. It is twice as strong as steel, and within a comparatively short time has found a great range of application, from saucepans to mammoth pasteurizers, from airplanes to hypodermic needles.

Hematite ore from the Mesabi and Gogebic ranges, in the form of stainless steel, is being introduced into bridge work in dentistry.

When building construction gets under way again, the new steel alloys may find a market for structural purposes. The engineers say the price at present is prohibitive for use of the alloys in the skeleton of buildings. Large production, however, and increased markets when recovery speeds up, are expected to bring down prices.

Another Useful Alloy.

One alloy contains 4 to 6 per cent of chromium. It resists corrosion and is twice as strong as steel. It sells for about one-third the cost of "18-8," according to the engineers, and lasts six to ten times as long as structural steel under ordinary conditions.

This alloy, engineers declare, now costs about three times as much as structural steel, has seven to ten times more resistance to corrosion or rust, and is about twice as strong. Weight of structural skeletons could be reduced 25 per cent without impairing the factor of safety. By using the alloy buildings could be put up to greater heights or would require less massive foundations, while their permanency would be increased. The steel technicians say this is not in sight yet, but that it may be coming as one of the new developments in building.

The railroads and the movement to make them up to date is looked upon as a great field of opportunity by the steel men. Not only in passenger trains but in the building of freight cars is a possible market.

Help for the Railroads.

"The lighter alloys," says Russell M. Allen, local manager of the Allegheny Steel company, "offer the solution of the problem of the railroads of reducing the nonpaying load."

Agricultural implements, too, are another market, the trade arguing that increased durability from rustless alloy will offset difference in cost on machinery that is left in the open.

The heat resisting qualities of the alloys have made the oil refining industry one of the big customers. High temperatures are used in the modern cracking process. Metal steel alloys of the stainless group are being used in temperatures as high as 2150 degrees Fahrenheit and 50 degrees below zero, according to the technicians. The alloy "18-8" itself, it is declared, is being used in temperatures as high as 1750 degrees and as low as 50 below zero.

Uses on Aircraft.

On aircraft the stainless steel is being used for the fuselage, pontoons, and in wing structure. One advantage is that the chrome-nickel alloy steels are nonmagnetic, thus causing no interference with instruments, while it is not corroded by the salt atmosphere of the seacoast.

In restaurants, hotels, barrooms, kitchens, laundries, dairies, soda fountains, the stainless steel alloy is now a common sight. The new Passavant hospital is completely equipped in operating room and kitchen with stainless steel; Ford is using it for the bright parts of his cars; it gleams in exterior metal trim in the Empire State and the Chrysler buildings in New York—all a development within a decade or so by private enterprise.

And the alloy makers, both steel and aluminum, report a growing trade among merchants, large and small, to trim up their windows and door fronts; to smarten their shops and displays. They view it as a demonstration that competition and the incentive of profit are stimulants of trade.

CWA CHIEF IS UNDER FIRE FOR HIRING MAN ACCUSED IN BANK CASE

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Censured by his superiors because he hired a man charged with misuse of bank funds, Eric H. Biddle, state CWA director, tonight marked time before making his next move, perhaps tendering his resignation.

In the meantime the storm center of the controversy, David W. Charles, has resigned as assistant controller of the CWA, it became known.

Charles' resignation was contained in a letter made public from Biddle's office, in which he said he "was unwilling to permit" the state CWA chief "to make any further sacrifice" in his behalf.

Biddle said yesterday he would resign rather than discharge Charles, who last week was given a three year suspended sentence on charges of misusing funds of the Merion Title and Trust company, of which he was assistant treasurer.

CUT 23,000 JOBS FROM CWA QUOTA IN COOK COUNTY

Lack of federal funds will compel Cook county to reduce gradually its final quota of men on CWA jobs from 123,000 to about 100,000. Howard O. Hunter, field representative of the CWA, so informed Frank D. Chase, director of the Illinois CWA yesterday. No reduction in the number of CWA workers in downstate counties was asked.

In order to put the reduction into effect, Mr. Chase announced that no new assignments of CWA workers will be made. No new projects will be approved, and workers who drop out will not be replaced, he said.

About 118,000 men had been put to work on CWA projects in Cook county up to yesterday, Mr. Chase estimated. That will mean that about 18,000 men will not be replaced if they are taken off of the pay roll.

LARGE CROWDS SEE EXPOSITION OF ROTARY CLUB

Variety of Exhibits at the Sherman Hotel.

Chicago's Rotary clubs yesterday played host to thousands of visitors to its Business Recovery exposition in the Sherman hotel. The clubs presented exhibits from 140 membe varying from their simpler accomplishments during the last decade to inventions and developments of far reaching importance to the business world today. The exposition continues through Thursday.

Features of Exposition.

The clubs' exhibits occupied over 30,000 feet of floor space. The most important of them were the booth showing the improvements in the fusing of neon lighting, the crippled children exhibit and its orthopedic dispensary and the electrical exhibit. The largest, smallest and longest electric light globes were shown.

New methods of advertising including the advantages of newspaper and magazine display copy are shown. A feature of the exhibit is an 8x12 Oriental rug which three men took three years to weave. The exhibitor said the rug has over 2,270,000 stitches in it.

Other exhibits are electric welding, photography, printing, business indices, carpentry, buildin[illegible], household and electric appliances and kindred articles. The exposition is the first of its kind since before the world war. Concerning the exhibition Col. John B. Reynolds, president of the Chicago Rotary club, remarked:

Effort Toward Recovery.

"The exposition is an effort on our part to do our part toward national recovery. Rotary members realize that business is on the upgrade and they are out to get their share of it. The exhibition is Chicago Rotary's contribution to President Roosevelt's recovery program."

More than 150,000 tickets to the exposition have been distributed. From the response yesterday Col. Reynolds indicated that another 50,000 tickets will be necessary. The exposition hall was packed during the day and evening.

SLAYS HUSBAND; HIDES BODY FIVE DAYS; KILLS SELF

PORT DOVER, Ont., Jan. 16.—(AP)—For five days Mrs. Eva Gamble cowered in her home beside the body of her husband after shooting him. Then she dragged the body to a chicken coop, returned to the house, and fired a bullet into her own head, police learned today from a note she left. She said she shot him because of his brutality.

When the fateful events of the Gamble home became known through a school boy's discovery, police forced their way into the house, the doors being barred from the inside. They found Mrs. Gamble, wounded in the head, unconscious on the kitchen floor, with her setter dog whimpering and trembling in the corner. She was still alive, but she succumbed last night.

The note asked that she be buried next to her mother, Mrs. Jim Kitchen, at Springfield, Pa.

President of Brazil Repeals 10 Year Old Press Gag Law

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 16.—(AP)—President Vargas repealed a press law today which provided severe penalties for criticizing the government. He termed the measure, which was adopted in 1923 when the country was in a state of seige, "a law of infamy" and ordered a new law drafted "on liberal lines." The Brazilian Press association fought the old decree for more than a decade.

DIES IN FIVE INCHES OF WATER.

Madison, Ind., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Mrs. Ayres Elliott, 47, drowned in Big creek, a mile east of here, yesterday when she fainted and fell in five inches of water.

8½ MILLION FOR AIRPORT AT LAKE WILL BE SOUGHT

Federal Funds to Be Asked Next Month.

An application for $8,500,000 of public works funds to build a lake front airport for Chicago will be ready to be submitted early next month, it was learned yesterday from John Wentworth, chairman of the architectural committee of the city plan commission.

Although a proposal that the airport be built as part of the public works program has met enthusiastic support locally and in Washington, Wentworth said, it has never been submitted formally because of legal and financial obstacles. He expressed a belief that these would be overcome in the application he is now preparing with his associates, Alfred Shaw of Graham, Anderson, Probst and White, and Hugh Young, engineer for the plan commission.

Winter Delays Plans.

The application will be presented through the state advisors of the public works administration. Work on filling in the island for the airport could not be undertaken during the winter because of high insurance rates and the PWA was interested only in projects involving immediate employment. This has been one cause for delaying the application.

Another reason for delay was the plan commission's intention of securing federal funds to complete the outer link bridges at the mouth of the Chicago river before pushing the airport project, he said. Seven million dollars was advanced to the South park and Lincoln park boards last week for that project by the public works administration.

Plans for Hangars.

Plans for the architecture of the hangars will conform to the classic style of other structures on the lakefront. The airport will be used solely for passenger, mail and express traffic, and will not be used for a freight terminal, nor will transport planes be overhauled there. The present airport at 63d street and Cicero avenue will be maintained for freight and overhaul purposes.

The airport is to be located on a triangular island filled in about 1,000 feet from the shoreline opposite 16th street. Runways in all directions will be 3,500 feet long. The project will take a year to complete and will make jobs for 4,300 men. Seventy per cent of the money spent will be for labor, and 30 per cent for materials.

ALIMONY DEBTOR FREED FROM JAIL, THEN SENT BACK

Maj. William Ogden Johnson, 1027 Central avenue, Wilmette, a retired army officer, was released from the county jail alimony club yesterday, but he went right back to jail. Circuit Judge Walter LaBuy quashed a writ of ne exeat obtained on behalf of Mrs. Lee Johnson of San Diego, Cal., who is suing Johnson for divorce, on which he had been held in jail in default of bond. The judge then ordered Johnson to pay $100 on his alimony arrears of $1,601, and when Johnson said he had only $25 the judge sent him back to jail.

RUNS $40 STOCK IN AIR COMPANY TO 5½ MILLIONS

Air Mail Inquiry Hears of Profits.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—While Charles W. Deeds, Harvard business graduate now only 31 years old, was boosting a $40 investment in aviation stock to $5,584,000 in paper profits and Col. Charles Lindbergh was making a sizeable fortune through activities in connection with various airlines, William Robertson, Lindbergh's original backer, was being "frozen out" of the aircraft business, according to testimony today before the special committee investigating air mail contracts.

Mr. Robertson, trim and self-contained, related how Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, after refusing him an air mail contract on a St. Louis-New Orleans line explained that "we gave Mr. Sacks a cool reception."

Mr. Sacks, who was referred to by Mr. Robertson as "a Mr. Sacks connected with the Republican party in St. Louis," and believed to be William Sacks, former Republican candidate for governor of Missouri, had promised to get the Robertson Air Service company the contract from Mr. Brown "by telephone" if he obtained five per cent of the subsidy money in return for enlisting Mr. Brown's aid.

"He also asked us to give money for the campaign fund of Representative I. C. Dyer of St. Louis," Mr. Robertson added.

HARRISON, ICKES TO DISCUSS PWA FUND PROBLEMS

Carter H. Harrison, chairman of the federal advisory board on public works for Illinois, left yesterday for Washington to confer with Secretary of the Interior Ickes on distribution of federal public works money in the central states. It was pointed out that middle western leaders feel that Illinois and other states of the middle west have not been receiving a square deal in the allotment of funds. Downstate Illinois, it was said, feels that Chicago has been favored in PWA money. Records of the local board show that 429 requests for allocation of federal funds have been filed in this district. Of this number, 204 have been forwarded to Washington for final action, 75 requests have been approved in Washington, and 22 have been rejected.

A TRUE STORY

By A MOTHER

whose children are benefiting by her experience of years ago

WHEN Mrs. Walter Ruehl was fourteen years old, she was a sick girl. "My mother," she writes, "had taken me out of school and was desperately turning from one type of treatment to another. Everything seemed to be wrong with me—extreme nervousness, severe headaches, a terribly tired worn-out feeling, and frequent dizzy spells which would bring on prolonged attacks of nausea. I know my family despaired of ever seeing me recover.

"Imagine our encouragement and joy, a short time after my doctor put me on the Nujol treatment, when my health began to improve. In a few short weeks I looked and felt like a new person.

"I returned to school and when I graduated, had the honor of being the 'best all-round athlete' in my class! This of course I could never have done without radiant health, and to Nujol I owe a never-to-be-forgotten debt for the happy, healthful days in the springtime of my life.

"Six years ago I was married, and in 1928 my first little girl came along. As soon as she began to eat solid food, trouble began. I took her to a baby specialist who immediately diagnosed her trouble as improper elimination. He told me that more babies and little children suffer with this trouble than with any other. He warned me it was a very serious matter that might lead to appendicitis.

"So I began giving Robin Nujol. She was then just a year old. I'm afraid it may seem incredible, but I am sincerely glad to say that from almost the day after we began the treatment, my little girl has been in perfect health. It seemed like a miracle—but apparently all her system needed was a gentle lubricant. When her little system became—as it did very quickly—perfectly regulated, she was like a different child. Every one of the alarming symptoms of stomach trouble disappeared and she immediately began to gain weight—sleep soundly all night and develop a splendid appetite. She never suffered from indigestion again! Now Robin is five years old, and is one of the huskiest, peppiest youngsters you could wish for.

"Little Donald, her three-year-old brother, has his regular spoonful of Nujol without fail every evening. To see his red cheeks and sparkling eyes and observe the boundless energy he has all the time—no one would doubt his health program is good.

"Robin and Donald both go to a little kindergarten where there are sixteen children, and the teacher said they were the best natured and happiest children in the school. She asked me what I did to make them always sweet tempered, and so seldom irritable or out of sorts.

"It seems so obvious to me that children—or adults, either—can only act as well as they feel, and that the most precious thing in the world is real glad-to-be-alive, bubbling-over-with-the-joy-of-living health. I found the magic 'sesame' to that door years ago in Nujol, and now my children are reaping the benefit of my experience."

Most sincerely,
MRS. WALTER RUEHL,
Nov. 28, 1933. Glenbrook, Conn.

Nothing we could add to Mrs. Ruehl's letter would make it any more convincing. Follow her example. See what Nujol will do for you—for your children. Get it at any drug store, now in two forms, plain Nujol and Cream of Nujol, the latter flavored and often preferred by children.

What is your Nujol story? If you have been using Nujol for ten years or more, if you are bringing up your children on it, tell us. Address Stanco, Inc., 2 Park Avenue, New York City.

MAKERS OF DRUGS LAUNCH ATTACK ON TUGWELL BILL

Hit 'Chamber of Horrors' Used in Propaganda.

Seventy-five per cent of the patent medicines exhibited in a "chamber of horrors," prepared by the federal department of agriculture as part of its propaganda campaign for the Tugwell bill, have been off the market for 10 or 15 years, it was charged yesterday by George F. Carroll, secretary of a group of Chicago drug, food, and cosmetics concerns, whose representatives met yesterday at the Palmer house to organize opposition to the bill.

Carroll and Attorney John S. Hall, counsel for several food and drug companies, attacked the provisions of the bill, and were especially sharp in their criticism of what they termed the illegal activities of Rexford G. Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture, and his aids in arranging meetings and organizing propaganda in favor of the bill. The bill would impose much stricter regulation than that of the existing food and drug act upon the food, drug, cosmetic, and patent medicine industries.

The speakers charged that the meeting of the Coo. County League of Women Voters, held at the Palmer house on Saturday, before which Prof. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago and others spoke, was "drummed up" by Tugwell aids. The "chamber of horrors" was exhibited in an adjoining room on the representation that the bill seeks to prevent such evils as were exhibited there.

George W. McFatrich, president of the Murine company, was chairman of the meeting. Carroll gave three reasons why the industries affected are opposing the bill.

"The existing food and drug bill has served the public well for twenty-five years, and only the wild eyed experimental theories of Mr. Tugwell would ever bring such legislation as he has drafted into the picture," said Carroll.

"Under the bill formulas of private remedies must be disclosed, and many of the men here have built up their business on secret remedies.

"Moreover, Tugwell is set up as the sole arbiter, although the bill sets up a commission of five members for the food industry and another of the same number for the drug and cosmetic industries. The bill will result in one of the greatest blackmails ever perpetrated on the public.

"Mr. Tugwell, with his commission, can go into any factory and look over the processes and formulas. The bill would lead to the creation of at least 5,000 political jobs, since several hundreds of thousands of factories are affected, and no relief for the industry is set up in the bill.

"HUMAN CHAIN" RESCUES THREE; TWO OTHERS DIE

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 16.—(AP)—One man gave his life to save others, another was believed drowned and three persons were in a hospital today after a grim struggle with turbulent seas in Victoria harbor late yesterday.

Men and boys formed themselves into a living chain to save the drowning when a boat and rescue craft were upset.

A boat containing Llewellyn A. Hinder, 40, an accountant, and Mrs. Clifford Bales, 37, overturned during a squall. Dr. Fred Harling, 47, a dentist and hero of many rescues, went to their aid but his boat capsized. He died of a heart attack after swimming to shore.

Another rescue craft was upset and its two occupants were saved by the human chain. Then Arthur Stott, newspaper reporter and Olympic diver, at the end of the chain, reached Mrs. Bales and brought her ashore. When he returned Hinder, who had been clinging to his own boat, had disappeared. The three rescued persons were taken to a hospital.

ARTIST BLAMES FALL FOR TAKING FAMOUS NAMES

Providence, R. I., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Howard Lawless, 20, of Troy, N. Y., who had represented himself as a son of Henry Morgenthau Jr. and as Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., according to police, was sentenced to 10 days in Providence county jail on a charge of obtaining $33.75 by false pretenses from the People's Savings bank in this city.

Police here say the youth is wanted in Boston, New Haven, and Washington for similar use of famous names.

Acting as his own counsel, Lawless said his mind had been a blank from June 6 or 7 until two days before Christmas. He said he had been attending art school in Washington and that a fall down a flight of steps while on roller skates resulted in a head injury.

After all, with 60% of the women in America five-feet-five and under . . . with such prominent figures as Helen Hayes and Mary Pickford in this picture . . . no wonder, designing for such an impressive group is a subject of vital interest to us. That's why we got together a group of expert designers before we set to work to create these semi-size fashions. They selected the prints, the sheers, the silks, and carefully designed each one of these dresses to your measurements. In fact, so well have they followed through that in nine cases out of ten you can walk right out in your dress. That's certainly a treat after the usual ordeal in alterations. Our semi-size dresses are most intriguingly low priced.

THE "SEVEN POINTS" IN DESIGNING A SEMI-SIZE FASHION

1. The lines of the dress are from top to toe—to give that impression of height.
2. The prints are small, flower-sprigged and spaced geometrics.
3. The necklines take to diagonals which is most flattering to the throat and shoulders.
4. Waists are raised to meet the shorter waistlines—no pinning up afterwards.
5. Sleeves are designed shorter with breadth through the shoulders and arms.
6. Skirt lengths are right to begin with—no shortening necessary.
7. The finishing touches add to that look of "expensive" simplicity.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

IMPROVEMENT BY PARALYSIS.

Congressman Rayburn of Texas, chairman of the interstate commerce committee, has introduced a bill to put bus and truck transportation under federal regulation. The congressman says the bill represents the views of the committee. In the coordinator act, Joseph B. Eastman, the federal coördinator of transportation, is instructed to conduct an inquiry into the whole matter of bus and truck transportation, with all its relationships, and to report recommendations. Mr. Eastman is now engaged in this work, collecting both facts and opinions the country over. The Rayburn bill not only reflects the current stupidity of bureaucratic control but it anticipates an official examination which, presumably at least, might lead to quite different conclusions.

It may be too much to expect that inquiry and study will affect dogma and determination, but while an inquiry is going on the simplest demand of common sense is to suspend judgment and postpone legislation until the conclusions are reached.

The Rayburn bill and the policy back of it represent bureaucracy in its historic stand against invention, ingenuity, and progress. Traditionally, and almost inevitably, such governmental control seeks to reduce the thing it controls to the lowest level of efficiency and to wash out all incentive to progress. There is no such incentive in bureaucracy. The instinct is to perfect a routine and maintain it. Defenses are up against the invasion of new ideas and new methods. In private enterprise exactly the opposite must happen or the enterprise succumbs to competition.

As a matter of fact, that is precisely what has happened in transportation. The railroads were taken over by bureaucracy. Their initiative was frozen and their managements were conquered by routine. Whatever ability the government found when it took possession it afflicted with dry rot. Competition came in the form of other methods of transportation. These other methods were free and they were inventive. The railroads, pinned against the wall of government, could not act in self-defense. If a management had ability and foresight it couldn't use these qualities.

It is typical of government procedure that when the consequences of this competition are discovered in the plight of the railroads the conclusion should be not to free the roads but to freeze the competition, again trying to kill invention, stop progress and reduce all transportation to the level to which government control has reduced transportation by rail. The Rayburn bill is warning that this stupidity prevails as yet. Naturally, if the railroads cannot get free, they want the government to bind the other fellow. If they can make no progress, they want to tie the hands of their competitors. This insanity in government purpose may be made clearer by illustration.

Suppose, in the days when the canal was thought to represent the best transportation means for the opening of the country, the oncoming railroad had been stopped by federal government regulation just as the rails were being laid in competition with the barge line. Physically this could have been done if there had been a law for it. The government could have made it impossible or next to impossible for the railroads to experiment with their adventurous idea and for years the motive power on rails might have been a horse in a treadmill, as it was on the first B. & O. line. Fortunately for the country, the governmental ideas of today did not prevail a hundred years ago. If they had, the Indian and the buffalo might still be roaming the plains west of the Mississippi. The country is in more desperate need of new ideas, of invention and progressiveness now than it was when the railroads started out to conquer the wilderness, but unfortunately the prevailing dogma is to stifle invention before it can get started. The salvation of the country requires not that its resources be exhausted by bureaucracy but that initiative of the people be freed. In the days of the great railroad men there were many scandals caused by their fierce competitive measures, but has it been forgotten that these same men built the country by their daring and their confidence, and that the railroads were great railroads? They are now enslaved by the government routinist, and when the consequences are all too self-evident the remedy proposed is the laying of the same dead hand upon the only transportation operations now free instead of taking it off those it hurts.

ANOTHER SENATE INQUIRY.

The senate committee investigating air mail contracts is behaving in the expectable manner. It has already sought to besmirch Col. Lindbergh's name by innuendo. The tactics of Senator Black are typical. The object of his questioning is less to disclose the facts about air mail contracts than to bully and abuse men whom he doesn't like, personally or politically. It appears that a senate committee of inquiry is a senate committee of inquiry, regardless of which party happens to be in power. Its peculiar and offensive character derives chiefly from the circumstance that the senators who do the investigating are bound by no rules of law and no rules of propriety and are answerable to no one save themselves for their offenses against decent human behavior.

THE SIXTY CENT DOLLAR.

The President's message on stabilization of the dollar has, on the whole, been well received. Even many who have regarded the Warren scheme of price raising as both unworkable and unnecessary have welcomed the promise of an anchored dollar as preferable to the existing monetary uncertainty.

The opposition has found its most forceful spokesmen in two of the President's former supporters, Senator Glass and Prof. Sprague. The senator regards the proposal as morally indefensible. He calls it stealing without even the justification of necessity. "Humanitarianism can find some excuse for a man who steals when he has to, but what excuse is there for stealing when there is no need for it?" Mr. Glass wants to know.

The tender minded may resent Mr. Glass' references to theft, but the word will help to clarify thinking on the proposal in at least one particular. The steps which the administration is now advocating are in themselves regrettable. Every effort should have been made to avoid devaluation as a breach of faith with the people. If devaluation was necessary, as the President asserts and the senator denies, it was a humiliating necessity which could have been avoided had the government managed its affairs in the last three or four years with competence and ordinary integrity. It has been the unexampled profligacy of the federal government which has driven it to the necessity of raising money by what amounts to a capital levy upon the savings of all those who have anything put aside. There is little hope that the devaluation can accomplish much permanent good, despite its enormous cost, if the extravagance which produced it is to continue.

Senator Glass sees the proposals as presenting certain moral and political issues. Prof. Sprague is concerned more especially with the specifically economic consequences of devaluation. He thinks the plan of itself will not bring about the prompt increase in commodity prices which it is supposed to produce. If Prof. Sprague is wrong and prices do rise sharply it will be because the American people have lost all confidence in their money. Such a situation might contain in it the seeds of more serious economic disturbances than we have seen since the closing of the banks last March.

The President plainly foresees this danger, for he has proposed the setting aside of two billion dollars of the so-called profits of devaluation to be used as a stabilization fund. With that sum at the disposal of the treasury to buy and sell foreign exchange, gold, and government bonds he believes he can manage to maintain a fairly even purchasing power for the dollar. The details of the proposal have not yet been revealed. Congress should insist upon the fullest information regarding how the fund is to be used. It is of the utmost importance that congress examine this aspect of the plan with the maximum of care, bearing in mind that previous ventures of the government in price stabilization have proved uniformly unsuccessful despite the very large sums which the government commanded. If the proposed stabilization fund cannot certainly avert the danger of wildly inflationary prices the administration's proposal had better be abandoned in favor of a less experimental plan.

Editorial of the Day

[Carmi, Ill., Democrat-Tribune.]

There is one task in connection with editing a country weekly newspaper that we dislike, and that is writing the obituary of an old lady. It seems so futile trying to set down in writing the things she has done. She was born, she grew to womanhood, joined a church, was married, became a mother, and passed on to her reward in the future life. The dates of her birth, marriage, and death are mentioned, for they are the high points of her life. The story of her life is pitifully short. The life story of her husband would record the facts of his existence, and also of his business or professional life. Perhaps, too, it would tell of political triumphs, and of what he had done for his town, the county, the state, and the nation. The stranger who might read it would understand that the community had lost a valuable citizen.

We cannot tell, in writing the obituary of a woman, of all the triumphs and disasters of her life; they would sound too petty. When as a bride she and her husband set up a home she assumed responsibilities that she had never known before. She learned to spend long hours doing tollsome work that was never finished. Day after day the same things had to be done, and she became an expert in doing them. But these things that she did so well do not deserve mention in the final story of her life; they were not outstanding.

She risked her life each time a child was born and, perhaps, once or twice ventured so far into the shadow of the valley of death that she almost slipped away, and it was only by fighting with every iota of her strength that she was able to pull through—not always because she wanted to live but because she was needed; there was a family for her to care for. But we can't give credit for that; mothers have been doing that since the dawn of time.

She brought her children into the world, and washed them, and dressed them, and loved them, and kissed away their tears. She bandaged their injured fingers and toes. She nursed them through sickness and she smoothed their paths through life, and all the while she was encouraging her husband and helping him to become successful. She made his home cheerful and restful. She listened to endless stories of his troubles and encouraged him to try again when disaster overtook him. And when success would come and his head would begin to rise among the clouds she would gently pull him back to earth and continue the process of making a man of him. The life story of the average man would not sound so thrilling and would not be so successful were it not for the guiding influence of a good wife and mother behind him.

But she gets no credit for any of these things. It was what she was put on earth to do.

And at last she comes to the end of life's tollsome journey and is laid to rest—perhaps the first rest she has known in her busy life. Her funeral is attended by many who did not know her but who came out of respect to her husband or to her children, who are their friends. The minister reads from a slip of paper the uninteresting facts of her birth, marriage, and death, and gives the names of the members of her family who survive, but he does not tell all the things she did, partly because they are taken for granted. You can't put all that into an obituary; people might laugh at you for writing it.

TAKE THAT!

"Do you remember the time when your father drove a donkey-cart?"

The parliamentary candidate fixed his eyeglass and gazed thoughtfully at the interrupter. Then he replied: "As a matter of fact I had quite forgotten the cart. But I am thankful to see the donkey is still alive."—Border Cities Star.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

"BANDITS IN IDAHO Rob Rancher of $800 in Gold."—Headline. Ha, ha, bandits, we are laughing at you; wait till you read the newspapers.

KEEPING STEP with the government's plans, such things as "golden moments," "golden memories," "golden deeds, "golden dawn," "golden silence," including the "golden rule," will be nationalized today and withdrawn from circulation. Anybody found with any of these in his possession will be fined twice their value and subject to a term of imprironment in the penitentiary. But some of them, such as the golden rule, were demonetized in most countries quite some time ago.

AND THE GOLD COAST can now be expected to ask the city council to change its name to the Zinc Coast or the Tin Coast or the Cast Iron Coast, or, anyhow, to something that hasn't been marked down to sixty cents.

THE CITY OF DREAMS.

I was dreaming of New Orleans, through a harsh Chicago night,
And the old Enchanted City rose before my longing sight;
Soft wistaria—fragrant air
Soothed away the sting of care,
While I laughed with dark-eyed damsels, burning incense in their hair;
Burning incense in their hair
Down a palm-leaved thoroughfare
While the planets burned like candles, big and golden, lit in prayer.

There's a gorgeous tropic garden where in dreams I sat last night
With a dainty Creole maiden close beside me, all in white.
Sweet her voice was, rich and low,
And I watched her dark eyes glow
As I used to watch and love them—far away, and long ago—
When my heart was burden-free
And I dreamed that I could be
All as much to her forever as e'en then she was to me.

While the sacred censers, swinging, filled St. Louis' dome with prayer.
I have heard its merry strain
Thrill the waves of Pontchartrain
When the salt Gulf breezes, laughing, tossed afar the gay refrain;
I have heard her murmur low
To a life suffused with woe
Till her gentle consolation bade corroding sorrow go.

I have seen her throned in splendor of the Merry Monarch's law
'Mid the giddy glowing glory of the golden Mardi Gras;
I have seen her dark hair gleam
'Neath the Crown of Rex supreme
When the Great Gods wrapped the city in a whirling gorgeous dream;
I have seen her capped with white
As we labored day and night
When the Fever gripped us grimly, and we rallied to the fight.

Dear to me howe'er I saw her, most I loved to see her there
While the perfume-scented breeze
Laughed and whispered in the trees,
Scattering white magnolia petals in a glad largesse from these;
Kissed her cheek and waved her hair,
And the incense burning there

There's a solemn-leaved palmetto whispering wistfully and low.
And it haunts me day and night,
Glare of moon and broad noonlight,
And it fills me with a sorrow I can never tell nor write.
Flowers—ah, flowers she loved so dear,
Charm her vagrant spirit near,
Till amid your clouds of incense I may see her face appear!

FRIAR TUCK.

CUBA is going to have a sign out on the front of its capitol building like the ones we have in American elevators: "President (here they will insert the name of whoever happens to be president that day) now on duty." It is a fine idea and will keep people from always saying when they meet the president of Cuba: "I am delighted, Mr. President, at the honor of meeting you. But I didn't catch the name. Would you mind telling me who you are?"

YESSIR, it's going to help in lots of ways. For instance, there's a dike in Holland, at Westkapelle, that requires such expensive maintenance night and day that it has so far cost more than if it had been made originally of solid silver. Oh, joy for the Dutch! Now they can save money; they can build the dike of solid gold.

YES, LITTLE CHILDREN, there is a pot of gold buried at the foot of the rainbow. But don't look for it; two hundred CWA lads with fifty wagons left Washington last night to get it.

WONDER if they carved the gold dollar to sixty cents in Shakespeare's time. Anyhow, William once said, "Who steals my purse steals trash." Shake, William; you said something.

OBESITY.

OVERCOMING obesity is of interest from the health standpoint in addition to its relation to pulchritude. Fat people die before their time. They are especially prone to develop such diseases as diabetes, arteriosclerosis, and certain forms of organic heart disease. The degenerative diseases, markedly on the increase, are now the great problems of preventive medicine. Obesity contributes to the seriousness of each member of the degenerative disease group.

An obese person wears himself out carrying himself around, and this is registered by an unnatural speeding up of the processes of degeneration. However, this is far from being the only way in which obesity contributes to disease and to premature death. Many are obese because of disease in some of their organs, such as the pituitary, the thyroid, and the gonads; and the effects of disorder in these organs may not be limited to overweight.

And, finally, reducing should be in the hands of physicians and dietitians with some experience in that line of work. Home made reducing is apt to be short lived, unsystematic, and ineffective; to be a matter of impulse rather than one of new habits made permanent.

Physicians make use of prescribed exercise and work as well as regulation of eating. And, in many cases, no other measures are required. Reduction in this way can be done painlessly, as a certain prominent lawyer told me the other day.

For several years this gentleman has been very much overweight. He was fat and heavy enough to be both uncomfortable and in something of a hazardous position. His daughter studied medicine. She took her father in hand as her first patient. He has dropped fifty pounds and his girth is less by inches. His color is good, his flesh is firm, and he is no longer short winded. And all this has been accomplished through dieting and without hunger or discomfort.

In proper cases physicians also use extracts of thyroid and pituitary. The latest addition to their chest of tools used against obesity is a drug known as dinitrophenol. During the world war it was noted that certain munitions workers lost a great deal of weight. Investigation showed this to have been due to handling dinitrophenol in the course of their work. Out of this observation grew the use of this drug internally as an agent for reducing. Given internally in proper dosage this drug causes a loss of two or three pounds a week, and this can be continued until the right weight for age, height, and build has been attained.

To hold this weight the diet and work must be regulated properly and new habits must be formed and adhered to. Reduction is the result of quickened metabolism, much as is the case when ductless gland agents are used for reducing.

But here is the fly in the ointment: Dinitrophenol is dangerous. It causes itching eruptions and other bad effects in a certain proportion of cases. It has been known to kill. Some people appear to be sensitive to it. The drug should not be used except under the physician's direction.

ELECTRIC NEEDLE.

Mrs. J. C. writes: Is there any method that will remove superfluous hair and destroy the roots, so that growth of hair will discontinue? The hair that I have in mind is a small spot, a kind of disfigurement. It would not be noticeable if the hair could be removed.

REPLY.

Removal by electric needle is very satisfactory where the number of hairs to be removed is limited.

REAL ESTATE.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If one owned a farm, how would one obtain a legal description [2] in order to use the same in a lease? 3. If a railroad contemplates laying its tracks over your property, what is the usual procedure of settlement? 4. What is meant by a building line when shown on a map or plat? 5. What is meant by subdividing real estate? 6. How are taxes on real estate computed? 7. What is meant by assessed valuation? 8. If the net estate of a deceased is $102,964, what amount is due the government by reason of his death, the only beneficiary at law being a nephew? 9. What would be the inheritance tax rate on the same estate?

E. E. H.

1. Presumably the channels through which a person receives title would enable him to ascertain the legal description. He should examine his deed or tax bills.
2. In general it is not necessary to have a technical legal description in your lease.
3. Presumably they are in a position to take the property by condemnation, which would mean that a jury would fix the price after hearing evidence. Before bringing such proceedings they are required to make a settlement offer.
4. Ordinarily it is an indication that no building shall be erected between said line and the street.
5. It is the process of laying out acreage into lots.
6. The assessed valuation is supposed to be 37 per cent of the actual valuation. The tax rate varies between different taxing districts, being a component of the items required by various spending bodies.
7. It is the value fixed by the assessors for taxing. In general it is supposed to be 37 per cent of the value.
8. The exemption under the federal estate tax law is $100,000. The 1 per cent rate would apply on $2,964.
9. The exemption under the Illinois inheritance tax law is $500 for a nephew. The tax would be 6 per cent on the next $20,000, 8 per cent on the next $50,000, and 12 per cent on the balance.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NOTES.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—For the sum of $1,200 he owed me a man signed six notes of $200 each, payable every three months, beginning Nov. 29, 1933. These are judgment notes. 1. Must these notes be witnessed, notarized, or recorded in any way to make them collectible? 2. Must I notify him in any way each time a note is due? 3. Inasmuch as this man does not have any money or property at this time, may I let these notes run along until such time that he has and then force payment? 4. If this man should move to France, would the notes still be collectible there, and how? G. H. J.

1. No, but in order to make them a lien on his real estate you would have to take judgment on them.
2. You are under no legal obligation to do so.
3. Yes, subject to the statute of limitation period of ten years from the maturity date.
4. Yes, but obviously the proceedings would be more troublesome and expensive.

CONTEST OF WILL.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—How many persons are required to witness signing a will? 2. What charges can be made to contest a will? 3. Would a will set aside by contest mean that a previous one would become the last will? Last will has been filed. 4. If last will was contested, can an appeal be made in higher courts? 5. If an estate consists mostly of first mortgage bonds [in default now], what can be done with them to divide among heirs? A. L. S.

1. Two.
2. The commonest grounds are undue influence and lack of testamentary capacity.
3. In general, yes.
4. Yes.
5. If the heirs can agree to a division in kind with cash allowances, that could be done, otherwise the assets should be sold and the proceeds distributed.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY NORMAN INGREY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile.—The British middleman, fat and prosperous from his pickings of everybody's trade in all parts of the world, sees a menace to his privileged prosperity in the principle of compensation trade—the modern idea of international commerce which was born during the depression.

Compensation pacts, which are primarily designed to establish a balance of trade between two countries, lead inevitably to a rigid analysis of commercial traffic. They reveal the brokerage, freight and insurance costs on exports and imports, auction details and other true facts regarding ultimate destination of goods.

South American countries, which have negotiated several of these treaties and with whom the United States has recently opened negotiations for similar agreements, have been amazed at the revelations resulting from such analyses. No matter with what country they have traded there always has been some "go-between" securing his rake-off for the benefit of the "invisible exports" which play a notable part in British political economy.

Thus, while the British government has been especially active in promoting compensation pacts to maintain its foreign trade fabric, the British middleman abroad has been equally active in his attempts to forestall them. Numerous such cases have been brought to public attention.

Chile provides a typical example. It was recently stated that "insuperable difficulties" had arisen in the discussions for an Anglo-Chilean pact. The commercial secretary of the British embassy was informed that the local chamber of commerce was not anxious to take part in any immediate treaty negotiations.

These "insuperable difficulties," it was learned, chiefly arose from the middleman's trade. Many of Chile's exports, especially wool, while shipped ostensibly to Great Britain, find their ultimate market destination on the continent or some other part of the world. The business is handled several times at this end by the middleman, insured by him, and shipped by British vessels to United Kingdom markets, where the brokerage business is repeated again before the ultimate purchaser, frequently a foreigner, is reached.

This profitable intervention is menaced by compensation agreements. In many cases it has been stopped already. France and Italy, to mention only two countries, have rooted out the middleman from many of their commercial transactions with South American countries. In striking an international trade balance they have insisted upon their own citizens obtaining the middleman's profits in their own trade and their own merchant ships obtaining the freight.

American commercial organizations on this continent are hoping that when the United States analyzes its own trade there will be equal solicitude for the protection of their interests.

DANGEROUS PLAY.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Will some one kindly tell me why some children living in the vicinity of the Rogers Park and Kenmore stations on the Chicago and North Western railroad elect to play in the stations and on the tracks? They are boys and girls ranging from about 10 to 12 or 14 years old. The railroad tracks have been elevated to protect life. Now why do these children play there? Last night there were about 15 of them and they ran in and out the doors and windows, up and down the platforms, back and forth across the tracks, and swarmed over the fences. They even had the nerve to wait until a train that didn't stop was very near; then they would jump out and cross the tracks in front of it. They caused one train that backs up going south to stop. The conductor blew the whistle both loud and shrilly, but these foolish youngsters only jeered at him.

The North Western railroad goes to some expense to maintain its depots and keep them clean. The windows in the Kenmore station were washed yesterday, I observed. But after that gang got through I'll wager you couldn't tell it.

Some one of those children is going to be killed and then what needless sorrow for some home. Parents, please find out where your offspring spend the hours between school closing and the dinner hour. Forbid railroad station playing before a tragic end overtakes sonny or sister. J. GRIFFIN.

PINOCHLE PARADISE.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Herman Lindstrom of 4101 North Sacramento avenue, Chicago, carefully picked up his fifteen cards in a three handed pinochle game last night, and after rubbing his eyes several times looked upon fifteen hundred hearts.

He did not faint or die of heart failure or do any of the regular routine acts a person is supposed to do when holding a hand like them. All he did was tear up the rest of the deck and is having the hand framed.

Of course, this broke up the game and toasts were tossed off—just how many no one will ever know. But Herman was supremely happy to think that he had realized his thirty years' dream of the pinochle player's paradise, so no one kept count. ASTRID M. LINDSTROM, Proud Daughter.

THE DIVERSION.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—In regard to the diversion of water from Lake Michigan into the sanitary canal I wonder that no one has suggested a sliding scale for such diversion. Fifteen hundred cubic feet per second is a small allowance for a maximum. It should be a minimum. A normal depth of the lake should be determined, and when the water is higher than normal the amount of diversion should be increased. During high water this increased diversion could be stored by dams or storage lakes and used as needed to maintain a depth suitable for navigation.

Lake Michigan is within the United States and should stay so. A dam across the Straits of Mackinac would make this apparent to the whole world and give the United States control of Lake Michigan. E. P. S. MILLER, M. D.

FROM MARCH TO JANUARY.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Your correspondent, F. R. Moulton, is a destructive critic. There are many like him, but we are indeed thankful that they are in the minority.

Like all other critics of the President this fellow fails to take into consideration the pure, unadulterated fact that the physical, economic, and financial structure of the United States was on the verge of chaos, and that this deplorable condition was brought on solely by the corrupt, deceitful and dishonest tactics of former administrations.

Graft, exploitation, and corruption were rampant, and an honest person had a very slim chance of surviving this onslaught. These were the seeds of destruction. To be fair we must face the facts. Petty prejudice is delaying recovery and also, Mr. Moulton, it is adding to its cost.

When a disease, whether it be of man or country, is allowed to progress without restriction, it eventually becomes acute; then the need for drastic action becomes absolutely necessary if the patient is to survive. This means a long and tedious series of treatments which call for expensive remedial applications, all of which would be unnecessary if the disease had been halted in its early stage.

The cost of recovery will continue to mount higher as the opposition continues.

RAY J. NUGENT.

THE NEED FOR STREET SIGNS.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—You have probably noticed that the street signs in Chicago are very poor, many streets having no signs and others broken or bent ones. Many of the boulevards do not have signs at crossings that can be located by a driver. It is difficult for a resident to find streets, and much more so for strangers. Having readable street signs at all corners would be a great benefit to World's Fair visitors next summer.

Much of the CWA work now being done is only temporary and some of it not a great necessity, while this would be a permanent improvement and provide a large number of men with work.

I understand the Chicago Motor club now has this matter up. Perhaps you can do something to push it along.

L. O. STANTON.

THE FORGOTTEN BOY.

Waterloo, Ia., Jan. 7.—We must congratulate President Roosevelt for his New Deal and its beneficial effect on the U. S., but there is a class of young men he has overlooked—the young man from the middle class home. We have prepared ourselves, by studying, for business positions, but now we are barred from the public works jobs or the CCC because we have no dependents, and the business world does not want us, for they can hire experienced men.

Marking time till business picks up is mighty discouraging for us; if only the government would grant scholarships we could be making profitable use of our time, for we all are eager and ambitious.

R. A. C.

THE REAL FORGOTTEN MAN.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—May I offer my hearty congratulations on your front page editorial in this morning's paper? It is about time that the real forgotten man [the creditor] had some one to champion his cause. Keep up the good work. A. W. ANDRESS.

PREDICT SPRAGUE FOR CHAIRMAN IN CAR MERGER

Council Grants 30 Days' Delay to Utilities.

If and when Chicago's surface lines and elevated railways are merged, so that transfers will be mutually exchangeable, Col. A. A. Sprague, as chairman of the board, will be the financial head of the merged companies, according to seemingly authentic reports current yesterday. Guy A. Richardson, now receiver of the surface lines, will be president and operating head of the transportation system.

Col. Sprague, formerly commissioner of public works for the city, is now one of the receivers for the elevated lines and for the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad.

Council Grants Extension.

The city council yesterday paved the way for continued negotiations on the surface-elevated merger, granting the surface and elevated interests a 30 day extension of time in which to accept the proposals. The extension becomes effective on Jan. 31, the previous deadline for acceptance. Action on a request of the two companies for a six months' period in which to arrange the merger was delayed by the council.

During the month of February the council's committee on local transportation, headed by Ald. James B. Bowler, will hear testimony of persons who oppose or favor the six months' extension.

At the council meeting several speakers asked that the franchise of the transportation companies be allowed to lapse, holding that it was a detriment to the city and that municipal ownership of the lines was feasible and wise. Most of these speakers were from "new deal" organizations opposed to the combination as outlined.

Act to Allow Hearings.

After more than a score of other civic and improvement associations had demanded the right to be heard, Ald. Bowler suggested the 30 day extension to permit the hearings. He was supported by Mayor Kelly, who declared that everybody should sit down and in a systematic way get acquainted with all that is involved in the traction situation. The mayor made it clear that the 30 day extension would be time taken out of the six months' period if this longer extension should be granted.

He went on to observe that the financial interests of the surface and elevated lines were expected to proceed toward the completion of their reorganization plan during the interval.

"It appears to me as if it's their own funeral if they stop working," said Mayor Kelly when Ald. John J. Grealis [44th] expressed apprehension that a standstill in the merger negotiations would ensue.

See Delay on Transfers.

It was inferred by members of the council that any hope of obtaining for the city universal transfers between the elevated and surface transit systems would be postponed for the period of the temporary extension. Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who has jurisdiction over the traction companies, said last week that he would order the establishment of the interservice transfer provided the six months' extension were granted.

One of the speakers at the session yesterday, Charles B. McAtee, who is president of the All Chicago Civic and Protective federation, attracted the interest of the council when he said: "A number of men representing a $2,000,000,000 syndicate were ready to open negotiations with the city council the minute the 1930 ordinance lapsed." He said this group, whose identity he declined to make known, would purchase the surface lines system for about $165,000,000 and turn it over to the city in exchange for bonds to be pledged and amortized out of the traction fund and earnings of the company.

After the meeting it was said that the group mentioned was composed of eastern capitalists.

MAYOR AND 29 ALDERMEN WILL TURN BACK PAY

Judges to Be Asked to Refuse Money.

After Mayor Kelly and 29 aldermen had promised yesterday that they would restore to the city the salary deductions for 1932 and 1933 which a court order Monday directed the city to pay them a move was started by members of the city council to ask the judges of the Municipal court to make similar restitution.

The order, a mandatory injunction, was entered by Judge Denis E. Sullivan in the Superior court in a suit brought by Municipal Judge John H. Lyle. Besides the judges of that court it applies to the mayor, aldermen, and other elected city officials, and to all city officials, including department heads, who are appointed by the mayor for a definite term.

Five Will Keep Money.

Only five members of the city council said they intend to keep the money which Judge Sullivan directed the city to pay them. The repayment will be 21 per cent of their salaries for the last two years, set up as an economy measure in the city budgets.

Twenty-nine aldermen said that in view of the fact that the injunction does not apply to the rank and file of city employes, for whom they voted the same pay cut, they will indorse the checks which they receive and turn them in uncashed to the city. This procedure will acknowledge the payment and forestall any later action by their estates, in case of their death, to recover the money.

Follow Mayor's Lead.

All the city department heads, it is expected, will follow the lead of Mayor Kelly in turning back their checks. One of them, Richard J. Collins, president of the civil service commission, has refused since his appointment in 1931 to accept any part of his salary of $7,500 a year.

Six aldermen said that they will indorse their checks and turn them over to ward charitable organizations which they sponsor for emergency relief funds. Seven were undecided, and three were not at the city hall yesterday.

The five aldermen who will keep the money are Arthur G. Lindell [9th], Joseph P. Rostenkowski [32d] Z. H. Kadow [33d], Matt Porten [34th], and Walter J. Orlikoski [35th].

To Restore Payments.

The 29 who have promised to restore the payments to the city are:

B. A. Cronson [4th]	J. M. Arvey [24th]
John F. Healy [6th]	J. B. Bowler [25th]
Thomas J. Daley [7th]	F.E.Konkowski [26th]

W. A. Rowan [10th]	John S. Clark [30th]
T. A. Doyle [11th]	J. J. Hurley [39th]
B. Hartnett [12th]	J. C. Moreland [41st]
John E. Egan [13th]	D. R. Crowe [42d]
J. J. McDermott [14th]	Matthias Bauler [43d]

O. E. Northrup [19th]	G. A. Williston [49th]
H. Sonnenschein [22d]	J. R. Quinn [50th]
John Toman [23d]

Those who said they would use their checks for ward charities were John J. Coughlin [1st], John J. Lagodny [21st], Harry L. Sain [27th], Thomas J. Terrell [29th], Thomas P. Keane [31st] and George W. Robinson [36th].

Those who were undecided were William L. Dawson [2nd], Robert R. Jackson [3rd], Terence F. Moran [16th], Roger J. Kiley [37th], Henry J. Wieland [38th], Joseph C. Ross [40th], and Edwin F. Meyer [45th].

Ald. James J. Cusack [5th] was sick yesterday, Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th] was engaged in the union racket trial, in which he is a defendant, and Ald. William V. Pacelli [20th], did not appear at the city hall.

30 NAVY FLYERS SLATED TO GET SERVICE MEDALS

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Recommendations have been made that the distinguished service medal be awarded to Lieutenant Commander Knefler McGinnis and the 29 officers and men who accompanied him in a flight from San Francisco to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, in six naval seaplanes Jan. 11.

Rear Admiral Walbert W. Johnson, commander of aircraft of the United States fleet, said today he made the recommendation to Admiral David F. Sellers, commander-in-chief of the fleet

TEST REVEALS INCONSISTENCY IN MAIL SERVICE

Time on Delivery Found to Vary Widely.

Tests made by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE show that it requires from 22 hours and 50 minutes to 48 hours and 45 minutes for letters mailed in Chicago to reach their destination in New York. Other tests showed that it requires from 20 hours 15 minutes to 63 hours 26 minutes for letters mailed in New York to reach their Chicago destination.

The Chicago-to-New York tests were made by mailing 24 letters exactly one hour apart. The letters were addressed to an office in the New York Daily News building, 220 East 42d street, New York City. The letters were deposited in the mail chute of Tribune Tower on the hour, beginning at 11 a. m. Thursday, Jan. 11, and ending at 10 a. m. Friday, Jan. 12.

Marked for Identification.

Each letter contained a slip stating the time of its mailing and, by previous arrangement, the exact time of the receipt of each letter was marked on the envelope in New York. Red crosses on the backs of the envelopes made the letters readily detected upon their arrival.

The letter which required the maximum time—43 hours 45 minutes—was mailed at 1 p. m. Thursday. It was received at its New York destination at 8:45 a. m. Saturday. A letter mailed at 8 a. m. on Friday, 19 hours later, reached the New York destination in the same mail.

Another strange inconsistency shown in these tests was the fact that letters mailed at 11 p. m. Thursday at midnight Thursday, and at 1 a. m. and 2 a. m. Friday, were not delivered in New York until 10:50 a. m. Saturday, while letters mailed from 3 a. m. to 8 a. m., inclusive, on Friday, all arrived at 8:45 a. m. on Saturday. The letter mailed at 8 a. m. Friday arrived in New York 2 hours 45 minutes earlier than the one mailed at 2 a. m., six hours earlier, the same day.

Table Shows Disparity.

Mailed	Received	Time required.
Thursday.	Friday
11 a. m.	10:50 a. m.	23 hours 50 min.
12 noon	10:50 a. m.	22 hours 50 min.

2 p. m.	8:45 a. m.	42 hours 45 min.

4 p. m.	8:45 a. m.	40 hours 45 min.
5 p. m.	8:45 a. m.	39 hours 45 min.
6 p. m.	8:45 a. m.	38 hours 45 min.
7 p. m.	8:45 a. m.	37 hours 45 min.
8 p. m.	8:45 a. m.	36 hours 45 min.

The New York to Chicago tests were conducted by having a letter mailed to THE TRIBUNE from the office in the New York Daily News building every hour, on the hour, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., inclusive, on Friday, Jan. 12. The following table shows the time of their mailing, the time of their receipt in THE TRIBUNE mail cage, and the elapsed time required for the trip:

Mailed	Received	Time
Friday.	Saturday.	required.
9 a. m.	10:15 a. m.	25 hrs. 15 min.
10 a. m.	10:15 a. m.	24 hrs. 15 min.

Assistant Postmaster C. P. Scheel said that the wide variation in the time required to transmit letters between New York and Chicago could be accounted for only by the time of train departures with respect to the mailing time, and by the fact that no deliveries are made in Chicago after 2 p. m. and in New York after 2:15 p. m. Thus, a letter arriving in New York after 2:15 p. m., or in Chicago after 2 p. m., would not be delivered until the next morning.

In the Chicago to New York tests, none of the letters mailed after 1 p. m. was delivered before 8:45 a. m. of the second day following. In the New York to Chicago tests all of the letters up to and including the one mailed at 4 p. m. were delivered at Tribune Tower either on the morning or the afternoon of the next day. But the letter mailed at 5 p. m. was not delivered until 8:26 a. m., Monday, 63 hours 26 minutes after it was mailed. This letter must have reached Chicago too late for the last delivery on Saturday, as it was postmarked at the Grand Central Annex in New York at 6 p. m., Friday. Why it was not delivered on Sunday is a mystery.

Other Trains Available.

The letter mailed to New York at 1 p. m., Thursday, the one that required 43 hours 45 minutes to reach its destination, was postmarked in Chicago at 3 p. m. of the same day, so that it missed the Twentieth Century Limited of the New York Central lines, which leaves Chicago at 2:15 p. m., arriving in New York at 9 a. m. [New York time] the next morning. However, this letter presumably could have been placed aboard the Commodore Vanderbilt of the Pennsylvania railroad, which leaves Chicago at 3:65 p. m. and reaches New York at 12:15 p. m. the next day, two hours before the last delivery. The Rainbow of the Pennsylvania road leaves Chicago at 4 p. m. and reaches New York at 1:30 p. m. the next day, 45 minutes before the last delivery.

Although there are 21 daily collections in the Chicago loop district, which includes Tribune Tower, there are only four downtown deliveries, from 7:30 a. m. to 2 p. m.

The Forty club, a convivial group of Chicago personages, celebrated its golden anniversary last night at the Auditorium hotel. Reminiscences of a half century ago when the first newspaper writers' gathering was held in an up-the-alley chop house were recalled and the members had a great time of it.

John E. Wilkie, a charter member of the club, was present. So was Judge John Richardson, one of the oldest members of the club. Other members at the banquet meeting included Judge John McGoorty, Charles H. Burras, Reinald Werrenrath, David A. Noyes, William F. Larkin, ex-Judge Petit, William J. Sutherland, Guy Guernsey, and the Rev. John R. Heyworth.

Speeches were made and songs were sung. The club rolls include statesmen, military and naval officers, clergymen, judges, physicians, actors, and bankers.

Now Keep Breath Sweet—24 HOURS A DAY!

Bad Breath Needs Medicine Doctors Say

Don't fool yourself into believing that you are secure simply because a rinse or gargle with a mouthwash leaves your mouth tingling with a clean, pleasant taste.

When you cover up an odor with another odor relief is only temporary.

To get rid of bad breath and taste you must get at the root of the trouble. That's in your stomach if you're an average person. Excess acids ferment foods, form obnoxious gases that rise up into the mouth and cause embarrassment.

So naturally the easiest, surest way to get relief is to get at the root of the trouble. Doctors advise a teaspoonful of BiSoDoL in water morning and night.

This pleasant-tasting blend of six valuable digestive remedies works wonders. It swiftly neutralizes excess acids, soothes and heals the inflamed mucous membranes. And keeps your stomach so settled and sweet that you are sure of waking up in the morning with a clean, pleasant taste and certain of having a sweet, inconspicuous breath all day!

Don't forget that your breath is only as sweet as your stomach and nothing can keep the stomach any sweeter than BiSoDoL. Try it. Also when you have indigestion, gas, heartburn or any other distressing acid trouble take BiSoDoL. It's the improved, quicker-acting way to get rid of pain and discomfort that doctors have used for many years with remarkable success.

No Mother Would Knowingly Take This Chance

Only Lack of Knowledge Would Make Her Do It . . . Take the Chance of Giving Her Child Drugs of Which She Knows Nothing

A CHILD'S health is too precious for experiment; a child's life beyond the price of pennies.

That's something, of course, that every mother's instinct tells her. The protective instinct that makes her value her child's life far beyond her own.

Doctors Say PHILLIPS' For Your Child

Now, when it comes to the very important — and frequently used — "milk of magnesia," doctors for over fifty years have said "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia . . . the safe remedy for your child."

This is because genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia marks what is known to the medical profession as one of the finest laboratory products the world of science knows.

See That Your Child Gets It

See that your child gets this; the finest that men know; genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Get it for your own peace-of-mind. Get it in protection of your child.

If you are offered a "bargain" substitute for the real Phillips' article, ask your doctor before you buy it. He will tell you that giving your child unknown drugs is one of the most dangerous, most risky things you can do. You can get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia at any drug store, in liquid or tablet form—for a small sum.

Many Parties Arranged for Miss Foster

Book Shower to Be Held Next Monday.

BY JUDITH CASS.

WITH only ten days remaining before her marriage to Leopold S. Fetcher and every minutes crammed with wedding details and parties, Miss Marguerite Foster, the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Foster, invested yesterday in her first pocketbook engagement pad. She hopes that it will see her safely through the afternoon of Jan. 27 when she and Mr. Fetcher will be married in a very small and quiet service in the drawing room of her parents' apartment at 1362 Astor street.

Books of all varieties . . . novels, biography, history, and perhaps a couple of cook books . . . will be showered on Miss Foster next Monday afternoon at the tea that Miss Margaret Quan is giving at the home of her parents, the Thomas A. Quans, at 31 East Elm street. Mrs. John B. Hammond [the former Betty Williamson] had issued invitations for a kitchen shower the next afternoon at the home of her mother, Mrs. Charles S. Williamson, at 1517 Dearborn parkway, but unfortunately this party has had to be canceled owing to the sudden departure of Mrs. Hammond the beginning of this week for Phoenix with her baby son. The baby's illness has necessitated the hurried trip, but doctors say that recovery in the warm Arizona climate will be rapid.

Arthur Barnhart Will Be Host.

Next Wednesday evening Arthur Barnhart will be host to Miss Foster and Mr. Fetcher at a double box party at opera with supper and "pounce" [a variety of solitaire in case you don't know] afterwards at the Tavern. This will be an especially gay evening, since "Martha" is to be heard at the opera house that night with Coe Glade, Tito Schipa, and Edith Mason singing. . . . Incidentally this opera announcement is news, for it was only late yesterday that the bill for next Wednesday evening was made known by George B. Woodruff.

Miss Susan Follansbee is giving a dinner party for Miss Foster and her fiancé on Jan. 25 at the Schiller street apartment of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell D. Follansbee, and the next evening has been reserved for the bridal rehearsal.

Miss Geraldine Foster is to be her sister's only attendant and Stanton Fetcher is to serve his brother as best man. After the wedding service, which is to be read by Dr. Norman Hutton, there will be a small reception. And after this Mr. Fetcher and his bride will leave for Cincinnati, where they are to make their home, at least temporarily.

Because Mr. Fetcher cannot be away from his business more than a week right now and he is coming the 24th to enjoy some of the parties, he and Miss Foster are postponing their wedding trip until some time in the spring.

Dearborn Alumnae Will Meet Today.

Since Mrs. Alexander Hodgart has yielded to the lure of a round the world trip, Mrs. Edwin L. Lobbell will be the presiding officer this noon at the annual meeting of the Dearborn Seminary Alumnae association at the Blackstone. And instead of a travel talk by Mrs. Hodgart, the president of the association, Mrs. Eugene H. Garnett [Louise Ayres] will give a program of original poems and songs.

Mrs. Hodgart has traveled the world over, but she is always ready to go once again. As she is sailing from New York tomorrow it is necessary for her to leave before the meeting today. Another officer of the Dearborn Alumnae, Mrs. Charles S. Williamson, is now on her way around the world, which means that Mrs. George T. Richards will be the acting secretary at today's meeting.

The gathering is always one of the pleasant events of the midwinter season, flavored as it is with old Chicago history. Today one of the program highlights, in addition to Mrs. Garnett's poetry, will be the reading of a graduation essay written in 1866. Lizzie Hoyne wrote the essay and read it, and today as Mrs. Clifford Williams she will read it again.

There is to be a business meeting at 11 o'clock preceding the program and luncheon at 12:30. Others who will be present will be Mrs. Charles H. Requa, Mrs. John E. Jenkins, Mrs. Walter E. Faithorn, Mrs. William G. Sage, Mrs. John G. McDonald, Mrs. Van Wegenen Alling, Mrs. Charles Counselman, Mrs. Raymond E. Durham, Mrs. Charles B. Frost, and Mrs. Charles Van Doren Shaw.

Maj. Lohr Returns from Vacation.

Wheels of Chicago's 1934 World's Fair started revolving a little more rapidly yesterday with the return to Chicago of Maj. Lenox R. Lohr. Unfortunately Maj. Lohr has spent most of his holiday since the closing of the Exposition last November convalescing from an illness that took him to Arizona. Yesterday morning, however, he and Mrs. Lohr appeared in the best of spirits and health as they stepped off the train.

Mrs. Maurice Patrick Geraghty is another vacationer who is back at her World's Fair desk. Hardly had she and Mr. Geraghty arrived from their trip abroad a week ago when Mrs. Geraghty visited the Fair to see what was under way for this season. Although it is assured that Mrs. Geraghty's "best seller"—"Wings of a Century"—will be an Exposition attraction again this year, Mrs. Geraghty is going to turn the management of it over to another person and spend her time working out some new and equally popular concession.

And still another World's Fair note! Nathaniel Ownings and his brother-in-law, Louis Skidmore, boarded the train yesterday for New York, where they will talk Century of Progress

Mlle. Theilade Is a Brilliant Star of Dance

BY EDWARD MOORE.

A new and brilliant artist of the dance flashed into view on the stage of Orchestra hall last night. She was Nini Theilade, appearing with that fine soprano, Grete Stueckgold, in a joint recital for the benefit of the Vocational society for Shut-ins.

Mlle. Theilade, still in her gorgeous youth, has been the première danseuse for several of the Max Reinhardt productions in Europe. She is the best technician to have appeared here in a long time, by which is meant not so much that she rejoices in glittering difficulties of the dance, although she is also adept in these, as that bodily grace has been developed into infallibility. She has something of the Kreutzbergian gift for fluid, unbroken, slow motion. In addition, she has personality, charm, and a fine sense of what can be expressed by the art of the dance.

Most of her numbers were constructed on canons of the classics, but there was one, "Angel at the Tomb," danced by her in the Reinhardt production of "Everyman" at Salzburg in 1932, that was as medieval as the most advanced modernist ever ventured to be. With her lithe, effortless body and her excellent sense of the dramatic, she was a delight.

Mme. Stueckgold more than held her own against so unusual a combination as that of a soprano and a dancer. The art of fine singing that she had exhibited earlier this season was emphasized last night in lieder, in works of the ancients, and in modern American. Voice, manner, interpretation were all exquisite, and it did not in the least tell against her that she was also grateful to the vision.

To have the nucleus of a symphony orchestra, or at least of a string quartet, in one family is not entirely customary in these days, whatever it may have been years ago, but Alfred Lustgarten, violinist, and his brother, Edgar, cellist, gave a joint recital at the Goodman theater last night with considerable artistic success.

They are both possessed of more than usual talent and they have quite as evidently been more than usually industrious in developing their talents. They play well from a technical standpoint and understandingly, besides. The first half of the program was devoted to extended compositions, the other to groups of short numbers.

"Turandot" was repeated at the opera last night with a single change of cast. John Pane-Gasser appeared instead of Aroldo Lindi in the leading tenor rôle and gave a dramatic and well sung performance.

Medical-Economics Forum Will Be Held Tonight

A symposium on "Medical Economics" will be held tonight by the Chicago Medical society in the Medical-Dental Arts building. Dr. Francis A. Faught, secretary of the Philadelphia County Medical society, will tell of "The Philadelphia Plan," and Dr. Peter T. Swanish, head of the department of economics, Loyola university, will present a general survey of the subject.

Save-a-Life League.

The Save-a-Life league of the Los Angeles sanatorium will have a bridge party at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Medinah Michigan Avenue club.

MADGE KENNEDY, who plays the Girl with the Spectacles to Rollo Peters' the Gentleman in Gay Braces in "Autumn Crocus," leaves off the spectacles and the tweeds for a girlish lace frock in the second act of the play. It is girlish and simple and she wears a sash with it. However, its unsophisticated air is the result of its being worn backward. Having received a telegram in St. Louis telling her the play opened in Chicago almost at once, Miss Kennedy had little time for acquiring a wardrobe. She bought the lace gown, put it on backwards because the lines were too sophisticated when worn properly, filled up the low back with another piece of lace, added the sash, and it became the perfect spinster school teacher dinner dress.

Ellen Root, who has been living in Mallorca the last two years, is expected in town in February. . . . Probably every woman over thirty smiled reminiscently at the "Autumn Crocus" performance the other evening when Ellen Lowe, the lady with the Baedeker, braided her hair and fastened the braid with strands of hair from the brush.

YOU'LL have to figure it out yourself. All we know is that he was fairly well dressed and he was rapidly trundling a wheelbarrow down Diversey parkway. In the wheelbarrow was another man, also fairly well dressed. He looked very matter-of-fact, and intermittently gave a remarkable good imitation of a siren. That's all we can tell you about it.

IT was at the Rosenwald Museum of Science and Industry. Maj. Fordney had finished his talk on his ascent into the stratosphere and was being besieged by autograph hunters. He fled to the museum office and the autograph hunters lined up to await their turn. As R. E. Campbell, who relays the incident, left the building two youths came out the door at the same time.

"Well, I finally got his autograph, did you?" one of them said to the other.

"Yeah, got it, too," the other answered.

"Say, who is he, anyhow?" inquired the first.

Broadway Will Get Chance to See an English "Pit"

New York, Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Broadway playgoers will be introduced to the English "pit" when Crosby Gaige offers "A Hat, a Coat, a Glove" at the Selwyn theater on Jan. 31. Under this system a historic feature of the London stage, several rows of unreserved seats in the rear of the main floor will be sold at 99 cents a ticket. They will not be placed on sale until about an hour before each performance. The "pit" will be separated from the reserved orchestra seats by a heavy cord.

Daughter Chief Bidder in Sale at McCormick's

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

The first two sessions of the unrestricted public sale in Chicago of the furnishings of the handsome town mansion of the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick yesterday amounted almost to a private sale, for Mrs. Muriel McCormick Hubbard, wife of Maj. Elisha Dyer Hubbard and the elder daughter of the late Mrs. McCormick and Harold F. McCormick, was the principal buyer.

It must have been sentiment that prompted her to bid in so many articles, for unless she is possessed of the same spirit of a collector that made her mother buy so many and such beautiful articles she couldn't possibly have any use for the quantities of glass, porcelain, silver, linens, furniture, and rugs that she purchased yesterday. And it wasn't just the rare and lovely pieces she bought, it was anything that seemed to have a sentimental value in her memory.

Time and time again she turned to her companion, her old nurse, and said, "Do you remember that? It was in my room," or she remarked that her mother had changed the covering of that chair or bench since the days when she was young and she and her little brother and sister, Fowler and Mathilde [who now is Mrs. Max Oser of Switzerland], played and romped the way all youngsters do, whether they live in a mansion or a modest cottage.

"They used to be in the hall," she whispered to her nurse after she had secured for $55 two handsome crimson damask and applique embroidery valances. "Yes," answered the nurse, who had tears in her eyes often during both sessions. "And do you remember the time you hid in their folds when you were a wee thing?"

Tears were in Mrs. Hubbard's eyes occasionally, too, and at the end of the afternoon session, which lasted from 2 until 6:45 o'clock, she broke down and sobbed a little, which wasn't strange considering the strain she had been under. Bidding in the museum pieces that were auctioned in New York—Otto Bernet, the auctioneer, explained that only the museum pieces were disposed of there and that all the personal belongings are being auctioned in Chicago and Lake Forest—was a much less trying ordeal than bidding in the things that her mother had lived with and loved here in the house in which Muriel was born.

Many of the 300 or more who had paid the admission fee of $10 to enter one of the sessions were not aware that the handsome young woman in brown tweeds who sat so quietly in the front row in a corner was the daughter of the woman who had collected all the things that were going under the hammer, and only those near her realized that she was the bidder who was successful in so many of the spirited bidding contests.

Only one bid did this reporter hear her make aloud, all the rest were indicated by a move of a finger, a slight incline of her head [topped by a smart brown Alpine hat, very becoming to her dark reddish brown hair worn straight and fairly short], an almost imperceptible signal with a black or a red pencil, or sometimes just a lowering of her eyelids. But the sleek young Negro assistant who was making her bids understood her signs. The red pencil she used to mark in her catalog the articles she purchased and with the black one she marked down the prices of the other things.

Practically nothing that was monogrammed was bid in by any one outside the family, and Mrs. Hubbard secured most of the things that were marked with E. R. McC. She was the only one of the immediate family who was there, but among the connections who attended were Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, both of whom were represented by agents, so they did not make their bids personally.

Miss Gertrude Helenthal, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick's secretary for the last seven years of her life, bid on quite a number of articles, but it was rumored that she was bidding for some of the relatives as well as for herself.

In most cases the prices seemed ridiculously low and Mrs. Hubbard was heard to mutter several times, "They are giving them away." She bid in a pair of Louis XVI. chairs, for instance, for $135 each that her mother was said to have paid $600 apiece for. The total sum of the afternoon's sales, including decorative and table glass, porcelains and silver, small objects and bibelots and laces, linens and cushions, amounted to only $12,882. The total for the day was $16,150.

The prices of the evening session were higher per article, for in addition to more laces, linens and cushions there were French, English and Italian furniture and decorations and oriental and European rugs, but none of these brought prices commensurate with their value.

The highest price yesterday was $1,150, which Mrs. Hubbard paid for a Brussels tapestry. Unless he was represented by an agent, Edwin Krenn did not bid at yesterday's auction. He appeared for a moment before the evening session opened, but did not even stay long enough to sit down.

Some of those who were there who often had been there when Mrs. McCormick was alive were Mrs. John Paul Welling, Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, Miss Cornelia Conger and Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell.

This afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock, the furnishings of the library on the fourth floor, the servants' bedrooms and guest rooms on the third floor, the second floor rooms including Mrs. McCormick's bedroom and dressing room and study, the main floor rooms, the basement and the Rolls Royce brougham will be auctioned, and tonight the books will be disposed of.

Garbo on Way Home; Journey Still Mystery

Kingman, Ariz., Jan. 16.—(AP)—The secret behind the dashing about of Greta Garbo, glamorous screen star, and Rouben Mamoulian, her director, over the great American desert defied penetration today while the silent couple apparently headed back to Hollywood. There was a ferment of speculation as to whether they had been married.

After two days of dodging inquisitive persons in Arizona the Swedish actress and her director left Kingman in a big automobile that headed westward.

But whether they were honeymooning or just taking a vacation remained undetermined. At no place they visited could their names be found in the marriage license records.

Hotel registers hither and yon in Arizona were as lacking in information as the actress herself.

Here, where the couple spent last night, the register reads:

"Miss Brown and R. Brown."

Over at the Grand canyon the register reads:

"Mary Jones and Robert Bonji."

"Mary Jones and Robert Brown."

At each stop as soon as their identities were revealed the couple dashed away.

As the Grand canyon held their silent gaze a national park's attendant started to tell them about it. They turned and fled.

Here this morning when their identities became known they remained in their rooms in seclusion. Suddenly they hurried across the lobby, out a side door, and ran across the sidewalk.

Their Negro chauffeur had brought the car, piled high with luggage, and the door was open.

Garbo's face was covered as Mamoulian piloted her into the car, and before he could slam the door shut the big machine was under way—toward Hollywood.

Laurel-Hardy Comedy Packs Usual Laughs

"Sons of Desert" Appears to Be Success.

"SONS OF THE DESERT."
Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.
Directed by William Seiter.
Presented at the Roosevelt theater.
THE CAST.

Laurel.....Stan Laurel
Hardy.....Oliver Hardy
Mrs. Hardy.....Mae Busch
Mrs. Laurel.....Dorothy Christy
The Doctor.....Lucien Littlefield
Charlie.....Charles Chase

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

KIND: Typical Laurel and Hardy farce comedy.

ACTING: Of the slapstick variety that has made obese, supercilious Hardy and thin, moronic Laurel popular with many adults and all children. Charley Chase, who here makes his debut in a full length feature, is a decided asset. His entrance is brief but telling. Mae Busch [a blonde now] and Dorothy Christy qualify ably as wives of the stars.

STORY: The boys are members of a secret organization, "Sons of the Desert," and have taken solemn oath at a meeting to attend the annual convention in Chicago. But—Mrs. Hardy says—NO! Hardy fakes illness and contrives to be ordered to Honolulu—for the sea voyage. Mrs. H. is no sailor so—Laurel is deputed to accompany the invalid. . . .

And so, to Chicago.

All would have worked out beautifully had not the Honolulu liner been wrecked—and had the wives not seen a certain news reel at a movie theater. . . . You can fairly well imagine the sort of events that ensue.

DIRECTION, PHOTOGRAPHY, SOUND, ETC.: Okay.

REMARKS: Judging from the roars of laughter—adult and adolescent—that are greeting this number, "Sons of the Desert" is a Laurel and Hardy success. There were hordes of youngsters at the Saturday matinée—and were they having a good time!

See you soon.

Folks in Tennessee Valley Encouraged to Consume More Carrots

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Mrs. Arthur Morgan, whose husband is the head of the Tennessee Valley Authority, is making the people employed on the Morris dam, down near Knoxville, Tenn., carrot conscious, they and their wives and children.

And she's doing it by talking about her husband. Mrs. Morgan spoke of her work in the Tennessee valley, where she is helping her husband, who was formerly president of Antioch college, at Yellow Springs, Ohio. One of the problems which first confronted Mrs. Morgan, who was trained in college as a chemist and dietetic expert, was the lack of nutrition in Tennessee. The people were everlastingly eating beans and bread and bacon, but almost no fresh vegetables.

So as Mrs. Morgan went about speaking to women's club and children's schools she would tell the story of her husband.

"I tell them," she revealed today, "that my husband spent his boyhood in Minnesota, where they hadn't many fresh fruits, but did have plenty of fresh vegetables; how he ate raw carrots. Then I tell them how he grew to be six feet two, and the youngsters' eyes light up; they are immediately interested."

She is looking for a high per capita carrot consumption in the Tennessee valley this year.

THE WILD BIRD

By OWEN JOHNSON

SYNOPSIS.

Barbara Brawne, aged 22, is completely dominated by a jealous father, who is against every modern idea and improvement. Their home is in the prim and proper village of Oxbridge, a place of intellectual sanctity. Barbara seems predestined to join the ranks of the village spinsters. Leaving a meeting of the committee on the poorhouse, Barbara contemplates rebellion. While waiting for her father at the railroad station Barbara meets Gregory Rance, a noted novelist. He mistakes her for the sister of Laurie Chiswick, whom he has come to visit. There is a mutual attraction.

INSTALLMENT III.

A JEALOUS PARENT.

Rance released Barbara's hand, laughed his rumbling, full chested laugh and turned away.

Through the sifting crowd a little man about five feet three, in pepper and salt cutaway, square boots, square gray Derby, stiff shirt, and modified Gladstone collar was approaching. A big chest, thin, birdlike legs slightly bowed, a head like a gourd, where the dry, loose cheeks hung like empty valises, horn rimmed spectacles sunk on the nose that was sharp and bent inward. It was her father. She went to him and drew her arm through his. He never kissed her in public.

"Who was that you were talking to?" he asked immediately.

"That? The big man?"

"Yes."

"That was Mr. Rance—Gregory Rance, the writer, you know. I brought your overcoat. Put it on."

The footman tucked the lap robe about them, sprang to the box and they rolled away.

"What are you looking at?" he asked, noticing that she had turned her head.

"Feminine curiosity," she replied frowning, for she knew that she was in for the usual cross-examination. "Evangeline's fiancé came up on the train. You know Uncle Tony is announcing the engagement tomorrow night."

"I wish he hadn't done that," she thought somberly. "It makes it harder."

"Evangeline? That baby?"

"She's almost twenty, father."

"Twenty, a mere child!"

She knew the purport of the remark, but as she was in no mood to discuss she remained silent.

The flaring headlights of the motors swept past them. They turned at the square and went down the great main street where the high tracery of the elms cut black against the risen moon. At the Chiswick mansion the door was open and she saw the lights streaming across the lawn as the guests were clambering out.

"Where did you meet the fellow? What's his name, Rance? You never mentioned him before."

"Now for it," she thought. To tell the truth would be to prejudice him at once. She said aloud with an air of indifference, "He's up with Laurie. I've never met him before."

"You were talking to him as though you knew him."

"He was watching me," she thought, stiffening. "Of course, I was interested in meeting him. I adore his books."

"O, you do?"

"Yes, naturally."

"Is he going to marry Evangeline?"

She saw a way out.

"It's quite possible. Probably he's the one."

He cleared his throat, relaxed, and said:

"Everything all right in the family?"

She gave him the budget of news and the weekly weather report.

He drew her arm through his.

"You're looking uncommonly pretty."

"Now father——"

"I like your hat; new, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"Well, what have you been doing all week?"

"I? O, it's always the same with me, you know."

"Out to dinner?"

She stiffened.

"Once, Miss Mintie. Lunched at Uncle Tony's."

"Any one there?"

She laughed.

"No young man. Don't worry."

"I only meant——" He cleared his throat and added hurriedly, "I brought you up some books—and a little present."

"A present?"

"The emerald earrings you liked."

"But father——"

"Nonsense. I can afford them—for you." He took a little box out of his pocket and slipped it into her hand. "Just the thing for your new evening dress."

She drew his head down and kissed him.

"Will you ever stop spoiling me!"

"Never!" he cried buoyantly and took her hand happily in his.

"I wish he hadn't done that," she thought somberly, "not just tonight. It makes it harder."

They crossed the meadows and clattered over the bridge where the pale reflection of the moon was floating in the dark waters of the Housatonic, up the hill, turned into their driveway and arrived. Barbara escaped to her room.

When she descended the long carpeted stairs, with heavy arched doorways to the candle lit vestibule, the aunts were already in the high salon on the twin sofas which flanked the black marble fireplace. Barbara never entered the lofty stateliness of the room without a feeling of stepping back fifty years into a predestined past. It was impossible to come romping into it. Even her cousins, the irrepressible Chiswicks, never ventured to smoke there. The wall paper was of a faded magenta with repeated glimpses of exaggerated birds swinging on tropical flowers. A gold rimmed mirror over the fireplace that reached to the painted ceiling reflected the heavy magenta curtains and the brass cornices of the big French windows. There was a great Aubusson carpet and stretches of polished wood floors. The rosewood Balta furniture was of the heavy Victorian period, before society had degenerated into lounging in cushioned armchairs, stiffly upholstered, with bulging lines and massive feet. At one end was an alcove with ferns and a marble statue of a cupid clipping his wings to signify that love had come to abide in the household. On the walls, monumental, musty tableaux, products of the Hudson River school, depicted mountain lakes, allegorical representations of the ages of man, staccato rainbows over salad green landscapes. The gilt clock on the mantelpiece [Minerva decently clad] was under a glass top between massive silver candlesticks in glass cups. The room was filled with large tables, little round tables, little square tables, and that vanished article known as a whatnot; all covered with knicknacks, ivory monkeys, sad eyed Staffordshire dogs, red glass vases. There were half a dozen albums of family pictures and stiffly posed daguerreotypes in red plush frames. Two Persian cats were slumbering by the fireplace, where the aunts on either side were warming their transparent hands when Barbara entered.

The aunts [they were never separated in the imagination of Oxbridge—even their brother used the inclusive term] had glided quietly down the sixties and into the seventies unperturbed and unconscious of the changing world. One was failing in hearing and had consented to an ear trumpet; the other was failing in sight, but which was which no one could remember. They were equally thin and bent over the shoulders and their skirts when they worked in the flower beds hitched up behind, showing their white cotton stockings. In the last years the bony structure of the face had come into prominence so that their profiles had become masculine, recalling the dominant noses and chins of their male forebears.

Girls Respond to Confident, Sure Approach

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Alphonse, twenty-four, has never had a girl. Too eccentric, he thinks, too bashful and scared. He has been a serious student, too, we take it, with night courses in a number of things in addition to his daily job.

Well, study and work are not sufficient, Alphonse finds. But when, where, and how is he ever going to meet up with girls? He doesn't know how to act or talk with them, being totally untrained. He's scared of them, too. They all seem so marvelous, so out of reach to Alphonse.

They're not so marvelous, nor so out of reach, Alphonse! Digest that fact first.

The approach to a girl, unless she is the mothering, pitying kind, must be made with confidence, Alphonse. The average girl can't fall for a gentleman who apologizes for himself. If she's going to give her heart away, she's looking for a fair bargain. So, you have to sell her the idea that she is getting something quite fine in men. No self-confessed inferior grade is wanted.

How to reach out for a girl? You have to go where girls are. It may take some prodding to get that half-reluctant You dressed up and on the way to meet girls, but you're the only boy who is interested enough in you to get you there. Mark that advice and don't expect others to do your looking for you.

Then, you must bring certain graces with you, the ability to talk easily, to make suggestions on entertainment, to say sweet and agreeable nothings in the fair one's ear.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1934: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE MISSING MILLIONAIRE.

The day following their return to New York after the close of A Century of Progress, a package was handed to Kelley as he and the professor sat in the former's office at police headquarters. Examining its contents the inspector said, "Well, Joe, this may be the solution to the disappearance of the millionaire Burkton who absconded on his yacht with over two million in bills and gold bullion. Remember?"

"Distinctly," Fordney replied. "Let's see now; it was just 36 years ago this month when Burkton left New York and after being sighted by the SS. Billings in the South seas three months later, he, his ship or his crew were never heard of again."

"Right, Joe. But read this," Kelley said handing him a piece of paper he had taken from a watertight bottle. Whoever finds this please have the authorities broadcast by radio my location as somewhere near 18 degrees south latitude and 179 degrees west longitude. I am the sole survivor of my yacht, the Burktonian, wrecked 4 months after I left New York, and I have been living on this island without sight of a human being or any indication of civilization for a year. While there is food in abundance I shall go mad unless soon rescued. Will try and hold out until help arrives.

[signed] EDWARD BURKTON.

The criminologist took out his cigar case, handed Kelley a Corona and remarked with a smile, "The location is undoubtedly one of the Fiji islands, and while some of them I know are uninhabited, that message is not from the mysterious Edward Burkton!"

HOW DID HE KNOW?

[See solution on page 29.]

The Duncans Will Reopen 'Topsy' Show

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The Duncan Sisters closed their engagement in "Topsy and Eva" at the Apollo theater last Saturday night. Yesterday they decided to reopen their musical frolic next Saturday afternoon again at the Apollo for an indefinite run. This curious incident of theatrical management is officially explained by an announcement that Rosetta ["Topsy"] Duncan has been sick and is recovering. Rialto gossips, however, hint at a revision of terms in the stars' contract with the Apollo management.

"The Mad Lover," a drama dealing with the life of Lord Byron, will be staged in the Punch and Judy theater early in February, with Glenn Hunter in the central rôle. It was written by Mrs. Melanie Koll of Chicago, whose comedy, "The Sunday Husband," was recently withdrawn from rehearsals by the management of the Studebaker theater.

The Players Guild, a semi-professional organization, will stage "The Crime at Blossom's," an English mystery play, in the Chicago Woman's club theater for performances Jan. 25, 26, and 27. It was written by Mordaunt Shairp, author of "The Green Bay Tree," a current hit in New York.

The cast of "Elizabeth Sleeps Out," the play to be produced in the Studebaker theater next Sunday night, will contain Carrie Reynolds, Marie Nelson, Margaret Fitch, Mabel Leigh, Philip Dakin, Robert Brister, Oscar O'Shea, and Edward Bailey. Leslie Howard, the star of "Berkeley Square" and current films, is the author of this comedy, which had a brief engagement in the Princess theater about seven years ago under the title of "Washington Square."

business with several easterners. Mrs. Ownings is in Santa Fé visiting her brother and sister-in-law, the Raymond Otises.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Adams of 1235 Astor street will be host and hostess at the cocktail hour, 5 o'clock, Friday afternoon.

The Walter S. Brewsters have added another cocktail party to Sunday's already crowded calendar of social events. They have invited their guests for 5:30 o'clock.

McCutcheons Going to Treasure Island.

When Mr. and Mrs. John T. McCutcheon sail from New York on Jan. 31 for their Treasure Island near Nassau in the Bahamas they will be taking with them their youngest son, Barr; Mrs. McCutcheon's sister, Miss Theodora Shaw, and their pet dog. Miss Shaw is going to spend six weeks on the island. John McCutcheon Jr., who is at the Milton academy, will join his parents for the spring vacation, and the middle boy, Shaw, who is in school here, will stay with his grandmother, Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw, until Easter time, when he, too, will join his family.

The Joseph Griswold Colemans of Santa Barbara are arriving on Friday for a three days' visit in Chicago. They will be at the Ambassador where Mrs. Coleman Sr. lives. Mr. and Mrs. Coleman are on their way to New York, having motored as far as Memphis, but the rest of the trip is being made by rail.

Mrs. Preston Brown, wife of the commanding officer of the 6th Corps area, is not coming to Chicago to live until March 1. She is at present at her home in Meadville, Pa., and will remain there until she joins Gen. Brown in Panama for the wedding of their son, Dorrance, to Miss Jane Evans, which is taking place there on Feb. 8. Gen. and Mrs. Brown will return to Chicago together.

Early in March Arthur T. Hellyer is sailing with his son, Frederick Hellyer, on his usual spring business trip to the Orient. They will go directly to Shizuoka in Japan where they will spend the following six months.

Young Arthur Hellyer will remain here, meantime devoting himself to business and ice hockey . . . the latter at least for another couple of months. Unfortunately Mr. Hellyer and Donald R. McLennan Jr. were never able to round up enough of their friends to organize the amateur ice hockey team they had hoped to form this year.

News of Travel, Winter Vacations.

When Mrs. Gardiner H. Hammond said "good-bye" to her brother, Rothwell Sherriff, who came out from New York to spend the Christmas holidays with her in Geneva, she wished him "bon voyage" as well, for he sailed last week with five eastern friends on a trip to South America.

Gen. and Mrs. Robert E. Wood left Highland Park Sunday for Washington, where Mrs. Wood is going to spend a week with Gen. Wood before she goes to Georgia and then Florida. She will be at home again on March 1.

Every one has heard so many enchanting things about the Panama Canal Zone and the ocean trip from New York via the canal to California that many people who go to the Pacific coast every winter are traveling that way. Mrs. William F. Burrows and her daughter, Miss Louisa Burrows, are the latest travelers to adopt the ocean route. They are in New York now and are sailing on Friday. They plan to go to Pasadena first, but perhaps they will spend the rest of the winter in Arizona instead of in California.

It is evident that Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wolf like their Winnetka house very much, for they are staying in it this winter instead of in their apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive. They have rented their apartment to the John W. Kieckhefers of Milwaukee, who will be occupying it for quite a long time. Mrs. Kieckhefer drove down from the Wisconsin city last Saturday to start settling her personal possessions. They have a daughter, Betty, who is at Miss Wheeler's school in Providence, R. I., and a son, who will continue his studies in Milwaukee for the time being.

Woman's A. C. Elects Officers.

Members of the Woman's Athletic club will have their first opportunity to congratulate their new officers at the luncheon following the lecture that Walter B. Pitkin, author of "Life Begins at Forty," is giving at 11 o'clock Friday morning.

At the annual meeting yesterday Mrs. Andrew B. MacCaughey was reelected president. Other officers elected were: Mrs. H. Newton Hudson, first vice president; Mrs. Alfred C. Tyler, second vice president; Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, third vice president; Mrs. William Sherman Hay, recording secretary; Mrs. Frank P. Graves, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Raymond C. Dudley, treasurer.

The chairmen of the various committees are Mrs. William F. Petersen, membership; Mrs. Stanley Zaring, athletic and natatorial; Mrs. Harry B. Clow, bath and personal service; Mrs. Alan Clement, printing; Mrs. William Nelson Pelouze, program; Mrs. George L. Cragg, publicity, and Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, rules.

Miss Helen Wilkins is the president of the Juniors of the Kenwood Social Service club for the new year. Mrs. S. H. Warren is the vice president; Miss Lois Dodd, the treasurer, and Mrs. H. Ferris White, secretary.

The senior organization has chosen Mrs. George B. Cross for its president, with Mrs. Faris Chesley and Mrs. Broadus Clark, first and second vice presidents; Mrs. Alan Lockard and Mrs. George Richards, corresponding and recording secretaries, and Mrs. Kenneth MacLellan, treasurer.

Sixteen past presidents of the Sunbeam league are to be special guests of the league at a musical and tea this afternoon at the Stevens hotel. A short business session at 2 o'clock will precede the program at 3. Mrs. John R. Dewson, the sixteenth president of the group, will be the hostess.

Society Again Shows Interest in Dance Art

Time and again Chicago's society world has been characterized as dance conscious. Never has the idea been proved more definitely, however, than it was last evening when Nini Theilade, 18 years old, captivated the distinguished audience that watched her interpretations at Orchestra hall.

Wearing their best evening gowns and their loveliest ermines, hundreds of fashionables came in a festive frame of mind. They applauded the little artist first as a piece of Danish porcelain, as Diana, and again as a lotus flower. Then they reminded each other that after all she ought to be good for she was discovered by no less a person than Anna Pavlowa.

A benefit for the Vocational Society for Shut-Ins, the performance had a dual reason for popularity. Today Mrs. Meta Dewes Burgweger, the president of the society who was hostess to one of the largest dinner and box parties last night, will find that the proceeds surpass the highest hopes.

Focus of all eyes on the main floor last night were Miss Edith Cummings and Curtis B. Munson of New York, whose engagement was announced on Monday. Miss Cummings pinned a huge corsage of deep lavender orchids to the lapel of her long ermine wrap. In color they matched her clinging crêpe gown.

Arriving with Miss Cummings and Mr. Munson were Miss Peggy Hambleton, Miss Eleanor Holden, wearing ermine over a black satin dress, and the Howard Linns. . . Mrs. Linn striking in a gown of gold tissue.

Because the Laird Bells are on the high seas, Berlin bound, Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter were host and hostess in one of the Bells' boxes to Mr. and Mrs. Rosecrans Baldwin, Miss Alice Rouiller, and Livingston Fairbank. In the other the Bells' daughter, Miss Helen Bell, entertained her cousin, Miss Janet Fairbank, the Ambrose Cramers, Shepard Vogelgesang and Talbott Wegg.

The younger generation proved further that it liked dancing mingled with the songs of an opera star. One of the gayest young parties was a Dutch treat affair with Miss Lucy Harrison, stunning in an ankle length red velvet wrap, petite Virginia Thatcher, and dark eyed Jean O'Brien, "beaued" by Hugh McWilliams, Jack Brittingham, and McClellan Wallace.

A coterie of postdebs decorated the lower foyer distributing programs to all of the concert goers. Tall, stately, Dorothy Dewes was one of these. The others were the Gordon sisters, Isobel and Marion, Miss Alice Mae Dickinson, and Miss Helen Marie Castle. Miss Jean Hyman and Miss Marie Louise Gardner assisted on the box floor.

Mitchell Follansbee brought Miss Theodora Shaw to the recital while Miss Jeanette Schreiner, wearing a black evening wrap that was designed with the empire period in mind, came in a party that included her sister, Miss Lura Schreiner.

Perhaps no one was more appreciative of Theilade's performance than the Danish consul general, Reimund Bowman, and Mrs. Bowman, since they share the artist's nationality. The Bowmans had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. H. G. B. Deans and Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth MacKenzie, who leave next week for a California vacation.

ATTEND OPERA

The regular Tuesday night boxholders and many who had taken boxes especially to attend "Turandot" filled the Chicago Civic Opera house for the second performance of Puccini's last opera last night.

Mrs. William P. Conger occupied a main floor box. Her guests were Mrs. John W. Gary, Ove Vett of Denmark, Arthur Wheeler, and Ralph Pierce.

The Clifford T. Caldwells, Donald S. Boynton, and Mrs. Freeman Hinckley were present. Mrs. Hinckley and her guests came in shortly after the curtain rose on the first act and were so anxious not to miss a note of the much talked of opera that they strung out in single file across the foyer, hurrying to their seats; first Mrs. Hinckley, in ever fashionable black; then Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, Mrs. Wilhelm Baum, Mrs. Joseph Defries, Miss Harriet Stewart, and Mrs. Jacob Baur, who carried a huge muff of ermine and black velvet.

In the main floor seats were Miss Margaret McLennan and her brother, Donald R. McLennan Jr., and their house guest, Miss Margaret Ames of Duluth, a pretty young lady who wore a fetching jacket of seal brown velvet trimmed with sable over a gown of gold crêpe. Gaylord Donnelley was Miss McLennan's escort, and conversing with that quartet were charming Miss Paula Uihlein, in écru lace, and Kellogg Fairbank Jr.

Women's Board of Passavant Guests at Tea

Discuss Performance of Noted Ballet.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

If Mrs. Francis Johnson were not one of the most popular women in society, she might have been able to keep a secret yesterday afternoon when she entertained the members of the woman's board of Passavant hospital at tea in her handsome apartment at 1430 Lake Shore drive.

Dozens of flowers, however . . . purple tulips in her boudoir and giant vases of red and white roses in the drawing and music rooms . . . gave away to her three dozen guests that it was her birthday.

Aside from the purely social, the party was for the purpose of discussing plans for the Passavant benefit on Feb. 16, which is to present the Monte Carlo ballet in recital in the old Auditorium. It is expected to be one of the brilliant social events of the midwinter season and one of the most successful.

The latter was proved yesterday when Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, stunning in a royal purple costume, reported the sale of 39 boxes out of the 52 and more than 150 main floor seats, this since the benefit was first announced last Friday.

"It's the greatest thing Passavant has ever done," announced Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, who, as president of the woman's board before Mrs. Johnson, has engineered many a successful benefit performance herself. "I've never known anything to arouse so much enthusiasm before."

Thomas Fisher, one of the few Chicagoans ever to have seen the Monte Carlo ballet perform, arrived late to give a few highlights on the coming performance. Incidentally, Mrs. Fisher, professionally known as Ruth Page, is the only American ever to have danced with the ballet.

"And then when you add to the glamour of the program itself the beneficiary of the proceeds, is it any wonder that every one is reserving Feb. 16 to go to the Auditorium?" Mrs. Coleman continued. "All of the benefits accrue to the Passavant free bed fund which is raised entirely by the woman's aid [or board] and totals $6,000 annually. You know we used to be called the 'Ladies' Aid.' I guess we are no longer ladies."

To handle the sale of the 13 boxes and the rest of the seats the board has opened an office at 946 North Michigan avenue [the telephone number is Sup. 6262]. Various board members will take turns each day as the office hostesses.

Among the guests were Mrs. James R. Offield, Mrs. Harry H. Shearson, Mrs. Bryan S. Reid, Mrs. Orville J. Taylor, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, Mrs. Rudolph W. Holmes, Mrs. Frank E. Wilhelm, Mrs. Mark W. Trude, Mrs. Gardiner Van Ness, Mrs. Andrew J. Dallstream, and Mrs. Walter Templin.

Concentration Often Hard for 'Teen Age Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Overheard in a train:

"So nice to see you—we so seldom have a chance to talk together. How are the girls?" said the woman in brown.

"Busy of course. It seems funny to think this time next year I'll have a daughter coming home from college for the holidays," said the woman in gray.

"Is it possible? Dorothy finishing high school this year? And John will be just entering next fall."

"How old is he now? Thirteen? Well, you'll see a big change in the next two years."

"Yes, I suppose so. We're having a time now. He's getting so big—but he's still a little boy in so many ways," and then she went on:

"It's the funniest thing to see him doing his homework. He has the most terrible time concentrating. He'll sit down, get out all his books, sharpen his pencils, and work for about ten minutes. Then up he'll jump, rough the dog, and roll around on the floor with him. At a gentle reminder, he jumps up, flops himself into his chair, pulls up to the table and starts in again.

"Fifteen minutes pass. Up he gets again and bang! his chair goes over backward onto the floor. He sits down at the piano and plays chopsticks or picks out some tune with one finger.

"Back he goes to his homework, pulling his chair forward with a scrape. He's let off a little steam, and it helps. Quiet reigns for a while.

"Then we hear a wholehearted yawn and groan mixed. Back goes the chair again. 'I gotta stretch,' we hear, and legs suit the action to the word. 'Oh boy,' he'll say, 'I wish I could just flop tonight and listen to the radio and read.' It's so hard for him to settle down to study, especially after he's been out sledding or skiing all the afternoon."

"We've been all through it," said the other woman. And they laughed in sympathy.

When we think we're "going through things" with our boys and girls who are adolescent or pre-adolescent, we must bear in mind that they're going through something, too. Concentration on studies is not always easy with a body that's growing fast—that's developing unevenly—with muscles that cry for activity—or else wants complete rest. We need a great patience and an appreciation of their trials and tribulations.

Short Skirts Coming; Get Ankles Trim

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The skirt length prediction for spring and summer, 1934, is short. Quite short! Almost back to the flapper-short-age!

We shall see what we shall see when spring rolls around. It seems too quick a jump from ankle length to knee. But, then, where woman and her wayward fancy are concerned you never can tell.

If it comes to pass that the girls will be little girls again by spring, don't blame us for not tipping you off to the leg and ankle trimming need. Under those lengthened skirts you may have got a bit careless and let the calf thicken. If the short skirt prediction comes true, you may be sure that even better ankles will be demanded than in the last short skirt era. The reason? Well, women have gone a long way in other beautifying directions since that flapper era. Their hair, makeup, hands and silhouettes have been in the processing of polishing and improving until they're pretty nearly perfection. No less will be required of the ankle turn and the leg symmetry.

I'll guarantee a leg and ankle that'll get you mentioned in a stocking ad if you'll do a few leg exercises daily between now and spring. I'm allowing time enough for the beautifying remember. Legs and ankles do take more time than waist and hips to get in shape. For what reason I don't know. Sheer orneriness, mebbe, because we want that snappy ankle so much.

Anyway, here goes exercise No. 1. Hop. With hands on hips, hop first on right leg, then on left and then with both. Then hop to side straddle and return [hands on hips] or hop cross-legged. You can do this times without number. Do it fifty, anyway.

Then, as No. 3, do the knee bend or the squatting exercise. At first bend only one-quarter way and later the full bend or squat. Women, for some peculiar reason, have to take this in easy stages—but it is marvelous for legs and ankles.

BY MARY MEADE.

You've heard a thousand people say it, and most likely you've made that remark, one way or another, yourself. But what most of us mean by it is that for every day meals we simply can't be bothered with a lot of time taking cookery tricks and trimmings, even though they most certainly do add snap and grace to the meal.

But what we'll also remark, if you give us time, is that, while the majority of the three meals a day have to get to the table in pretty short order, there are special occasions, not infrequently, when company, a birth day, or a Sunday family party coax for a little dressing up which can so easily be given it, if we have taught ourselves a few tricks with cutters, pastry bags, cut relish trimmings, and such. Especially right now I'm thinking in terms of dressing up that prosaic affair, the pat of butter.

Most of us, for various very good reasons, have graduated to butter which we buy wrapped in the quarter pounds. If your family custom has been to unwrap a package and send it tableward uncut, even the simple job of making it into patties will lend a bit of extra swank to the meal. One pleasant way is to cut the butter brick in a little more than quarter inch slices and press lightly onto the flat side of each square, a small bit of parsley. Place these pats in rows, a bit overlapping, on a plate and chill well before tabling them. Or neatly place a patty upon each cool bread and butter plate with an additional supply ready, keeping cool.

As you've likely discovered, a warm knife may be used to cut these patties, but a still more successful way is simply to slip a two inch wide strip of waxed paper over the knife, holding the ends well above the top edge. Now cut down through the bar and you'll have no sticking or splintering of butter.

But these, after all, are not the best of our butter tricks. There are also butter balls, curls and fancy, molded butter pats. To prepare balls it's all important to have the butter just at the right consistency, cold but not too hard. Secure two wooden butter paddles at any department store and chill them in ice water, or on ice. Then cut the butter into even pieces and let it stand in cold water a few minutes before shaping. Now, place the butter piece between the cold, wet paddles, and rotate them, pressing the butter gently into a fat, round ball. Make as many as you need. Put them on a plate in the refrigerator and keep them chilled. If, during the rolling, the butter and paddles get too chummy and start sticking together simply wash the sticks and scald them, then chill thoroughly and continue. Be sure that the butter is sufficiently cold.

Before these butter balls are served they may take on various sorts of coats. Roll them in finely minced parsley. Or dust them with paprika and put in a feather of parsley for a stem for each. Roll them lightly over a sieve or vegetable grater and they'll turn up neatly checked or prickled. Also, oblong rolls result by a slightly different motion of the paddles. Use these plain or decorated, or do a quick bit of modeling and you have a yellow baby parsnip, needing only a parsley feather in the big end to make it complete.

Butter curls are likewise much fun and still easier to make. Simply draw the chilled cutter, obtainable at any large department store, across the surface of the butter, and, presto! off comes a squat curl just right for a partified bread and butter plate. Little pat molds also are obtainable, many of them with pleasing small designs on their tops. The butter is simply pressed in, when soft, and allowed to chill.

Chanel's Collar Flatters Frocks Both New and Old

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Chanel's practical daytime dresses with collars that have a nunlike modesty are one of the style hits of the Paris midseason shows. They belong in the muffle-up-your-throat movement that has fashion so closely in its grip this winter. Few frocks that run about the town show more than a few inches of throat. These necklines are in a lot of cases hard to wear, but the Chanel way of tying on a cloistered velvet collar is flattering to most women, except those with chins in duplicate.

The Chanel collar, as shown in our sketch, affords the clever girl a chance to freshen up her slightly stale winter frock, as it is easy to contrive and still is the latest thing in neckline trimming. Chanel makes this round collar of lively American beauty red velvet with a small standing collar which ties in front in a floppy bow of the kind movie portrait painters wear.

The dress is made of a rather light grayed blue woolen, and this color goes exquisitely with the rich tone of the red collar. The sleeves are Chanel's favorite kind, just not fitted, and held at the wrists with narrow buttoned bands. A wide belt of the material buttons in front. The skirt is flared a bit in front by slight circular movement.

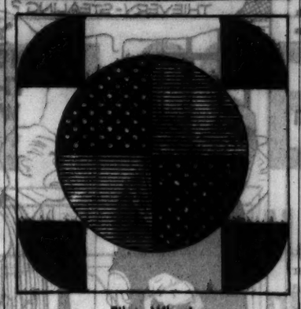
Pilot's Wheel Is Nautical Theme of Distinctive Quilt



Pilot Wheel.

BY NANCY CABOT.

A nautical turn of mind probably was responsible for this attractive pieced quilt. Its origin is obscure, but the quilt undoubtedly was originated in some seaside cottage, or seaport village. White, blue, yellow, and green comprise the color scheme of the "Pilot Wheel."

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service office, One South Dearborn street.

Food Facts worth KNOWING

The delicious, tangy flavor of Canned Applesauce is unique. It is almost impossible to get this delightful flavor in applesauce made at home, because you can make it only from the type of apples which happen to be in the market.

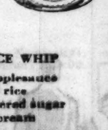
CANNED APPLESAUCE

is a blend of apples of distinctly different flavors

The flavor of Canned Applesauce is controlled, its consistency and texture are pleasing and appetizing. It is healthful, nourishing and delicious.

It is both economical and convenient. Don't spend time peeling, coring and cooking apples that may not make good sauce. You will find it more satisfactory to buy Canned Applesauce.

Ideal as a breakfast dish, it also makes wonderful desserts. Buy a can at your grocer's and try this recipe:



APPLESAUCE RICE WHIP

1 cupful Canned Applesauce
1 cupful cold boiled rice
½ to 1 cupful powdered sugar
1 cupful whipping cream

Mix applesauce and rice and sugar, then fold in stiffly beaten cream. Chill one hour. Serve in sherbet glasses.

DAIRY OFFICIAL DIES IN LOOP HOTEL PLUNGE

Frank H. Kullman, 63 years old, vice president and general manager of the Bowman Dairy company and one of the leading figures in the milk industry in Chicago, leaped or fell to his death yesterday from a window on the 13th floor of the Hotel La Salle. The police expressed the belief that he had committed suicide.

His body was found in an alley at the northwest corner of the hotel, about 75 feet north of Madison street. Directly above it a 13th floor window leading to a fire escape was open. Mr. Kullman had registered at the hotel several hours before his death under the name of F. A. Saunders and was placed in room 1310, which is on the Madison street side some distance from the open window.

For the last several months he had been in ill health. About two weeks ago he suffered a nervous breakdown, which his personal physician, Dr. Italo Volini, 245 North Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park, attributed to the strain under which he had been working as a result of the recent milk price controversies and unsettled conditions in his business.

Goes to Office, Then to Church.

Mr. Kullman left his home at 7309 North Ashland avenue at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and went to his office at the dairy concern. He remained there about an hour and then had his chauffeur, Maurice Debaetz, drive him to St. Peter's Catholic church, 816 South Clark street.

After talking with a priest for a while he emerged and was driven to St. Mary's Catholic church, 911 South Wabash avenue. It was 11 o'clock when he went inside after directing his chauffeur to wait for him. Debaetz waited until 4 o'clock and then, becoming worried, went inside and learned that Mr. Kullman was not there. He was still waiting at the church when he learned of his employer's death.

Mr. Kullman had been associated with the Bowman Dairy company for 43 years. He rose from a clerkship, in which position he at times delivered milk on the company's routes, to active management of one of the largest dairy concerns in the central states. The company now controls more than a third of the retail milk and cream business in the Chicago area. Mr. Kullman had been recognized as the leader in the organized Chicago milk companies' negotiations for nearly a quarter of a century.

Leader Among Dairymen.

Mr. Kullman had been president of the Chicago Milk Bottle exchange since its formation and was a director of the International Milk Dealers' association, the Dairymen's Country club at Boulder Junction, Wis., the Milk Council, Inc., and the Milk Foundation, Inc. He was a member of the Lake Shore Athletic club.

Last May when farmers threatened a strike for higher milk prices, Mr. Kullman led a delegation of milk dealers to Washington in the first application for a code under the Agricultural Adjustment administration. Throughout the negotiations between dealers and producers he has been a dominant figure until recently.

Faced with increasing competition from independent dairies during recent weeks, he advised his own and other milk companies to reduce retail prices and also labor and farm prices. His stand caused a split in the dealers' ranks and, during the recent strike, he was displaced as chief spokesman in the negotiations over farm prices and wage adjustments.

Advised to Take Best.

His poor health also was said to have been a factor in his relinquishment of the post. His doctor had advised him to take a rest and go south for a few weeks, but the recent milk strike caused Mr. Kullman to remain here.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Clara Kullman; four sons, Paul, Francis, Robert and Thomas, and four daughters, Clara, Dorothy, Marguerite and Marcella. All his sons except Paul, who is a doctor, are associated with the Bowman Dairy company.

DENTIST ROBBED OF $36.

Dr. M. J. Perlis, 5323 Woodlawn avenue, a dentist with offices 30 North Michigan avenue, was robbed of $36 last night by two men who accosted him in the vestibule of his home, pushed him against a wall and choked him into submission.

600 DEPUTIES GUARD CHRISTIAN CO. IN FEAR OF MINERS' INVASION

Taylorville, Ill., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Six hundred deputy sheriffs, nearly all sympathizers with the United Mine Workers union, patrolled tonight the roads of Christian county and prepared to defend themselves and four mines of the Peabody Coal company against a rumored invasion by 10,000 miners of the Progressive union faction from counties to the south.

Bales of hay barricaded most of the hard roads and the deputies searched them to make sure that the Progressives do not blow up the mines employing United Mine Workers. The invasion, due tonight, was reported off until tomorrow.

Military observers said that two companies of National Guard at Springfield and two at Decatur stood ready for call if trouble developed.

ARBITERS CUT PRICE PAID FOR FARMERS' MILK

25 Cent Reduction on 100 Pounds.

they pay farmers the standard prices for all milk purchased. They held that it was imperative that the enforcement should be impartial and complete.

There was considerable underground evidence last night that the city will be faced with a stern fight in its enforcement efforts. Some thirty distributors who have been buying their milk supplies at prices far under those now set have not signed the arbitration agreement and others who did sign are understood to have contracts already signed for cheaper supplies. Some of the latter group, it is said, have let it be known they intend to fight to carry on their businesses as individual entities.

Statement of Arbiters.

In their statement last night the arbiters said:

"We have listened to evidence relating to cost of production and distribution, and we frankly admit that there are so many diverse elements and considerations entering into the studies of costs of production and distribution that it is impossible for us to arrive, within the time available, at a satisfactory appraisal of this perplexing problem."

D. N. Geyer, general manager of the Pure Milk association, said that farmers would not be satisfied with the new prices, but would abide by the arbitration agreement. On the other hand, John Laue, president of the Chicago Milk Dealers association, composed of small dealers pledged to pay the award price, said the small reduction in the farm price would make business existence difficult for his group.

Gang Weapons Are Melted to Make CWA Work Tools

More than 200 shotguns, pistols, revolvers, and daggers seized from criminals were thrown into a furnace at the Ferguson & Lang iron foundry at 1039 Willow street yesterday to be melted for manufacture soon into peaceful picks and shovels for CWA workers. Judge Harold P. O'Connell in the Felony court ordered that the weapons be converted into needed tools, which will be presented to CWA officials in a public ceremony.

RESTAURANT OWNER ROBBED.

Two Negroes slugged Herbert Moss yesterday as he was opening his restaurant at 2 East Roosevelt road and robbed him of $117 and his watch.

AFTER 11 DELAYS WALKER'S KIN GOES ON TRIAL

New York, Jan. 16.—[Special.]—After eleven delays, William H. Walker Jr., nephew of Jimmie Walker, former mayor, went on trial today on a felonious assault charge brought by Margaret Shore, Jersey City tap dancer.

Because of the nature of the testimony, Magistrate Overton Harris cleared the court when Miss Shore took the stand and said Walker had "brutally attacked" her in a hotel.

"I was working as cigaret girl in a night club," she said. "I went up to the hotel there. I was given one drink. It was drugged and I became unconscious."

She said that she remembered nothing until she opened her eyes in a hospital, where she was confined four weeks.

She has brought a civil suit for $250,000 against Walker, alleging physical and nervous shock.

Avoid costly WINTER DRAG with this new motor oil

EVER DRIVE THROUGH MUD? Then you know how mud sticks to the wheels, how hard it makes the going. But did you know the wrong motor oil behaves the same way in cold weather?

WRONG OIL STICKS LIKE MUD. Look at what cold has done to this oil (below)—made it sticky and thick. Imagine an engine trying to plow through that. Think of the extra work it makes for your engine.

WINTER DRAG EATS UP GASOLINE

DRAG SLOWS DOWN STARTING. Stiff, clinging oil has cut down engine speed, and slow engine speed means slow starting. Get rid of winter drag. It eats up gasoline.

END DRAG—GET MORE MILEAGE. When drag goes, engines turn over faster, start quicker. You use your gasoline to drive the wheels, not to work against the oil. You definitely increase the mileage you get per gallon of gasoline.

Special Winter Grade Iso-Vis "D" does not get sticky in cold weather—lets your engine turn over faster—gives easier starting—saves gasoline

Ordinary oil gets thick and sticky—clings like mud to a wagon wheel—in cold weather. It clutches pistons and cylinders, causing a heavy drag that slows down your engine, makes starting harder, uses up power after you get under way.

That's why we co-operated with car manufacturers to create two new grades of motor oil especially for winter—Iso-Vis "D" 10-W and 20-W.

These new grades resist thickening at low temperatures to an unheard of degree. They give your engine free play in bitter cold—let it turn over easily and start quickly. They end winter drag.

Ending winter drag gives you greater gasoline mileage. Your pistons spend their energy driving the wheels, not plowing through thick oil. Actually, through this one factor alone, you may get several extra miles per gallon of gasoline.

These new winter grades pour in sub-zero weather. They do not thin out dangerously under heat. They will not sludge. Change to this easy starting, drag-free oil now. At all Standard Stations.

BLACKHAWKS LEAD FIVE TIMES, BUT LOSE, 6-5

CHICAGOANS GET FRANCHISE IN GRAND CIRCUIT

Plan Meeting Here in September.

Chicago devotees of harness racing will have their first view of Grand circuit competition, the "big league" of the sport, next Sept. 10, when the newly organized Chicago Horsemen's club will open a six day meeting at the Cook county fairgrounds, River road and North avenue.

THOMAS HOGAN.

The club, comprising a number of Chicago business men, was granted a franchise and awarded the fall dates at the annual meeting of the stewards of the circuit at Cleveland, O., yesterday.

The first meeting of the Horsemen's club will be held at the Sherman hotel at 6:30 p. m. on Jan. 24. At that time officers will be elected and plans made for the race meeting.

Lease Fair Grounds.

Behind the movement are Henry H. Knight of the General Motors corporation, Thomas B. Hogan of the Yellow Cab company, Robert W. McIlvain of the Pure Oil company, W. D. Boyd of the Armour Leather company, Frank B. Fulton, an attorney; William E. Schmidt, funeral director; Edward J. Baker, St. Charles, Ill., and George B. Dryden of the Dryden Rubber company. It is expected that officers and directors will be chosen from this list.

Mr. Hogan announced yesterday, upon receipt of news from Cleveland, that a franchise had been granted that the club had leased the county fair grounds for the duration of the meeting and that there will be no pari-mutuel or other wagering on the races. No stock will be sold, Mr. Hogan said, and the meeting will be operated purely as an amusement enterprise.

Neither the organization of the club nor the receipt of Grand Circuit franchise was a surprise to those who are interested in the sport, for it was announced in THE TRIBUNE last Dec. 16, during the 100th anniversary horse auction at the Union stockyards, that harness racing enthusiasts were planning such a move for the second summer of A Century of Progress.

Recalls Old Days.

Not since the demise of the old West Chicago Driving club in 1918 has big time harness racing been conducted in Chicago. The sport reached its peak locally during the '90s, when thousands gathered at the old Washington Park track every afternoon during the season to see the trim trotters and pacers of another generation vie for purses running into five figures.

Old timers still recall the victory in the Columbian handicap of Alix, one of the most consistent money winners ever hitched to a sulky, which netted its owner a purse of $20,000. That was in the days of the first World's Fair when admirers of the horse, the chief means of transportation, assembled in overflow throngs to cheer the thoroughbreds and drivers of their choice to victory.

Buffalo and Cincinnati, which hold Grand Circuit memberships but have been inactive for the last few years, also were awarded dates at yesterday's meeting. They are: Cincinnati, Sept. 16 to 22, and Buffalo, July 16 to 28.

Draw Up Schedule.

A schedule was adopted with known conflicts, but the stewards assured representatives of the cities interested that these would be eliminated under later arrangements. The tentative schedule follows:

North Randall [Cleveland], June 23-July 7; Toledo, July 9-14; Buffalo, July 16-28; Salem, N. H., July 30-Aug. 18; Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 20-25; Springfield, Ill., Aug. 20-25; Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 27-Sept. 7; Indianapolis, Sept. 3-7; Chicago, Sept. 10-15; Cincinnati, Sept. 16-22; Lexington, Ky., Sept. 24-29.

The full personnel of officers was reelected, headed by E. Roland Harriman, New York, as president.

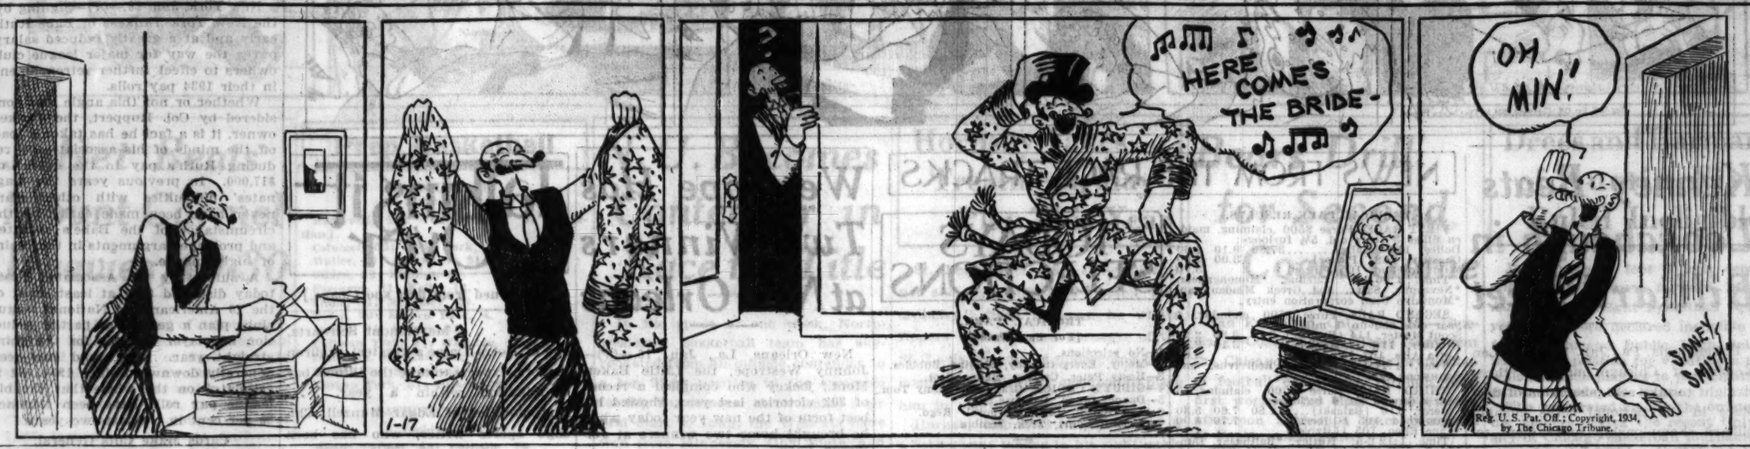
THE GUMPS—LET THE WEDDING BELLS RING OUT



In the WAKE of the NEWS

AROUND THE CAMPUS.

TO help students meet the depression, Purdue last fall inaugurated coöperative houses for men and women. In the women's house, accommodating fourteen, all the work is done by the girls, who divide the duties and pay $20 per month for room and board. The men's house furnishes rooms at $4 per month.

Co-captains of athletic squads are becoming popular in the Big Ten. Northwestern's five is led by Don Brewer and Nellie Culver. Roy Augustson and Herb Harris will act as field leaders for the baseball team.

Seven footballs acquired by Michigan as a result of its seven victories in 1933 were awarded as mementos to seven seniors of the gridiron squad.

Gopher football candidates for next fall's eleven already are receiving preliminary indoor drill when not engaged in other forms of varsity or intramural competition. There will be the usual spring practice in April. Several eastern universities also are inaugurating winter drill. Overemphasis?

Charles E. [Chuck] McGuire, University of Chicago all-American tackle of 1921, is president of the Chicago District Ping-Pong association.

Bob Hoel, Pittsburgh tackle, was graduated from Evanston High school in 1931. He played in the Rose Bowl game a year ago and has another year of competition at Pitt.

Birthday Deluge for F. D. R.

Dear Harvey: My old friend and neighbor, J. Norman Pierce, has thought of a fine idea, namely, for every one to mail a postal to President Roosevelt congratulating him on his 52d birthday. The date is Jan. 30. What could be more inspiring and helpful than to receive five to twenty million messages from those of us whom he is so hopeful of serving in a big way? I drop you a message at Christmas. Why not one to the President?

HTW: Perhaps Helper "Old Timer, 1859," would like to know the fate of those two iron lions he mentioned in The Wake. From Charles Gossage & Co., before whose store they originally stood, they were transferred to Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., who in turn gave them to Geline Brothers of Kankakee, Ill. The lions stood guard at that store for many years. When the store burned down the lions were turned over to the Kankakee public library, in front of which they now appear, as majestic as of old.

BUSH SIGNS AND SAYS HE'LL WIN 25 GAMES IN 1934

Leading Pitcher Gets Set for 11th Season.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Guy Bush, Cub pitcher, yesterday signed his eleventh contract with the Chicago Nationals. He got his document in the noon mail, left his gas station on the north side pronto, and after a brief visit with President William Walker affixed his signature. He will receive the same amount he drew last year. The figure was not revealed, but for the last six years Guy has been one of the highest salaried pitchers in the National league.

Bush read his name Monday afternoon in a list of Cubs who have signed and for a time feared some one had mailed in his contract, possibly taking a cut. The lank Mississippian promptly called up Cub headquarters and asked the nabobs to hold everything until he could get down to negotiate for himself. He was told his document was in the mails, so he waited for it, then dashed downtown in his racer with the aforesaid results.

Wait Till He's 50.

Bush, who celebrated his 30th birthday last August, has been improving with age. In 1932 he won 19 games and was ahead when he left the last game of the season to begin a rest for the world series opener. One of his pitching successors gummed up the enterprise and Bush was thus thwarted in his ambition to turn in 20 victories for the first time in his career.

Last season, however, he won 20 games, and he did it with what has come to be looked upon as one of the palest Cub teams in many a year. Bush kept bearing down to the very last, after it had become apparent that the Giants were not going to crack and that the Cubs were destined to be also rans. His most effective pitching was produced in the latter half of the season.

Came Up in 1923.

Bush, one of the few ten year men in baseball who have had all their major league experience with one club, first came to the Cubs in 1923, from the Cotton States league. In the midst of the 1924 season he was farmed to Wichita Falls, of the Texas league, much to his surprise and chagrin. He was back with the Cubs in 1925 and has been a regular ever since.

During his ten years with the Cubs, Bush has won 134 games while losing 91. He is the only Cub to win a game in the last two world series in which the Chicago Nationals have participated. He beat George Earnshaw in the third game of the 1929 series.

Mr. Bush Abhors Diets.

Training is not one of Bush's problems. Though he is six feet tall he never gets more than a pound or two from 167 pounds in weight, winter or summer, this despite the fact he never had a challenge as the Cubs' most ravenous eater, except while Hack Wilson was his teammate. Bush is the only player who returns to the Cubs' hotel in Catalina for lunch during the training season. And what a lunch the Mississippian consumes!

Bush says the acquisition of Chuck Klein will result in 25 victories for Bush in 1934 and that Bush's 25 victories will be just enough to win the pennant for the Cubs.

No Depression for Vets.

After signing Bush President Walker took occasion to predict that all Cub contracts will be signed within a week.

"We have retained only 14 of our squad of September, 1933, and not one of the 14 has been asked to take a cut," President Walker said. "Our highest salaried newcomer, Chuck Klein, has been signed for more than a month, and we believe that all the ten other newcomers are pleased with the figures contained in the contracts mailed out Monday."

Those who have signed 1934 contracts are Manager Charley Grimm, Gabby Hartnett, Klein, Capt. Woody English, Kiki Cuyler, Bud Tinning, and Bush.

Cochet Beats Chilean Pro Net Star, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Henri Cochet, French professional tennis star, won in an international series with Chile today, defeating Pilo Facondi, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5.

"VAS YOU DERE, SCHARLEY?"

Last night was one of those nights for Chuck Gardiner, Blackhawk captain. One of those nights of which Gardiner has very, very few. The Montreal Maroons scored six goals on him, tying the score five times and winning out in the overtime. Can you remember 'way back when it happened to Chuck before?

Vines Beaten by Tilden in Straight Sets

Providence, R. I., Jan. 16.—(AP)—William T. Tilden defeated Ellsworth Vines, youthful California pro, 7-5, 6-3, 8-6, before a crowd of 3,000 tennis fans here tonight. The victory gave Tilden a 3-2 lead in the current barnstorming series with Vines.

Opening at a fast pace and sustaining it throughout, Tilden seemingly never was in any danger of losing the match. Only in the prolonged third set did Vines show signs of forcing the old master. With the count 5-4 in his favor he had set point at hand, but was unable to cope with Bill's smashing service. Tilden won the point with a clean service ace that nearly ripped Vines' racquet from his grasp.

MEET HERE SATURDAY.

Bill Tilden and Ellsworth Vines will invade Chicago Saturday night to resume their series of matches at the Broadway armory. Vincent Richards and Bruce Barnes will accompany the pair and will play a preliminary to the main performance.

The match here will be played on a canvas surface which more closely resembles the outdoor clay court. It is the same canvas covering that Tilden has used in his professional tours of the last few years.

Talking It Over

WHITE SOX players, who were requested to leave their wives at home last training season, have been asked to leave their autos at home this year. . . . Pacheco, a lowly old selling plater, was the busiest horse in America last year. . . . He ran in 59 races and none was at less than a mile and 70 yards. . . . He won a two miles and half at Latonia. . . . His 59 trips to the post brought him 13 victories. . . . The Illinois band, in its broadcasts Wednesday evenings over W-G-N, will salute one university weekly by playing and singing its favorite airs and songs. . . . Michigan will be honored tonight. . . .

Round Robert Lewis, traveling secretary of the Cubs, who started a diet last year which made him less round, is round again. . . . Lewis, one of the best dressed men in baseball, upon resuming his curves gave three suits to his janitor and four pinch buck numbers to his chauffeur. . . . Ted Payseur, freshman basketball coach at Northwestern, has his best squad in years. . . . This no doubt will be disheartening news to Dutch Lonborg. . . . Future Big Ten football schedules may be arranged on the basis of traditional rivals. . . . The conference is studying a plan whereby each school will play three regular opponents each year and fill the rest of its schedule with other teams. . . . Maybe this arrangement will permit Northwestern and Chicago to resume football relations. . . .

Howie Morenz, generally described as hockey's greatest star, is quoted in the current issue of The New Yorker magazine as saying it is more difficult to get a shot past Chuck than any other goalie. . . . New York, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The New York Americans climbed out of the National Hockey league cellar tonight by defeating the Rangers, 2 to 1, in their fourth intra-city battle of the season before a capacity crowd. The victory put the Americans into fourth place in the Canadian division.

The Americans took advantage of their biggest break of the fast, well played game to score the winning goal in the last minute of play. The Rangers drew two penalties seconds apart. After a faceoff the puck went back to Rabbit McVeigh. He drove a long, ankle high shot into a corner of the cage to win the game. Lineup:

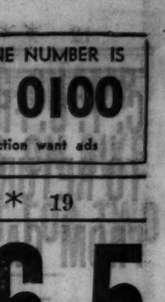
MAROONS WIN ON ROBINSON'S OVERTIME GOAL

Chicagoans Remain Tied for Lead.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 16.—(AP)—The Montreal Maroons came from behind five times, then springing into the lead on a goal by Robinson five minutes after the start of the overtime period tonight to defeat the Chicago Blackhawks, 6 to 5, in a National league hockey game.



LIONEL CONACHER.

By dint of the victory, the Maroons retained undisputed possession of third place in the Canadian section of the National league, while the Blackhawks remained tied for the American division lead when the New York Rangers also lost.

Robinson won the game on a solo dash. The Blackhawks immediately threw defense to the winds, sending five men to the attack, but Goalie Kerr and the Maroon defense men broke up every thrust.

Mackenzie and Blinco, Maroon recruits, were standouts, each scoring two goals. Mackenzie also starred on the defense.

It's Tit for Tat.

There was little to indicate in the first period that the teams were the two lowest scoring organizations in the National league. The Blackhawks led twice in the period, but were unable to maintain an advantage, and the session ended in a 2 to 2 deadlock.

The Blackhawks nearly scored on the first play of the game when Kerr was slow in clearing a shot by Romnes, who sped in to take the rebound. Luckily the puck hit Smith. Johnny Sheppard scored the first goal when he took Goldsworthy's pass squarely in front of the net. Sheppard was penalized a minute later for tripping.

Mackenzie promptly evened the score when he split the defense and raced in to drive a hard shot into the corner. Thompson then put the Hawks ahead again when he snapped up Romnes' pass and shoved it past Kerr.

Gardiner saved spectacularly on two three-man rushes by the Maroons, but Hooley Smith beat him a few minutes before the end of the period to tie the score on Ward's rebound.

Where's That Defense?

The vaunted Blackhawk defense fared little better in the second period, when the Chicagoans again got a lead but were tied 3 to 3 before the period ended.

Baldy Northcott and Conacher were penalized for carrying high sticks in a mixup behind the Chicago nets and play ranged back and forth, neither side pressing very hard. When Conacher came back he put the Blackhawks ahead with a bullet drive from the blue line that had Kerr beaten all the way.

Ward and Northcott were in close in succession after this but Gardiner kicked the puck out each time. Smith missed a fine chance when the puck hopped his stick as he tried to bat it home from a scramble in front of the Chicago nets. Blinco finally snapped in Robinson's rebound to climax a sustained Maroon attack and tie the score for the third time.

What? Two More Ties?

The Gaston and Alphonse business was becoming monotonous by now, but the teams played out the third period without altering the plot. The Blackhawks took the lead twice, and twice the Maroons tied, forcing the game into overtime with the score 5 to 5.

Romnes put Chicago ahead again

C. Y. O. FIGHTERS TO RETURN TODAY FROM CALIFORNIA

Reception and Luncheon Are Planned.

The Catholic Youth organization's 16 amateur boxing champions and runnerup, headed by the Rev. Louis F. Kroeck and Packey McFarland, member of the Illinois Athletic commission, will arrive this morning at 9:20 o'clock at the Northwestern station. The group is coming from California where it spent three weeks of sight seeing which culminated in the intersectional bouts last Friday at San Francisco. The Chicago boxers held a combined Los Angeles-San Francisco team to a tie, winning eight and losing as many.

Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, general director of the C. Y. O., and the Rev. W. H. Chelmski are included among the clergy who will greet the squad. The St. Mary's Training school band will play. Boy Scouts of the Eagle troop of Chicago will escort the boxers to C. Y. O. center where they are to be honored with a luncheon.

Pete Misiag, Rolaweisz Athletic club; Lynn Sandford, Belle Plaine, and Geaches Robinson, Savoy, will compete against Izzy Goldstein in the featherweight division of the Illinois Athletic club's second annual boxing tournament which will be held Jan. 23 and 24. Goldstein, 1933 Golden Gloves alternate, appears to have the inside track to the title but he must retain proper respect for his opponents if he expects to win.

Goldstein, who started boxing in 1932, will be competing in his second tournament. Last year he reached the semi-finals of the Golden Gloves only to lose to George Van Der Hayden for the right to meet Leo Rodak for the title.

However, his form caught the eyes of the officials and they chose him as an alternate. He reduced to the bantamweight limit in the intercity bouts with New York to replace Bob Iverson against Louis Camps, who won. Goldstein has engaged in 89 amateur bouts, losing only 9 and winning 80.

There will be no show at the 24th Ward club until Jan. 26. . . . Karl Ogren and Solly Dukelsky, Chicago middleweights, signed yesterday to meet in a 10 round contest next Wednesday at Arcadia Gardens. . . . Dave Mearns will reopen the Lawndale gymnasium, 26th street and Crawford avenue, next Monday. . . . Kid Irish, Benld, Ill., is recovering from an ear operation at St. Louis last week. . . . Davey Miller, Illinois Athletic commission referee, will return from California early next month.

An interclub amateur show between boxers from the Belle Plains Athletic club and the C. Y. O. will be held at St. Hilary's hall, California avenue and Bryn Mawr, Feb. 8. . . . The annual Franklin Park Athletic association amateur card will be offered Jan. 25 at the club gymnasium, 14th street and Kolin avenue. . . . Fred Kohler, Chicago light heavyweight, will meet Jack McAdams of Atlanta, Ga., in the main event of the wrestling card next Wednesday at Mozart arena, Clybourne avenue and Halsted street.

Two bouts this week for Henry Rothier, welterweight, have been canceled pending settlement of his dispute with his manager, Paul Stanger. Rothier had signed to box Young Terry of Davenport, Ia., tomorrow and his manager matched him with Johnny Terry at Rainbo Fronton Friday.

Four preliminary matches for the show Friday at the Rainbo Fronton were arranged last night. They are at four rounds each, as follows:

John Mirabel vs. George Haberski, 130.
Ed Smith vs. George Schrosbree, 135.
Al Schiarato vs. Bill Reardon, 135.
Jack Ripp vs. Sam Adams, 150.

President Charles Bidwill of the Chicago Stadium Operating company, accompanied by his wife; Nate Lewis, matchmaker; King Levinsky, heavyweight, and his sister-manager, Mrs. Lena Levy, left for New York last night to meet Max Schmeling tomorrow. Bidwill hopes to persuade Schmeling to postpone his match with Steve Hamas Feb. 13 at Philadelphia to fight Levinsky at the Stadium Feb. 16. Schmeling is scheduled to arrive from Germany tomorrow.

Bob Wiley vs. Jackie Sullivan, 120.
Claude Hinderleider vs. Dennis Jones, 142.
John Hawthorne vs. Warren Pumphries, 165.
John Brown vs. Phil Mario, 118.

The South Shore Temple gymnasium, 7215 Jeffery avenue, will be open starting tomorrow to south side entrants in the Jewish Organized Youth amateur boxing tournament which will be held at the Jewish People's institute Feb. 5 and 6. The addition of a gymnasium on the south side makes it possible for Jewish boxers in all sections of Chicago to train at neighborhood gynasiums. F. M.

"Y" TEAM PLAYS TONIGHT.

The Irving Y varsity squad will meet the Kokot Boosters at the Irving Park Y. M. C. A., 4251 Irving Park boulevard tonight. A preliminary game between the Spencer Coals girls and Amphion girls will start at 8:15.

Kenney Beats Lookabaugh in Billiard Meet

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Len Kenney of Chicago made it three straight to take sole possession of first place in the national three cushion billiard championship tournament tonight, defeating his fellow townsman, Earl Lookabaugh, 50 to 39 in 69 innings. Kenney scored a high run of 9 to a 4 for the loser.

Lookabaugh's defeat was his third straight in as many starts and put him definitely out of the running.

Kenney took an early lead over his opponent, having an advantage of 16 points at the end of the first 30 innings of play, the score reading 34 to 18. He scored his cluster of 9 in the 23d frame, after Lookabaugh had counted 4 in the previous inning.

Fifteen innings later Kenney led, 41 to 26, but counted only a total of 4 more billiards in the next 15 innings, while Lookabaugh, a former national amateur champion, ran a total of 12.

In an afternoon game Arthur Woods of New York beat Charles McCourt, the northern sectional titleholder from Cleveland, 50 to 36, in 71 innings. Kinrey Matsuyama defeated Marc Catton of Oakland, 50 to 39, in 55 innings, the second shortest game of the tourney so far.

Alfredo De Oro and Robert B. Harper of Denver, the latter at the bottom in the standings, meet in one of tomorrow's three matches. De Oro has two victories and no defeats, while Harper has failed to win in three starts.

SAVOLDI AGREES TO MEET LONDOS ON STADIUM CARD

Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame football star, yesterday signed to meet Jim Londos in a wrestling show at the Chicago Stadium Jan. 31. His signing automatically lifts the indefinite suspension incurred last May 8 when he ignored an order by the Illinois athletic commission to meet Londos after he won a disputed decision over Londos.

The commission Monday informed Joe Foley of the Stadium, who requested that Savoldi be reinstated to meet Gus Sonnenberg, Joe Stecher or Don George late this month, that Savoldi must meet Londos first before he could engage in any other bout in this state. Savoldi accepted the bout after a long distance conversation with Foley yesterday.

Westrope Has Two Winners at New Orleans

New Orleans, La., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Johnny Westrope, the Little Baker, Mont., jockey who compiled a record of 302 victories last year, showed his best form of the new year today when he brought home two winners at Jefferson Park.

After failing to get any of his mounts closer than third in the first five races, Westrope came back to take the sixth with Jeanne Wachs and completed a double aboard Good Jest in the closing event. His third was with Lamporte in the five and one-half furlong third race.

Unlike 1933, when the majority of Westrope's mounts were well backed, Jeanne Wachs paid

HYDE PARK HIGH LIGHTS LOSE TO CALUMET, 35-34

Winners Go Into Tie for South Division Lead.

Hyde Park's lightweights, rated as the strongest contenders for the south division basketball championship of the Chicago Public High School league, suffered their first defeat yesterday, losing to Calumet, 35 to 34, on the Calumet court. The victory sent Calumet into a tie for first place with Morgan Park, which scored its second triumph, defeating Hirsch, 31 to 29, at Morgan Park.

Yesterday's competition also marked the first setback of Harrison at the hands of Lindblom, 32 to 25, at Lindblom's gymnasium. Cragit, forward, and Wach, guard, were the leaders in Lindblom's victory, the former scoring three baskets and four free throws and Wach collecting two field goals and three penalty shots.

Lindblom Ties for Lead.

Lindblom now is deadlocked with Farragut for the central section lead, each with two victories. Farragut eked out a 21 to 18 victory over Kelly on the Farragut floor for its second triumph for the league season. Smicklas, forward, for Farragut, scored eight points.

Tuley broke into the victory column for the first time, overwhelming Kelvyn Park at the Tuley court. Kelvyn Park was held to one basket and two free throws as Tuley, led by Kelner and Golden, piled up a 29 to 4 victory. It was Kelvyn Park's second defeat.

Roosevelt, Waller Win.

Roosevelt and Waller were victors in two north section games. Waller scored its second consecutive victory by routing Amundsen, 37 to 21, at Waller and Roosevelt, in an overtime period, defeated Von Steuben, 24 to 21, at Roosevelt's gymnasium. The lineups:

IOWA ATHLETES GO PROSPECTING IN GOLDEN WEST

Iowa City, Ia., Jan. 16.—(AP)—The call of the west today proved too strong for Bud Froning and Duane Swanson, University of Iowa freshman athletes, to resist.

Froning and Swanson, it is said, intended to make their departure Monday for the University of Southern California, but they encountered Ossie Solem, football coach, at the railroad station. Solem persuaded them to remain but not for long.

Today they disappeared again, and the last report was that they were riding as "blind baggage" passengers on a westbound train.

Swanson, whose home is at Waterman, Ill., was regarded as the outstanding freshman basketball candidate, and Froning is a foremer all state football and basketball player from Webster City.

Joliet Beats Mount Carmel Heavies, 40-30

Catholic High school of Joliet heavyweight basketball team gained undisputed possession of first place in the east division of the Chicago Catholic High School league by defeating Mount Carmel gymnasium before a crowd of 2,500 last night. It was Catholic's fourth league victory of the season. The Mount Carmel lightweights, however, went into first place by triumphing over Catholic, 45 to 28.

The St. Patrick heavyweights retained their lead in the west section, defeating St. Ignatius, 18 to 14, on the St. Patrick court. St. Philip, second place squad, also triumphed, handing Weber a 33 to 16 setback on the latter's floor.

Weber lightweights suffered their fourth consecutive victory, losing to St. Philip, 27 to 4. It was the St. Philip lightweights' third victory. The third place St. Patrick quintet scored its third victory, routing St. Ignatius, 27 to 13.

Hawks Lose After Leading Five Times

when he slipped between Wentworth and Mackenzie and gave Kerr no chance with a corner shot. The Maroons kept up a steady attack and Robinson scored, but the goal was not allowed, because of an offside. Blinco then took Trottier's pass to score his second goal of the night, and the deadlock was on again.

Jenkins scored his first goal of the season to put Chicago back in the lead. Here Art Coulter put the Blackhawks at a disadvantage when he was penalized for charging Northcott. Mackenzie took advantage of the break and again brought the Maroons up even on a solo rush. Coulter returned before any further scoring could be done. Then came the overtime in which the scoring sequence was broken and the game decided.

The Sequence Is Broken.

The Maroon attack bothered Gardiner no end at the start of the overtime and the Hawks, in turn generally saw their assaults end at the Maroon defense which was practically impenetrable.

Robinson put the Maroons into the lead for the first time when he scored on a solo rush. Chicago sent five men to the attack in an effort to draw up even but all to no avail.

Cornell's Closing Spurt Beats Teachers, 35-30

Mount Vernon, Ia., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Cornell college defeated the Iowa State Teachers quintet tonight, 35 to 30. Cornell came from behind to take a 9 to 6 lead at the half. After the Teachers took the lead and the score was tied three times in the last half a Cornell scoring spree decided the game. Eldon Coffman, Cornell sophomore star from Polo, Ill., was the deciding factor in the victory. The Cornell center made 12 of 15 attempts from the foul line and scored four field goals for 20 points.

Coleman Clark to Captain Chicago Ping-Pong Team

Coleman Clark, 1932 National ping-pong champion, was elected captain last night of the Chicago ping-pong team which is to play in the national intercity ping-pong meet in the Cameo room of the Morrison hotel on Feb. 3 and 4.

Augustana Triumphs Over St. Ambrose Quintet, 36-33

Rock Island, Ill., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Augustana ran its victory string to seven tonight, defeating St. Ambrose, 36 to 33. Rastede, sophomore from Geneseo, was Augustana's star with 10 points.

N. U. Becomes Contender in Race for Title

In the space of one week, Northwestern's basketball team has skyrocketed from an outside contender to a top flight position in the scramble for Big Ten honors. After losing their first start to Iowa, the Wildcats have won from Minnesota, Ohio State, and Michigan to edge into second place, only one game behind the first place Purdue team.

The Wildcats' spurt to a commanding position with the race one-quarter completed has been one of the major surprises of the campaign. Coach Dutch Lonborg's five gave no indication in its early season games that it would cut much of a figure in conference circles this year.

Make Poor Start.

The Wildcats' record in their six practice games was far from auspicious. Notre Dame made a sweep of its two game series with the Purple, while Pittsburgh and Marquette both hung up victories. The only pre-conference victories were scored against Bradley and Nebraska.

Marked improvement in the play of Irwin Kopecky, forward, and Lyle Fisher, center, has boosted the Wildcat cause. Both are playing their first year as regulars and only in recent games have they struck a stride which has made them scoring threats. Fisher, a junior, was a bench warmer all last season, while Kopecky, a sophomore, played on the football team and was slow in rounding into form.

The remainder of the Wildcat first string combination consists of Don Brewer, forward, and Nelson Culver and Edgar Manske, guards. All were members of last year's co-championship team.

Meet Illinois Next.

Illinois is the next opposition in the path of the Wildcats. The game will be played at Champaign Saturday night. Northwestern's next home appearance will be next Monday night, when Ohio State invades Pattern gymnasium for the second of the two game series.

Other Saturday night games will find Michigan and Chicago meeting on the Midway and Ohio State hopping to Minneapolis for its first game with Minnesota.

These games will not affect the conference lead, since the undefeated Purdue quintet is idle. The rest will prove welcome to the Boilermakers who received the scare of their lives at the hands of Wisconsin Monday night, winning only by a single point. The final score was 27 to 26.

Cottom Leads Scorers.

Although the Badgers held Norm Cottom, Purdue forward, to seven points, it proved sufficient for him to maintain his lead over the conference scorers. Added to his 35 points in previous games, the Boilermaker star now possesses 42 points. He is trailed by Howard Moffitt of Iowa who accumulated 11 points against Illinois to run his total to 41 points. Lyle Fisher of Northwestern trails in third place with 37.

The narrow margin by which Purdue eked out a victory over Wisconsin indicates the closely matched condition of the conference race. In this game the league leaders were forced to the limit to win over an eighth place team.

BABY RUTHS WIN FIRST HALF TITLE IN HOCKEY, 5 TO 0

The Baby Ruths won the first half championship in the Big Four division of the Chicago Amateur Hockey association by defeating the Nestor Johnsons, 5 to 0, while the Butterfingers, second place team, were losing to the Blue Ribbons, 3 to 1, at the Coliseum last night.

Hill led the Baby Ruths. He scored two goals in the second period. Brusen, defense man for the Butterfingers, was indefinitely suspended by league officials for striking Referee Walmsley in the final minutes of the contest.

Hornsby Takes Treatment; May Play This Year

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Still not able to acquire the "better than ordinary" third baseman he wants, Rogers Hornsby, new manager of the St. Louis Browns, is undergoing treatment for a leg injury designed to place him in playing shape.

Hornsby intimated he would play if a bothersome tendon in his right ankle yielded to treatment. The Rajah, who assumed direction of the American league baseball team late last season, now weighs 186 pounds, only five or six pounds over playing condition.

Bears Drill for Second Coast Game

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Coach George Halas today sent the Chicago Bears, world's professional football champions, through their first workout for their game Sunday afternoon against a team composed of Pacific coast stars.

The Bears' opponents, who include Al Norgard and Ernie Caddell of Stanford and Jim Musick and Ernie Pinckert of Southern California, continued preparations for the contest and will hold strenuous practice sessions for the remainder of the week.

Drees and Harman of Austin Five Ruled Ineligible

Jack Drees, 6 foot 5 inch center, and Lester Harman, forward, of the Austin heavyweight basketball squad, yesterday were declared ineligible for further Chicago Public High School league competition for violating a rule which forbids players to participate in games outside the league.

The pair, rated among the outstanding players during the recent University of Chicago basketball tournament, were found to have participated in a church game last Dec. 9 between Austin and Cuyler-Mission churches. Their ineligibility weakens the Austin heavyweight squad, one of the contenders for the western sectional championship.

SKATING CHAMP TRAINS ON BIKE BUILT FOR TWO

Trainer Sets Pace in Front Seat of Antique.

Oconomowoc, Wis., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Defense of her championship has led Leila Brooks-Potter of Toronto, Canada, who will compete in the North American speed skating meet here, Jan. 27 and 28, to novel means of training.

She has been drilling for three months on a "bicycle built for two," which has been in the Brooks family for many years. Her trainer, Ed Gloster, once a skating champion, sets the pace in the front seat.

Two hours riding before breakfast, then Miss Brooks-Potter skates at the Rivina rink in Toronto. After lunch and a little rest, she goes to a gymnasium for setting-up exercises. A walk, and sometimes a movie, follows the evening meal. She retires at 10 o'clock.

Miss Brooks-Potter has been skating half her life. In 1930 she won the woman's North American championship.

CHAMP GETS DIVORCE.

TORONT, Ont., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Mrs. Leila Brooks-Potter, champion speed skater, was granted a divorce nisi against her husband, William Percy Potter, by Justice J. McFarlane today. They were married here in March, 1926, she said, and lived together two weeks.

VISITING NURSES' NEED OF FUNDS TOLD AT MEETING

Receipts Fall 7%, Expenses Increase 8%.

Nurses garbed in light blue uniforms filed into the auditorium of the Harriet Hammond McCormick Y. W. C. A. at 1100 North Dearborn street yesterday to attend the forty-fourth annual meeting of the Visiting Nurse association. This service last year helped 59,103 sick persons in Chicago.

The officers and committee chairmen, many of them society women, told of the accomplishments of this private philanthropic agency during 1933. These nurses made 427,770 visits. A total of 1,000 cancer patients received 16,000 visits. More than 2,000 pneumonia patients and 1,836 heart disease sufferers, mostly children, were given help. A total of 8,000 mothers received care. Special nurses made 38,113 visits to 2,209 handicapped people.

Need More Contributions.

Mrs. George A. Ranney, who was re-elected president, made a report warning that the contributions for the coming year must be increased or the service will be impaired. The receipts for the last year were 7 per cent less than in 1932, while the expenses were 8 per cent larger. The surplus fund is exhausted, Mrs. Ranney said. It was necessary to merge two outlying stations, reduce salaries and vacations, and withdraw special nurses from the schools for crippled children.

The reduction in the staff of nurses caring for infantile paralysis sufferers was discussed by Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, chairman of the committee in charge of this work. She reported 130 new cases in the last year, as compared to 54 of the preceding year. Twenty of these were dismissed.

Mrs. George E. Throop, treasurer, reported total income of $282,777 for the last year, while expenses totaled $316,032. The association is faced with a further shrinkage in funds next year, she said, unless contributions increase materially.

Other Reports Given.

Other reports were made by Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, chairman of the nursing committee, who told how the nurses must help families through many troubles. Mrs. Chalkley J. Hambleton, chairman of the auxiliary committee, reported that the committee members had made 51,372 dressings and 1,200 layettes during the last year, as well as contributing many other services to aid the nurses.

Mrs. Goodspeed and Mrs. Harold Beacom were elected vice presidents; Mrs. George R. Nichols Jr., recording secretary; Mrs. John B. Drake, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Throop, treasurer, and Mrs. John H. Blear, assistant treasurer.

MORGES, Switzerland, Jan. 16.—(AP)—An illness of two years ended today in the death of Mme. Helena Paderewski, for 45 years wife of the distinguished pianist, Ignace Jan Paderewski.

MME. PADEREWSKI [Acme Photo.]

Noted in America for her work in behalf of Poles during the world war, Mme. Paderewski died in the presence of her husband in the villa of their beautiful estate on the Swiss side of Lake Geneva. She was 74 years old. Funeral services will be held Thursday.

Before her marriage in 1889 Mme. Paderewski was Helena Gorski, Baroness von Rosen, the daughter of Baron von Rosen, a Russian nobleman. She was the pianist-politician's second wife.

M'KINLAY GIVES VIEWS ON SALES TAX COLLECTION

John McKinlay, president of Marshall Field and company, gave his views on the sales tax yesterday, explaining why the Field store has not joined the organized move of other merchants to list the tax as a separate item in merchandise bills. "We think the legislature intended that the tax should be collected as we are now collecting it," said Mr. McKinlay, "that is, by including it in the price, and we know that method is more agreeable and convenient to the customer.

"We do not subscribe to the idea that merchants should make taxes as odious as possible to the customer. We do not like taxes any better than anybody else, but we realize that taxes of some kind must be paid to support the government.

"This is not intended as an indorsement of the present sales tax. We never indorsed it. It is not all good, nor is it wholly bad."

JUDGE CLEARS 5 POLLS OFFICIALS OF FRAUD CHARGE

Four women and a man, officials in the 43d precinct of the 4th ward in the election of Nov. 8, 1932, yesterday were found not guilty on charges of making fraudulent returns of the vote canvass. They were freed by Judge Charles T. Allen of Woodstock, who is hearing election fraud cases in the Cook county court.

Those released are Mrs. Alta C. Gookins, 4938 Drexel boulevard, and Mrs. Eva Larson, 818 East 51st street, Republican judges; Ray Fielding, 5002 Drexel boulevard, a Democratic judge; Mrs. Lottie Raphael, 4914 Drexel boulevard, a Democratic clerk, and Mrs. Laura Dietrich, 4929 Cottage Grove avenue, a Republican clerk.

Judge Allen held that while irregularities in the returns had been shown, the evidence was insufficient to convict the defendants.

JURY SELECTED TO HEAR RETRIAL OF STONE CASE

A jury was completed yesterday in the federal court of Judge Philip L. Sullivan to hear the retrial of five former officials of H. O. Stone and company, defunct real estate investment concern, on charges of using the mails to defraud. The defendants, who were indicted following the $14,000,000 failure of the company, are Henry F. Norcott, president; Harold D. Bennett, Charles P. Packer, W. Scott Carroll, and Leslie A. Needham.

They were sentenced to 20 years and fined $15,000 each at a previous trial, but won a reversal in the United States Circuit court of Appeals. As in the first trial before Judge Charles E. Woodward, 15 jurors were chosen to hear the case. Two alternate jurors were selected under a law passed in 1932, which provides that 14 men shall be impaneled to hear cases in which the evidence requires a long hearing.

Assistant United States Attorney Joseph A. Struett will make the opening argument for the government today.

Institutions Closed by Other Causes.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Bankers are honest. Some qualification to the statement may be needed, but when stacked up with other classes of citizenry the bankers make a good showing. When judged on the basis of competency the story is different, but few of those who failed by this standard are now in the business.

A survey to determine the causes of bank failures in Chicago and elsewhere sustains the assertion that bankers as a group have as reasonable claim to be regarded as honest men as any other comparable class and perhaps a better claim.

Since May 1, 1929, 176 organizations, technically known as banks, have closed their doors in Chicago for one reason or another. In only 8 instances, less than 5 per cent of the cases, has criminal dishonesty of the major type been responsible for the closing.

Causes of Failure Analyzed.

This analysis is based on an actual check just made of all banks which have closed since the depression began. It may be pointed out that "criminal dishonesty of the major type" does not include the petty larceny of minor employés, whose peculations are covered by insurance and which in no instance were the cause of a bank failing.

The causes of bank failures in Chicago may be catalogued as follows in the order of their importance:

1. Chartering of banks in locations not entitled to such facilities, which were economic misfits from the beginning and without a chance of success even under good conditions.

2. Chartering of banks prompted by ulterior motives, involving the promotion of real estate. Bad management was the characteristic in nearly all of these cases and in most of them political influence played an important part in obtaining the charter.

3. Major criminal dishonesty on the part of officials.

Seek Profits Outside Banking.

Conservative bankers declare that even in 1929 not more than 50 banks could operate profitably in Chicago if they were confined to the banking business. But in boom times there were 226 banks operating, and in the absence of strictly banking profits many managements looked elsewhere for earnings. They found ephemeral profits in real estate promotion and in a dozen other ways not in keeping with sound practice.

There just wasn't enough good banking management to go around. When the essentially unsound banks began to fail it disturbed confidence, dragged down the border line banks first and later caused some of the better institutions to fold up.

The low percentage of criminal dishonesty among Chicago bankers is by no means unusual. In smaller communities and in the rural sections bankers as a group have proved that banking is not synonymous with dishonesty.

Iowa Stockholders Take Losses.

Iowa is the classic example cited by bankers to show how their stockholders were able to take it.

A search of the records shows that a group of 110 representative national banks in Iowa, which had trouble in the middle twenties, had only five cases of major dishonesty. In none of the cases was dishonesty the cause of failure.

Less than half a dozen of the banks included in the survey are still open. Yet on an aggregate capitalization of $6,400,000 the stockholders poured $13,000,000 into these 110 banks over a four year period in an effort to keep them going.

Individual cases may be cited which illustrate the point even more graphically. Stockholders of the First National bank of Graettinger, Ia., replaced the bank's capital six times. Originally capitalized at $25,000, the stockholders in four years put up an additional $150,000 to absorb losses.

The conclusion is unavoidable that the liberal granting of charters has been a prime cause of loose banking.

ASSERTS BANKERS NEEDED

When all the smoke from the present unrest has blown away, industry and business will have to turn back to sound bankers for help in solving their financial problems, Mark A. Brown, vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, told members of the La Salle Street Cashiers' association at the Opera club last night. There are plenty of good bankers who have gone through the depression, Mr. Brown continued, and they are well qualified to continue their work.

Mr. Brown urged that support be given the Washington administration in its endeavors to improve the country's financial position.

Regarding the bank deposit insurance plan, Mr. Brown said there appears to have been a considerable demand for it. Possibly it is a good thing, he continued, but there are many banks which do not want to go along with a plan which provides for unrestricted liability on the part of the bankers.

SHOW GOODYEAR GAVE REBATES TO SEARS, ROEBUCK

Akron, O., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Goodyear Tire and Rubber company records showing that the corporation paid Sears, Roebuck & Co. more than $8,855,000 during seven years as rebates on tire manufacturing charges were introduced by federal trade commission attorneys today in the hearing of the commission complaint that the Goodyear-Sears contract is a violation of the Clayton act.

These rebates were made on a total billing for the seven years of $122,000,000 for manufacturing the mail order tires.

GEORGE F. SPAULDING.

George Spaulding, vice president of the Northern Trust company, was elected president of the Investors Protective Bureau, Inc., at the annual meeting yesterday. Mr. Spaulding succeeds T. J. Bryce, who was elected chairman of the board.

Mr. Spaulding has been vice president in charge of the bond department of Northern Trust for nearly five years. He joined the department in 1922 and later held the position of sales manager and manager. In 1913 he enjoyed the distinction of an appointment as Rhodes scholar to Oxford.

Other officers elected yesterday are: Vice president, Michael J. O'Brien, president of the Chicago Stock exchange; treasurer, Carl J. Easterberg of Riter & Co.; secretary, Howard Van S. Tracy of Rogers & Tracy, Inc.; and assistant secretary, Mortimer C. Grover. Cyrus H. Adams Jr. of Isham, Lincoln & Beale, continues as attorney.

Mr. Grover was appointed manager for his eighth term and Standish W. Robinson, assistant manager for his sixth term.

Four new directors were elected. They are Thaddeus R. Benson, chairman of the Chicago Association of Stock Exchange Firms; Jess Haisted, secretary of the Chicago Stock exchange; John T. Redmond, president of the Building Managers Association of Chicago; and George W. Young, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

It is understood activities of the bureau will be expanded under the new administration and that the necessary funds will be procured.

DEPOSITORS RAP RECEIVERSHIP OF WEST SIDE TRUST

State Auditor Edward J. Barrett's appointment of a receiver for the West Side Trust and Savings bank was protested yesterday at a meeting of 130 depositors at 928 South Halsted street. The depositors agreed to seek leave to intervene in the receivership proceedings before Superior Court Judge Robert Gentzel, who named William L. O'Connel as receiver last Monday.

The intervening petition to be filed will object to the appointment on the grounds that the state auditor exceeded his authority in naming a receiver while a reorganization was being planned. S. K. Stearn, secretary of the depositors' committee, said the petition will set forth that the committee has already secured formal approval of RFC officials for a loan of $1,2000,000, thus making possible a reopening.

The bank has been closed since March and is located at 735 West Roosevelt road. At State Auditor Barrett's office the naming of a receiver was said to be justified.

Clearing House Officials Re-elected for Current Year

Frank R. Elliott, vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, was reëlected president of the Chicago Clearing House association yesterday. Fred A. Cuscaden was renamed vice president, and Howard M. Sims was reappointed manager. The clearing house committee of five remains the same. It includes Melvin A. Traylor, chairman; Howard Fenton, James R. Leavell, Solomon A. Smith, and Philip R. Clarke.

DOLLAR SPURTS, DOUBT U. S. CAN HOLD IT DOWN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 16.—The dollar rebounded today from the levels to which it had been forced by the announcement of the President's stabilization program. Recovering nearly a cent of the 2.38 cents loss experienced on Monday, it closed at 62.38 per cent of parity.

This compared with a valuation of 60 per cent of the old parity indicated by the treasury's price of $34.45 an ounce for gold quoted today by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York President Roosevelt had set 60 per cent as the upper limit of devaluation and 50 per cent as the lower limit.

The action of the foreign exchange market indicated that traders were doubtful of the treasury's ability to force the dollar down to 60 per cent of parity, pending the establishment of the proposed $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund.

Expect Money to Come Home.

Among the reasons assigned by foreign exchange dealers for the recovery of the dollar were the repatriation by Americans of funds sent abroad because of anxiety over the future of the currency, a movement of funds here for investment from Europe and the exhaustion of the first panicky rush of merchants and traders to cover their commitments, which had been started by the first news of the new policy.

Sterling here fell 6½ cents to $5.07½, losing more than it had gained on Monday. The franc declined 10 points to 6.28 cents, Holland guilders dropped to 64.30 cents, Belgium belgas to 22.25 cents and Swiss francs to 30.93 cents. None of the gold standard exchanges lost as much as half of the gains they had scored on Monday.

Canadian dollars shared the weakness of sterling, dropping to 99.87½ cents. German marks were off to 37.95 cents and Italian lire declined to 8.39 cents.

London Gold Price Rises.

In the London market a sharp readjustment to the President's announcement was seen in the rise of the open market price of gold to 131 shillings 9 pence, the highest price since Nov. 8, and 3 shillings 3 pence above Monday's quotation. At the opening price of $5.13½ for sterling the gold price was equivalent to $33.826 an ounce.

No information was available at the New York Federal Reserve bank on whether any gold had been purchased by the bank on its first day as gold purchasing agent for the treasury. The reserve bank did, however, announce a shipment of $1,261,400 gold to London, which was the largest gold transaction reported by it this month and the largest transfer to London since June.

The shipment, it was stated, consisted of gold which had previously been held for foreign account and turned in to the federal reserve erroneously by the foreign holder. Upon establishing the right to export the gold under the treasury regulation the foreign holder had been permitted to withdraw it.

SCORES FEDERAL POWER PROJECTS AS UNECONOMIC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 16.—Extension of the Muscle Shoal power experiment to other sections of the country means the destruction of hundreds of millions of investment in coal properties, an increase in mine unemployment and a diminishing of railroad traffic.

This warning was made tonight to the Northwestern Lumberman's association, by E. B. Huntress, executive secretary of the National Coal association.

The speaker also assailed the policy of the public works administration in alloting funds for hydro-electric projects and loans for installation of oil burning power plants.

"On the basis of hard business facts, these power schemes are indefensible," he said. "They would put existing power systems out of business, would displace millions of tons of coal, and add thousands of miners, railroad workers and others to the bread lines. That is not the sort of a new deal our President advocates, certainly not the sort he will promote."

The coal association, he declared, is protesting to the labor department and to Secretary Perkins against the continuance of an "economic philosophy which threatens coal miner and operator alike."

House Passes U. S. Guaranty of Farm Bonds

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—Without a record vote, the house today passed the administration bill to bolster farm mortgage bonds with a full federal guarantee as to principal as well as interest.

Requested by President Roosevelt in a special message to congress, the measure went through the house with but little opposition. It has already been passed by the senate.

The bill sets up a two hundred million dollar corporation to issue two billion dollars of farm mortgage bonds already authorized in legislation passed at the special session last spring. The bonds would be fully guaranteed by the government as to principal and interest, bringing them to a status equal to that enjoyed by United States securities.

Expect Action on HOLC Issues.

Similar legislation guaranteeing the principal of bonds of the Home Owners Loan corporation is expected to be proposed to congress by the executive branch within a short time.

Explaining the need for the legislation, the house agriculture committee declared that at the present time federal land banks, although urged to expedite loans to farmers, were unable to sell their bonds at par.

"Because of a disturbed bond market," the committee said, "it was concluded that at the present time, the federal land banks could not sell their bonds at par to private investors, even with the government guarantee of interest. For obvious reasons, it was thought inadvisable to attempt to dispose of them at less than par.

Provide Federal Aid.

"The policy of this bill is to meet this situation by providing a federal corporation, of which the bonds would be fully guaranteed by the government, both as to interest and principal, for which the federal land banks may exchange their consolidated bonds.

"The bill provides for capitalization of the federal Farm Mortgage corporation by funds made available to the commissioner and mortgage loans made by him, and authorizes the commissioner to continue making such loans as an agent of the corporation, using for this purpose not exceeding 600 million dollars of guaranteed bonds of the corporation."

URGE U. S. ADOPT STANDARD AUDIT; SEE HIGH COSTS

As a means of disclosing the differences in costs of operation between governmental enterprises and private industry, standard cost accounting by United States government departments is recommended in a resolution passed by the board of directors of the Illinois Manufacturers' association. The resolution will be sent today to the Illinois delegation in congress and to the committee on expenditures in the executive departments.

The association urges the passage of house bill 6038 providing for a standard system of cost accounting and cost reports for every executive department, independent organization, office, and bureau of the United States, which will disclose the costs of any manufacturing, construction, reconstruction, or repairs which they undertake.

According to the association's committee on administration of public funds and economy in government, a proper system of cost accounting would show that many governmental enterprises competing with private business are operated at a loss and that "the difference must be met by imposing additional burdens upon an already overtaxed people."

MERCANTILE TRUST MAY SELL $400,000 CAPITAL NOTES TO RFC

Sale of retirable capital notes in an amount not exceeding $400,000 to the Reconstruction Finance corporation was recommended by the directors of Mercantile Trust and Savings bank of Chicago and approved by the stockholders in their annual meeting yesterday.

The action was taken in order to "strengthen the capital structure of the bank in preparation for a larger volume of business, and to maintain a strong ratio between capital and deposits," according to H. N. Grut, president. President Grut reported to the stockholders that against total deposits of $8,126,000 as of yesterday the bank had cash, loans on call, and government bonds of $6,130,000. Since the moratorium deposits have increased over $3,000,000, he said.

Ralph Budd and A. B. Dick Jr. retired from the board of directors, and no new directors were elected in their places. The remaining directors were reëlected. Officers of the bank were also reëlected.

Matthew R. Becker, president of the Becker Roofing company, was elected chairman of the board of directors of the Main State bank yesterday. Peter Richlowski, Edward C. Hansen, and Ernest Kilgore were made assistant cashiers. L. Shirley Tark, president, and other officers were reëlected.

Howard K. Hurwith was elected director of the Terminal bank yesterday, filling a vacancy. Other directors and the officers were reëlected.

Officers and directors of the Evanston Trust & Savings bank were reelected yesterday with one exception. Harry B. Hurd, a director, surrendered his post because he holds a similar position on the board of another bank. Such double directorship is forbidden by recent legislation.

A. L. Palmgren was elected a director of the Glenview State bank last night. All other directors and officers were reëlected.

COST OF LIVING LESS FOR WORKER IN INDUSTRIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 16.—The cost of living of the industrial wage-earner was less last month than in November, according to the national industrial conference board.

Living costs, which declined three-tenths of 1 per cent in November, after six months of steady advance, fell off six-tenths of 1 per cent more in December. At the same time they were 2.9 per cent higher than in December, 1932, but 22.3 per cent lower than in December, 1929.

On the basis of the dollar as 100 cents in 1923 the purchasing power of the wage-earner's dollar was 129.4 cents in December, compared with 128.5 in November and 139.9 in April.

Among the items of the wage-earner's outlay food declined most sharply—1.8 per cent. Prices were, however, 6.1 per cent higher than in December, 1932, but 33.7 per cent lower than in the like month of 1929. Following are comparisons of the items in the wage-earner's budget:

Henry C. Lytton to Resume Control of The Hub Today

Montgomery Ward to Pay Back Dividend

Sharp improvement in the mail order business, which began to develop last May, found reflection yesterday in the action of Montgomery Ward & Co. in paying up back dividends due on its class A stock prior to Jan. 1, 1933. The company issued the following statement:

"At a meeting of the board of directors of Montgomery Ward & Co. a dividend in the amount of $5.25 a share was declared on the class A stock, payable Feb. 12 to stockholders of record Jan. 27. This dividend represents the total amount accrued prior to Jan. 1, 1933."

Starting in May, 1933, the earnings of the company for the first time exceeded those of the like month of 1932. The May, 1933, total was $15,102,788, or nearly $1,000,000 in excess of that for the same 1932 month.

Earnings Expand Steadily.

From May on the earnings expanded so that in December they totaled $25,021,715 as compared with $21,056,133 in December, 1932—a gain of 18.8 per cent. For the first eleven months of the company's fiscal year, which ends Jan. 31, sales totaled $182,820,093, compared with $168,041,185 in the same period of the preceding year—a gain of 8.8 per cent.

It has been estimated that the company will show a profit of about $4,750,000 for the current fiscal year, equal to about 75 cents a share on the common stock. This compares with a loss of $5,681,000 in the preceding fiscal year.

The company has outstanding 201,554 shares of $7 cumulative class A shares of $100 par value. The company paid no dividends on its common stock from 1920 to the third quarter of 1926, when dividends were paid at increasing rates through the third quarter of 1930. Following the third quarter of 1930 the dividend of $3 annually was suspended owing to the decline in earnings and payments have not been resumed.

Other Favorable Dividends.

The Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company yesterday declared an extra dividend of 25 cents and the regular quarterly payment of 25 cents on the common stock.

North American Oil Consolidated company declared a dividend of 15 cents. The previous payment was 10 cents. A. Hollander & Son resumed dividends on the common stock by authorizing a payment of 12½ cents. This is the first distribution since November, 1928.

Austin, Nichols & Co. voted to increase dividends on Class A stock from 25 to 75 cents a share quarterly. Inasmuch as this dividend was to become cumulative at an annual rate of $5 beginning on Feb. 1, this year, the new payment will leave 50 cents a share in arrears.

60 Cent Dollar Still a Dollar for Time Being

BY HOWARD WOOD.

What is a sixty cent dollar?

Everybody wants to know the answer. At Washington the Reconstruction Finance corporation yesterday raised the price of gold another notch and thereby produced a dollar which theoretically contains only as much gold as 60 cents did last March.

But a confused public still found that its money would buy about as much as before. Five cents' worth of chewing gum was still selling for five cents. The same size nickel got a wrong number in the telephone booth. And the taxicab meter still ground out the same ten cents for parking behind a red light.

Devaluation, revaluation, stabilization, discount, rediscount, reserves, specie, funding and refunding and a lot of other big words have been so dextrously bandied about of late by the money doctors in and out of Washington that they've got the ordinary dollar owner so balled up he doesn't know what it's all about.

He's been told that his dollar is now worth only sixty cents, but he still gets a dollar's worth of goods for it. He's been told that his cost of living is going to be raised to the 1926 level, but it hasn't—at least not yet.

What's the answer?

The money doctors explain that it is probably to be found in the lag—that is, the length of time that must necessarily elapse before price changes catch up with the dollar's depreciation.

When Prof. George Warren first brought out his plan for raising prices by shaving the dollar nothing was said about the lag. The public was led to believe that prices changed automatically with the changes in the value of the dollar. They haven't, so the lag is trotted out for an alibi.

But just because a stamp that sold for 3 cents yesterday still sells for 3 cents today is no reason for assuming a false sense of security against rising prices. If history can be relied upon to repeat itself the cheapening of money will be reflected in higher prices and increased cost of living.

Prices depend less upon governmental decrees concerning the price of gold than upon the amount of money placed in circulation. The action of the government in officially reducing the gold content of the dollar 40 per cent probably will not do the trick, but the subsequent action of the government in using the profits from its dollar devaluation operation to print more money to spend on roads, bridges, relief, paying off depositors of closed banks, and what not is bound to generate at least a temporary spasm of buying, and this is expected to create such a demand for goods that prices will be forced upward.

But even so, whether prices will go up as far as the dollar goes down is an open question. The only honest answer is that nobody knows. Nor does anybody know what effect the printing of extra dollars against the existing national gold reserves or the possible printing of the three billions of greenbacks might have on the government's ability to borrow six billions of new money from investors.

One fact that is frequently overlooked is that the government's big spending program has not yet got well under way. The public works administration, which is scheduled to put 3 billion 300 million in circulation, has actually spent less than 200 millions to date. Most of the rest has been allotted, but it hasn't been spent. When it begins to be spent in spring the stimulant will really become effective.

Meanwhile the government bond market, the barometer of government credit, is to be concealed, at least temporarily, behind a smoke screen. The administration's plan calls for a two billion dollar "equalization fund" to be created for a double purpose: 1, to prevent extraordinary fluctuations in foreign exchange, and, 2, to manipulate the government bond market.

The second of these is perhaps the most important. The treasury has already spent many millions of its funds to maintain the market for government bonds. The setting up of a two billion dollar fund will greatly enhance the treasury's power.

The President's message on monetary policy is just as important in its omissions as in its statements.

It does not promise definite stabilization. It does not promise that there will not be further devaluation below 50 per cent. It does not promise that congress will not be asked for further depreciation of the dollar.

This does not necessarily mean that the President is paving the way for further and more drastic inflation, but it probably does mean that he is closing no doors that he might need to open if Great Britain should decide to go further in the currency cheapening race for the prize of foreign trade. He has kept himself in a good trading position.

STOCKS HALTED; PUBLIC BUYS BUT TRADERS PROFIT

Industrials Weaken; Rails Are Strong.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 16.—Buying orders continued to pour into the stock exchange in heavy volume today but profit taking by traders who feared to chance yesterday's sharp rise any further held prices in check. Most of the leaders, in fact, wound up behind minus signs.

The losses in such pivotals as American Telephone, Allied Chemical and Dye, American Smelting, J. I. Case, Chrysler, and National Distilleries amounted to 1 to 2 points or so. General Motors, Western Union, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, United Aircraft, and U. S. Smelting were off fractionally, while American Can, Consolidated Gas, Standard Oil of New Jersey, and Public Service just about held their own.

Preferred Issues Given Whirl.

A batch of preferred issues was marked up sharply and a scattering of specialties came in for beneficial treatment from sponsoring pools or for special reasons. The oils fared a little beter on the whole than is their wont in a mixed market.

Such trade news as filtered in tended to support hopes of a spring business rise. Dividend declarations benefited one or two issues.

Buying of railroad shares was easily the feature of the day's operations. New York Central, Union Pacific, Lackawanna, Southern Railway, and Norfolk and Western, as well as some of the lower price issues, were turned over in good volume at higher prices. Norfolk and Western rose 10 points.

Rails Featured Trading.

Pere Marquette common and preferred jumped 6 and 7 points, respectively. Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis bettered its rating by more than 7 points. Atchison turned over briskly and advanced nearly 3 points.

Among miscellaneous stocks, Montgomery Ward rose more than a point in active trading. Silver and gold issues were generally weaker. Chrysler was again a weak spot in the motors, selling off more than a point. United States Steel and other industrial issues, including Bethlehem and Westinghouse, were hard put to resist profit taking.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 16.—The listed bond market continued its vigorous advance today with the exception of foreign loans, which moved lower as the leading foreign exchange rates declined in relation to the dollar.

The market was extremely active, with turnover reaching $25,253,200, largest since July 7. Most of the activity occurred in domestic corporation bonds, in which dealings approximated $18,000,000.

Long term United States government bonds advanced 2-32ds to 14-32ds points in trading of less than $3,000,000. Closing prices were at or very close to the highs of the day and represented new highs for the current movement. Treasury 4¼s, 3¼s crossed 99, whereas less than a week ago this issue hit a low of 97 26-32ds.

Widespread Gains Scored.

A representative list of domestic corporation bonds were bid up 1 to 4 points on the day, with a few issues scoring even larger gains. Low priced rails and industrials showed the principal improvement, although it was in higher grade issues that new high levels for more than a year were established.

Foreign loans swung irregularly lower in rather quiet trading. French government and municipal loans dropped from fractions to nearly 5 points, with the exception of one municipal issue up half a point.

Foreign List Reacts.

United Kingdom loans were down 2⅛ to up ⅛; Dutch East Indies issues were up 3¼ to off 1. Swiss government 5½s held unchanged. German bonds were irregularly lower on the day. However, Commonwealth of Australia bonds ruled very strong in active trading, mounting 1 or more points to the best levels in more than a year. Most of the Latin-American issues pointed higher.

Domestic bonds exhibited considerable strength on the Curb exchange in trading which was the heaviest in several months. Principal advances ranged from 1 to 6 points. Foreign loans finished irregularly higher.

SILVER FUTURES

A liberal trade was under way in silver futures in New York yesterday within a range of around ⅓c per ounce. The market was easier early, but rallied later and closed .04c higher to .17c lower with sales of 8,050,000 ounces. Bar silver was ⅝c lower at 44⅝c. January closed at 45.05c. February 45.07c. March 45.20@45.25c, May 45.80@45.89c, and July 46.28c.

Eureka Vacuum Cleaner.

Investors' Guide: Kindly give me a report on Eureka Vacuum Cleaner company stock.—H. G.

Answer: Eureka Vacuum Cleaner company was incorporated in 1910. It has since grown to be one of the leading units in its field.

Formerly about one-third of output was sold through dealers and the remainder through branch offices and salesmen. A sharp drop in sales forced a revision of this policy in 1932 and the company discontinued all retail activities. Although 1932 sales were about one-third of those reported in 1931, savings from the new method of distribution resulted in a moderate profit, against a sizable loss in 1931.

In the first half of 1933 net income was $25,000, or 10 cents per share, against $18,000, or 7 cents a share, in the corresponding 1932 period. The following is a four year record of earnings:

	Sales.	Net Income.	Income Per Shr
1932	$ 1,360,000	$ 48,000	$0.19
1931	4,297,000	1,163,000*	4.58*
1930	6,971,000	584,000*	2.12*
1929	10,805,000	1,269,000	4.60

*Loss.

The new policy is reflected in the balance sheet. Cash and marketable securities at the close of 1932 stood at $1,434,000, against $1,274,000 the year before, and accounts receivable dropped to $157,000 from $636,000. Current assets were $1,996,000 and current liabilities were $62,000.

Capitalization consists of 248,000 shares of $5 par stock.

Sales have been handicapped by the disinclination of the purchasing public to buy semi-luxury goods. A general improvement in business conditions should counteract that.

Nothing has been paid on the stock since April 30, 1932.

Alabama Power.

Investors' Guide: What rate did Alabama Power company pay last year for the power it got from Wilson dam?—M. G. R.

Answer: We have the following from the Tennessee Valley Authority:

"Alabama Power company pays the government $560,000 a year for 280,000,000 kilowatt hours, as a minimum payment, and 2 mills per kilowatt hour for all excess. They also pay $1,500 a month rental for the U. S. nitrate plant number 2 steam plant. For the last six or seven years the company has used the minimum and not much more."

This was under a contract which expired Dec. 31, 1933.

U. S. STEEL CHIEF CALLS BELT LINE CONTROL REMOTE

Head of Road Also Testifies in Federal Suit.

William J. Filbert, chairman of the finance committee of the United States Steel corporation, and Alexander F. Banks, former president of the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railway, shared the witness stand yesterday in the hearing before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward in which the government is attempting to force the steel company to dispose of the railroad.

The government contends that ownership of the railroad by the steel corporation is in violation of the commodities clause of the interstate commerce act.

Contend Line Independent.

The steel corporation contends that its control over the road is so remote as to make it in effect an independent line.

Mr. Filbert stated on the witness stand that he knew as much about the financial setup of the Steel corporation as any one save the late Judge E. H. Gary. He insisted that the management of the Steel corporation practically had no hand in the affairs of the railroad except in recommendations on certain financial policies.

Mr. Filbert said that the corporation did advise the road as to its depositaries, since it was assumed that the steel corporation, with its broad knowledge of national affairs, would be in a good position to know the core solvent banks. He maintained that so far as operating policies and establishment of rates were concerned the steel corporation did not interfere in any way.

Cite Pension Fund.

Counsel for the government endeavored to show the close relationship between the steel corporation and its subsidiary, citing the operation of the U. S. Steel Carnegie pension fund and a profit sharing fund.

Mr. Filbert insisted that so far as the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern was concerned the employés who were to be placed on pension or who were to participate in the profit sharing fund were nominated by the president of the road.

Mr. Filbert stated that the Chicago, Lake Shore and Eastern was heavily in debt to the steel corporation for terminal construction at Gary and for the purchase of equipment, and that the corporation was interested in the leasing of this line by the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern. Consequently it did advise in the negotiations between these lines.

GRAINS RECEDE; ENTHUSIASM OF BUYERS WANES

Wheat Loses Over a Cent; Commodities Sag.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The first flush of bullish enthusiasm which manifested itself in commodity markets on Monday following President Roosevelt's statement on monetary policy apparently wore itself out yesterday. Those who were buyers before the sharp bulge occurred were inclined to take profits. At no time yesterday were wheat prices above the finish of the previous day, while cotton and commodities in general developed a reactionary tendency.

May wheat, which sold up to 91¾ cents on Monday, or 7¾ cents above the low of last week, dropped to 89⅞ cents yesterday and closed at 90⅛ cents to 90¼ cents. July wheat was 88½ to 88⅝ cents at the last. Losses of 1¼ to 1⅝ cents for the day were shown. Corn was ⅛ to ⅛ cent lower, with May at 53⅛ to 53¼ cents. Oats were ⅛ cent lower; rye was off 1½ cents, and barley was down 1¼ cents. May oats closed at 38¾ cents, rye at 62⅞ cents, and barley at 53 cents.

Cash Wheat Strong.

While monetary conditions continue the main topic in the grain trade, a canvass yesterday showed a majority of operators was strongly inclined to pay more attention to fundamental conditions than has been the case for a number of weeks, especially to what is regarded as the much stronger cash wheat position.

Owing to the limited movement of cash wheat from the country, mills have been turning to terminal markets for supplies on a constantly larger scale. The result is that actual grain has gained steadily on the May delivery and choice wheat is now quoted at a premium over the future in practically all markets. Mills were credited with buying futures both in Chicago and Minneapolis yesterday.

Visible Supply Decreasing.

The extent of the milling demand for cash wheat is shown by an almost steady reduction in the visible supply in recent weeks, with many operators expressing the belief the total will drop below 100,000,000 bushels within a few weeks. Last Saturday the aggregate was 119,097,000 bushels, showing a decrease of nearly 29,000,000 bushels from the high point in September. If traders' expectations are realized it would be the first time since July, 1929, that the total was below 100,000,000 bushels. Late in August, 1931, the all-time record was established at 236,323,000 bushels.

Winnipeg wheat was affected by the action of American markets and closed 1¾ cents lower, while Liverpool after being higher early reacted and closed ⅛ cent lower to ⅜ cent higher.

LARD TRADE ACTIVE; PRICES CLOSE HIGHER

Good general buying of lard futures by commission houses was supplied yesterday by sales on the part of warehousemen hedging their holdings. Futures closed unchanged to 15 cents higher, the latter on new September. For the most part net gains were 2½ to 5 cents.

Cash lard was in demand and firmer, with regular advanced 2½ cents to 5.62½ cents; loose, 5 cents higher at 4.92 cents, and leaf steady at 4.87½ cents.

Bellies advanced 5 cents, with a moderate trade on futures, and a good business in cash lots at 12½ cents net higher to a basis of 6.50 cents.

BUTTER AND EGGS STEADY TO FIRM; POTATOES RISE

Butter and egg futures closed steady to firm on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Distant deliveries closed unchanged to ⅝c higher. Potatoes gained another cent.

October eggs pushed forward $105 per car for the widest gain of the egg deliveries. Buying was fairly active at mid-session. Buying of April and selling of October appeared with a 2¼c spread. Cash eggs were steady with the storages holdings continued shrinking slowly.

Butter was up at the start, but the nearby deliveries developed pressure. March advanced ½c to close at 20c, the highest price any butter delivery has sold in the last ten weeks and a new high for the March delivery. Withdrawals totaled 600,000 pounds more than last year.

Potatoes were in fair demand. With a crop considerably under last year, shipments have been running far ahead of the year ago movement.
